Spanish Rebel Bombs Kill 75 in 3 Towns

100 Missils Dropped by Franco Flyers.

MADRID, Nov. 28.—(AP)—More than seventy-five persons, mostly women and children, were killed today in rebel air bombing raids on three towns on the central front.

Arrows point to three towns bombed yesterday by Spanish rebel war planes.

Fifty-four bodies, forty-nine of them those of women and children, had been recovered after a raid on Colmenar Viejo, a village twenty miles north of Madrid. The nearby village of Hoyo de Manzanares also was raided, but the number of dead was not yet determined.

Twenty persons were killed and sixty-three injured in a raid on Ocana, Toledo province, in which a hospital was hit by seventeen bombs. Of the dead, only one was a man.

Search Débris for Victims.

Corpses were laid in rows in the shed of a graveyard on a little hill above Colmenar Viejo. Eight planes swept over the town at noon and dropped 100 bombs.

The débris of more than 125 houses still was being explored for other victims. There were 120 persons in hospitals, while many wounded were taken to their battered homes.

Eleven of those lying in the graveyard shed were infants. Swathed in blood-stained sheets, they had been placed in their dead mothers' arms. With one mother were her 6 month old twins.

There were the bodies of eight older children, ranging up to 5 years of age.

One Bomb Wrecks Shelter.

Virtually the entire group were victims of one 220 pound bomb that ripped through six feet of stone and earth covering a small refuge in the central plaza to kill thirty-two persons.

Only one person left that refuge alive; she was taken away on a stretcher. The victims were trapped in the passageway five feet high and two feet wide.

All along the highway from Colmenar tonight persons were fleeing, their possessions piled on mule back. Others waited at the village gate begging rides to anywhere.

Many Days of Raids.

At nightfall some inhabitants began returning from the fields where they fled at the first alarm. Many had fled, however, only to die. The bleak, stony hills were raked with machine guns and blasted with bombs.

The raids were a repetition of what happened at Chinchon on Saturday, Tarancon on Friday, and Guadalajara on Thursday.

Government aviation, likewise, was active on the Aragon front where a communique said three towns were raided Saturday. Puebla de Alfinden was attacked three different times, and Villafranco de Ebro and Almudebar each were raided once.

Rebels Proclaim Blockade.

HENDAYE, Franco-Spanish Frontier, Nov. 28.—(AP)—The Spanish rebel régime proclaimed a blockade of all Spanish government ports today, including those on the Island of Minorca.

The communique issued at Salamanca, where the rebel general staf was completing plans for its next offensive, flatly declared an end to the neutrality of the ports which the London nonintervention committee has attempted to maintain.

"All vessels which attempt to enter government ports will be attacked," the communique said.

Government sources declared this merely put the finishing touches on what they termed a "paper blockade." They said Gen. Francisco Franco did not have sufficient sea strength to make the blockade effective.

AIR TRAGEDIES IN U. S. BLAMED ON BUROCRATS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 28.—[Special.]—Warning of future air disasters unless inefficient burocracy and political caprice are weeded out, Senator Pat McCarran (D., Nev.) tonight demanded that responsibility for passenger service and air commerce be centered in one independent and nonpolitical body.

Pat McCarran.

The senator placed the blame for tragedies of the past on the governmental agencies charged with protecting lives and property in the air. He pointed out that the control of aviation was sliced up among the commerce and postoffice departments, the interstate commerce commission, and the department of agriculture's weather bureau.

Insists on Nonpolitical Agency.

"If something is not done and done promptly to insure responsibility in one nonpolitical agency for safety in the air," asserted Senator McCarran, "we shall be confronted with a repetition of these unfortunate crashes and major catastrophes with their appalling loss of life."

Lives and commerce in the air were being "mishandled" in the various departments of the government, the senator charged. Under the present setup the department of commerce's bureau of air commerce handles the policing of the airlines and safety requirements, the postoffice department controls the airmail, the commerce commission fixes rates, and the department of agriculture steps in to estimate the weather.

"No two of the departments are cooperating," McCarran declared. "Due to the jealousies that exist between departments, due to their special powers which they are reluctant to give up, we find aviation in confusion. We find major catastrophes are the result of the lack of absolute control in any one agency."

Pledges to Press Senate Bill.

The senator said that in his judgment control of the air should be vested in the interstate commerce commission, which had been fitted eminently to coördinate all forms of transportation. A bill setting forth this plan is pending before the senate, the Nevadan said, and he pledged himself to press for its passage as early as possible.

Every air line in the United States, every foreign air service and labor organization as well were agreed on the wisdom of his plan, according to Senator McCarran.

"Unless we do this," he went on, "capital is not going to support a further development of air transportation in this country, and we may expect a backward trend instead of progress."

Opposed by President.

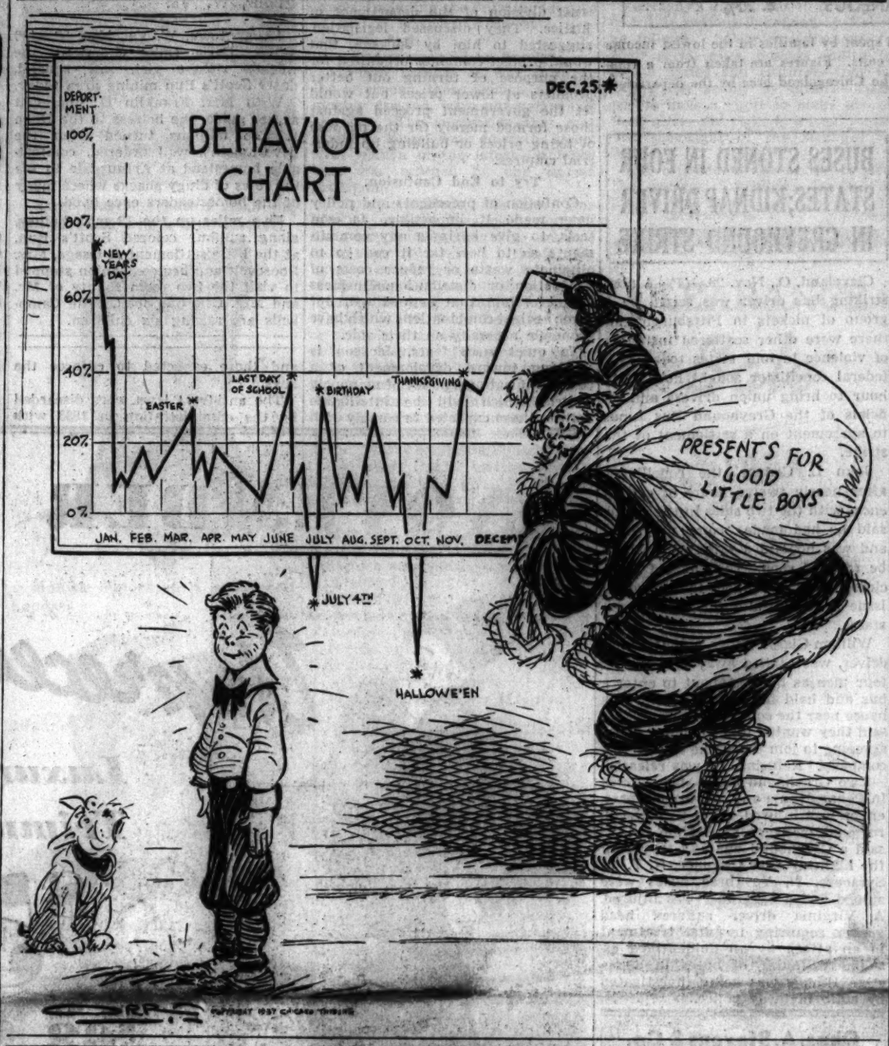
Originally he had proposed the vesting of control over the air service in the hands of an independent commission, the senator said, but this had been opposed by the President and out of deference to him he had changed the form of the bill to give the authority to the commerce commission.

Burocracy was going to great lengths to block "honest legislative endeavor for aviation," according to McCarran. "For example, the commerce department's airport conference announced for Dec. 6 is, in my opinion, pure camouflage to divert public attention from the more serious problems confronting aviation."

This conference has been called to discuss airport planning and related subjects.

Two months ago Senator McCarran assailed the postoffice department's decision forbidding a through sleeper service over two connecting air lines from New York to Los Angeles. He asserted that the interests of the public were constantly ignored by the department.

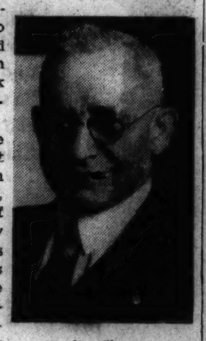
THE SEASONAL UPTURN



Zimmer to Quit Post as County Hospital Head

BY PARKE BROWN.

After more than twenty years of service in the post, Michael Zimmer asked yesterday to be relieved as warden of the Cook County hospital.



Warden Zimmer.

He made the request of Clayton F. Smith, president of the county board, as Smith was making one of his Sunday afternoon visits to the institution. Warden Zimmer said the onerous duties and responsibilities of his position as the hospital is now administered are too much for a man of his age. He was 73 years old last May.

"Too Much for One Man."

"I did not ask to leave the hospital," Zimmer explained, "but merely to be relieved of some of the constantly increasing burden I've been carrying. It is too much for one man. In that I agree with the Cutter commission's recent report."

"It is easy to understand Warden Zimmer's attitude," said Smith. "This is conceded to be the largest hospital of its kind in the world. In one year 175,000 persons apply for treatment."

The Commission's Work.

Warden Zimmer's request for a less onerous place is expected to facilitate the carrying out of the recommendations of the commission which recently investigated the hospital, criticized some of the hospital conditions severely and made sweeping suggestions to improve the institution.

The commission, headed by Dr. Irving S. Cutter, dean of Northwestern university medical school, recommended that the work now handled by the warden be assigned to a chief executive to be called the director and to two assistant directors. The finance committee will consider this proposal.

Warden Zimmer has been in public office since 1901 when he entered the city council as alderman of the old 12th ward. He also has served as sheriff, city controler, and warden of the old Joliet penitentiary.

SLOW KITCHEN FIRE, SOME KEROSENE, A CAT, THEN PLENTY OF FIRE

Jackson, Mich., Nov. 28.—(AP)—When Mrs. Bessie Warner tried to encourage a slow stove fire with kerosene today, the flames leaped out and set fire to the cat, which, with fur aflame, jumped on the davenport, setting it on fire. Then the cat ran across the road into the haymow of Norman Allen's barn, which burned down, killing nine cows, six calves, a sow and her pigs. The cat was nowhere to be found tonight.

BIBLE OWNED BY CZAR IS STOLEN FROM GALLERIES

New York, Nov. 28.—[Special.]—Imperial Russian art treasures valued at $25,000, including a bible once owned by Nicholas II., last czar of Russia, and a pair of gold and silver champagne coolers used by Czar Alexander II., were stolen early today from the Schaffer Art galleries. The thieves, in haste or ignorance, overlooked even more valuable objects, among them a 54 pound eight-carat gold samovar, once owned by Czar Alexander III., said to be worth $25,000.

The champagne coolers were valued at $3,000 and the bible, mounted in a gold and silver cover and dating back to 1891, at $1,800.

The robbers, it was pointed out, cannot hope to dispose of these pieces, so, unless they are recovered, the objects of art probably will be melted down for the precious metals they contain.

IF YOUR HOLLY BEARS BERRIES IT'S LADY TREE

Washington, D. C., Nov. 28.—(AP)—When you put up holly wreaths among your Christmas decorations your admiration for the green foliage and red berries will be directed toward the female of the species.

For it is the female holly tree, agriculture department experts said today, which bears the red berries—the male tree produces only a small yellow flower.

Holly is one of the trees that have males and females. This peculiarity, the experts said, is the reason some persons cultivate holly trees and find no red berries. They have planted male trees.

So She Learns of Men from a Pineapple

BY MARCIA WINN.

He promised her, as he slapped her face and strode manfully from a Kedzie avenue dance floor, that she would hear from him again—soon.

But Mrs. Patricia Davis, who is a luscious brunette, 21, and well versed [she thought] in the ways of men, what with a divorce four months ago and a new marriage prepared for next week, thought nothing of it. It was 3 a. m. Sunday morning, after all, and almost any one will say almost anything at that hour. So Mrs. Davis, known as "Pat," went home to 2536 South Troy street.

An Unstrategic Moment.

"That Charles," she complained with more laughter than tears to her mother, Mrs. Ella Hulek. "He is a one. He has a wife, but he asks me to leave town with him. When I say I'm getting married myself next week he up and slaps me—hard!"

At that unstrategic moment the telephone rang. Mrs. Hulek answered and a masculine voice caroled forth—"Is that you, honey?"

"No," snapped back Mrs. Hulek. "This is not honey. She's not in."

"Well," came the voice, now angry, "you tell her I know she's in. Tell her she'll hear from me again, soon!"

She Hears from Him.

And Mrs. Hulek, as she turned back to her daughter, laughed. That Charlie what a crazy one! Mrs. Davis nodded. Then they prepared for bed.

Suddenly there came a terrific roar. The window in Mrs. Davis' bedroom landed in splinters on her bed. Simultaneously sixteen other windows in the apartment house blew in.

And that is why Mrs. Davis, realizing too late her ignorance of the ways of men, spent a futile afternoon with a police squad yesterday looking for "that Charlie," who addressed her with a stick of dynamite.

Husband of Dutch Crown Princess Hurt in Auto Crash

AMSTERDAM, Netherlands, Nov. 29 [Monday].—(AP)—Prince Bernhard, husband of Crown Princess Juliana of the Netherlands, was "seriously injured" today in an automobile accident at Diemen, near Amsterdam. He suffered a slight brain concussion, but is in no danger. The 28 year old prince consort is a keen sportsman, an airplane pilot, and an automobile speed enthusiast. The prince and princess, married last Jan. 7, expect the birth of a child within a short time.

U. S. Finds Out How Folks Live in Small Towns

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 28.—[Special.]—Increases in family income are rapidly reflected in higher expenditures for food and clothing and automobiles, according to a comprehensive cross-section of the spending habits of village families in the Chicagoland area tabulated today by the bureau of home economics of the department of agriculture.

The annual incomes found in the survey range from $250 to $2,499. In the lowest incomes of wage earners' families the average spent for food was $180, while in the highest incomes the average for food was $539. Expenditures for clothes ranged from an average of $25 in the lowest incomes to an average of $186 in the highest. Family car expenditures ranged from $14 to $315.

What the Families Spend.

Total yearly expenditures of wage earners' families varied from an average of $431 for families with incomes between $250 and $499 to an average of $1,760 for families with incomes between $2,000 and $2,499.

Average amounts spent by families in the lowest income brackets for the various items of living costs indicate a division of expenditures about as follows:

Food, 40 per cent; household operation, 16 per cent; housing, 15 per cent; clothing, 6 per cent; automobile, 5 per cent; medical care, 5 per cent, and 13 per cent for all other costs, such as transportation to and from work, tobacco, personal care, and education. As income increased larger amounts were spent for all items, but lower percentages went for so-called necessities and more for other items.

Increase for Automobiles.

Average expenditures by the families with incomes between $2,000 and $2,499 showed the following percentage distribution: Food, automobile, 19; household operation, 11; clothing, 11; housing, 8; furnishings and equipment, 4; medical care, 3; recreation, 3; gifts, community welfare, and taxes, 3; personal care, 2; tobacco, 2; education, reading, and all other items, 3. Clearly the automobile and clothing are first choice for the spending of increased income.

"It is interesting to note that the moment he can afford it, the American villager begins to broaden his life by travel in the family car," said Dr. Louise Stanley, chief of the bureau of home economics, who is directing the survey. "This gives opportunities for vacations and trips to cities, which tend to develop more varied economic and cultural interests."

Expense for rent or upkeep on the owned home did not cost as much as the operation of the home, nor were housing expenses much differ-

FARM CONTROL BILL IS BLASTED BY HOUSE GROUP

Insists Act Would Hurt Agriculture.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 28.—[Special.]—One of the most startling warnings of the effect of the Roosevelt experiments in socialism emanated tonight from the minority of the house committee on agriculture in a report condemning the administration crop control bill under which farm product prices would be pegged, nonproduction subsidized and farmers regimented by Washington under severe penalties for noncompliance.

The farmers will discover, says the report, "that the proposed program will bring about a complete dislocation of agriculture in the United States, the increase in foreign production of competitive farm products and the total disappearance of our export market."

Assail New Philosophy.

The much vaunted "all weather program" for agriculture discloses under close scrutiny, say the minority, "the injection of a new philosophy, of dubious constitutionality, into our American system of free and independent action. Instead of following the usual and customary practice of enacting legislation to do something FOR the farmers, this bill definitly provides for doing something TO the farmers of the United States."

In a word, nearly 60 pages of the bill are devoted to the national regimentation of farmers engaged in the production of cotton, corn, wheat, rice and tobacco, under the secretary of agriculture as the supreme dictator with compulsory production and marketing control, enforced by drastic penalties, and the ever normal granary as the keystone for the new deal for American farmers."

Recall Roosevelt Pledge.

This compulsory program for farmers, says the report, is wholly at variance with Mr. Roosevelt's Topeka pledge of 1932 that farm legislation "must not be coercive" with the producer retaining full liberty of "nonparticipation, if he so desires."

This protest and warning was signed by Representatives August H. Andresen [R., Minn.], J. Roland Kinzer [R., Pa.], Charles W. Tobey [R., N. H.], Clare E. Hoffman [R., Mich.], and Bert Lord [R., N. Y.]. Dissenting on other grounds were Representatives Harry B. Coffee [D., Neb.] and Gerald J. Boileau [P., Wis.].

Issued concurrently was the majority committee report presenting the bill as a permanent scheme for controling farm production and subsidizing agriculture. The majority report analyzes the bill exhaustively except the prospective cost to the taxpayers, on which it is completely silent. The cost is variously estimated by experts at not less than 750 million dollars, perhaps a billion or more, annually.

Approach on Four Fronts.

"The bill herewith reported," says the majority report, "approaches the farm problem on four major fronts.

"First, it strengthens the soil conservation and domestic allotment act and more clearly defines the powers of the secretary of agriculture under that act.

"Second, it provides for loans on agricultural commodities in order to enable farmers to finance the storage and warehousing of commodities in years of excessive yields so that surpluses may be kept off the market, and so that in years of drouth or other adverse conditions, supplies of agricultural commodities will be plentiful.

"Third, in years of excessive production it provides for the withholding from market in interstate and foreign commerce of surpluses of the five major nonperishable agricultural commodities for the purpose of removing the depressing effect which such surpluses exert on such commerce.

"Fourth, it provides means by which markets at home and abroad for agricultural products may be restored and new ones may be found. This can well be regarded as the most important single feature of the bill. While provision is made for handling excessive surpluses temporarily through moderate control features, the more important and fruitful approach to the solution of the farm problem is in expansion of domestic and foreign markets."

Signers of the majority report included Representatives Harry P. Beam [D., Ill.], James G. Polk [D., O.], Fred Cummings [D., Colo.], Walter M. Pierce [D., Ore.], Fred Bierman [D., Ia.], William L. Nelson [D., Mo.], Frank E. Hook [D., Mich.], and Scott W. Lucas [D., Ill.]. Republicans who recorded no dissent from the majority report are Representatives Clifford R. Hope of Kansas and Fred C. Gilchrist of Iowa.

Mr. Andresen and his colleagues of the minority assert in their report that the compulsory features of the proposed legislation are not sponsored by any national farm organization but, instead, have the bitter opposition of many national farm groups.

These farm organizations "want no trafic with the tens of thousands of politically minded agricultural G-men,' who will be placed on the public pay roll to travel from farm to farm enforcing the orders of the secretary by intimidations and threat of penalty. They want to remain as free men," the report says. It is further stated that the farm organizations opposing this bill have proposed sound and constructive legislation, but their suggestions have not been incorporated in this measure.

Favor Some Subsidies.

The minority group favors support of the soil conservation subsidies as administered in 1936 and 1937, and recommends that the maximum authorizations heretofore approved by the congress for soil building purposes should be appropriated.

The report states that the secretary of agriculture has attempted to establish a voluntary ever normal grunary program without legislative authority by purchasing compliance and coöperation from farmers through the payment of substantial subsidies.

"While it is not believed," says the report, "that any executive or administrative officer of the federal government should undertake to change a policy of congress without legislative authority, many feel that if subsidy and benefit payments are to be continued, it would be preferable to adopt the 1938 voluntary program announced by the secretary as against the compulsory control laid down in H. R. 8505."

Large Operators Blamed.

Asserting that subsidy payments to farmers have become an expediency due to low prices on certain basic commodities on account of burdensome surpluses, the minority report charges that responsibility for these large surpluses does not rest with the farmers who operate family-sized farms, but with the large operators, who control and operate thousands of acres and with machine production plant and harvest excessive supplies of cotton, wheat, corn, and tobacco.

"If some of these large operators could be induced to cut their acreage, our surplus and price problems would be partly solved," says the report. It is conceded that all producers must come into the program if it is to succeed. The report raises the question, however, as why the government should pay tens of thousands of dollars to a certain few individuals and only a few paltry dollars to the man who operates a family-sized farm.

It is pointed out that under the AAA hundreds of large farmers received subsidy payments from the government ranging from ten thousand dollars to one million dollars each year to produce less. "A repetition of such a scandal should not be permitted," the report warns.

Predicts Adverse Reaction.

The dissenters insist that if the proposed bill is enacted, the secretary of agriculture in his future announcements concerning crop estimates and supplies on hand, would be advertising to the world our visible supplies and that there would be a material adverse reaction in the world market price levels.

The minority concurs with the majority in the proposal to make sound loans on all agricultural commodities, including dairy products.

While declaring that a referendum of the farmers such as the bill provides is highly desirable, the minority group believes that such a referendum would be declared unconstitutional by the Supreme court.

At noon tomorrow the congress will receive a message from President Roosevelt on housing. The message, urging a large scale housing construction program by private capital, is one of the President's five points intended to check the present slump and decrease widespread unemployment.

Where Lower Incomes Go in Small Towns

UNCLE SAM FINDS HOW FOLKS LIVE IN SMALL TOWNS

Various Groups Compared.

The spending habits of families who work chiefly in the clerical occupations were little different from those of the business and professional families, except that the higher income clerical group did not go in for the automobile to as large an extent as the other occupational groups.

On the whole, there was little difference in spending among the various occupations. In almost all income brackets wage earners spent somewhat more for food than did business and professional and clerical workers of the same economic level, and usually somewhat less for housing.

All types of workers' families at the same income levels averaged spending about the same for personal care and for medical care. At most income levels professional workers' families spent more for recreation than in the other occupational groups. Wage earners' families tended to spend less for reading, less for formal education, than either clerical or business and professional families. The business and professional families spent considerably more than the other two groups for gifts and community welfare.

Whether these differences are due chiefly to the occupational factor or to other factors, such as the number of persons in the family and their sex and age, will be determined later from an analysis of the data by family composition.

A Nation-Wide Survey.

The tabulations released today are part of the first nation-wide study on how much income the American family makes and how it is spent. The preliminary report releases study of 33 villages in Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin, and Iowa, and 13 villages in Pennsylvania and Ohio. The villages studied in Chicagoland were:

Michigan—Jonesville, Concord, Grass Lake, Parma, Blissfield, Hudson, Tecumseh, Chelsea.

Wisconsin—Mount Horeb, Sun Prairie, Horicon, Mayville, Lake Mills, Waterloo.

Illinois—Farmer City, Atlanta, Mount Pulaski, Maroa, Bement, Cerro Gordo, Monticello, Tuscola.

Iowa—Earlham, Eddyville, New Sharon, Bussey, Dallas, Melcher, Pleasantville, State Center, Brooklyn, Montezuma, Victor.

BUSES STONED IN FOUR STATES; KIDNAP DRIVER IN GREYHOUND STRIKE

Cleveland, O., Nov. 28.—(AP)—A nonstriking bus driver was seized by a group of pickets in Pittsburgh and there were other scattered instances of violence in four states today as a federal conciliator sought hour after hour to bring union drivers and officials of the Greyhound Bus Lines to agreement on a settlement of the strike.

John L. Conner, the conciliator, after nearly twelve hours of conferences with the two sides in the strike, said he had made "some progress" and was hopeful a settlement would be reached soon. The demand for a closed shop remained the principal issue in the dispute affecting sixteen states.

William Glassbrenner, a nonstriking driver, was carried away in a car by four men as he was about to enter a bus and held for several hours in a house near the company's garage. He said they wanted him to sign a paper agreeing to join the strike against the company. Refusing, he was released.

Two Greyhound buses were stoned in Pennsylvania and one woman passenger was injured. Paul S. McLean, regional manager at Buffalo, N. Y., said a Greyhound bus was forced off the highway near Clarence, N. Y. In Syracuse, N. Y., three buses were stoned and a bystander was injured. A Virginia driver suffered head gashes requiring hospital treatment in an attack by an unidentified assailant. Stoning of buses in downstate Illinois was being investigated by state highway police.

PRESIDENT MAPS ANTI-TRUST LAWS TO FIT HIS POLICY

Holds Conferences on His Vacation Train.

BY WALTER TROHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Aboard Presidential Special, en Route to Miami, Fla., Nov. 28.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt, while speeding southward today for a week's fishing cruise off the coast of Florida, explored the program of drawing a line between what administration leaders refer to as the "sheep and goats" in huge industrial combines.

That was the purpose of his conferance with Assistant Attorney General Robert H. Jackson, head of the anti-trust division of the department of justice. They discussed legislation, suggested to him by Jackson, that would protect combines organized for the purpose of turning out better products at lower prices but would let the government proceed against those formed merely for the purpose of fixing prices or building up industrial empires.

Try to End Confusion.

Confusion of precedents and policy have made it impossible, Jackson feels, to give business any commitments as to how far it can go to eliminate waste or reduce costs of production or distribution. Business is not certain that actions will not come against combinations which have economic necessity on their side.

To quiet such fears, Jackson is working toward development of a consistent national policy of monopoly control which will be intelligible both to those expected to comply with and those expected to enforce the laws.

The anti-trust laws were discarded by the administration in 1933 with the formation of the ill-fated National Recovery Administration. The administration was forced to return to the ancient anti-monopoly weapons when the Supreme court plucked the blue eagle in 1935 and a study of the laws was begun in the justice department.

Acts Against Aluminum Company.

The only result of the study to date has been the administration's action against the Aluminum Company of America, which action was interwoven with a grudge the administration bore the late Andrew Mellon because he had been a Republican secretary of the treasury.

Recently Attorney General Homer S. Cummings announced he would seek a million dollar appropriation to enable him to press monopoly charges against ten more combines at a cost of $100,000 each.

Jackson will be a member of the fishing party which will go aboard the presidential yacht Potomac tomorrow morning in Miami. Other official members of the party will be Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes, WPA Administrator Harry Hopkins, and James Roosevelt, son and secretary to the President.

Others in the presidential party are Capt. Ross T. McIntire, White House physician; Col. Edwin M. Watson, military aid, and Capt. W. B. Woodson, naval aid.

Visit Homesteaders

[Associated Press Wirephoto.]

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt and Mrs. James H. R. Cromwell (left) smiled as they were greeted by settlers at Tygart homestead near Elkins, W. Va.

Morgantown, W. Va., Nov. 28.—(AP)—Mrs. Doris Duke Cromwell, the world's richest girl, saw squalid, dusty Scott's Run mining area today.

With Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt as her guide, the heiress to the Duke tobacco millions turned from the government's well ordered, comfortable homestead at Arthurdale to see the rows of dingy shacks where many of the homesteaders once lived.

Five miles up the 12 mile hollow, along sulphur colored Scott's Run, at the little settlement of Osage, Mrs. Roosevelt and her companion stopped to visit the two room shanty of Mr. and Mrs. Otis Campbell. The Campbells are raising six children.

PUNISHES C. I. O. LOCAL FOR AUTO TIEUP IN PONTIAC

Pontiac, Mich., Nov. 28.—(AP)—Homer Martin, in a disciplinary move, placed the Pontiac local of the United Automobile Workers of America under direct control of the union's international board today.

Members of the Pontiac local had carried on the nearly five days' wildcat sitdown strike at the Fisher body plant of General Motors corporation, which ended only after the union's international officers interceded.

Martin, U. A. W. president, delegated Charles Madden, a regional director of the union, as a one man board to assume full charge of the local's affairs until the international board decides the local can govern itself.

CALLS BRAZILIAN RULE FOE OF BOTH RED AND LIBERAL

RIO DE JANEIRO, Nov. 28.—(AP)—Minister of Justice Francisco Campos today declared Brazil's newly promulgated corporative régime is "the foe of communism and hence also the foe of liberalism."

In an interview published in the newspaper Correio de Manha, the official listed Brazil among the corporative states of the world.

He assailed the theory of unlimited democracy describing the Brazilian electorate as uninterested and inadequately educated for voting on complex public issues which he said were becoming technical appeals to reason rather than political appeals to emotion.

"There is a worldwide movement to withdraw from parliaments the power of initiating legislation and have parliaments delegate their functions to the executive," Campos said.

As an example he cited what he termed the Roosevelt administration's "executive legislation."

FRENCH, BRITISH SECURITY TALKS TO BEGIN TODAY

Premiers, Foreign Chiefs Meet in London.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 28.—Premier Camille Chautemps and Foreign Minister Yvon Delbos of France arrived in London tonight for talks with British ministers tomorrow and Tuesday on all the most vital international problems.

British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden and Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain conferred tonight to polish up their own plans. The talks are regarded as the most important for the Anglo-French entente since Pierre-Etienne Flandin and Pierre Laval visited London for the French government in February, 1935.

The far eastern situation, with the Japanese threat to seize the Shanghai customs revenues, will bulk large in the conversations. With millions of dollars—customs revenues pledged by China for British and French loans—at stake, the ministers will discuss the possible scope of British and French action to resist Japanese encroachment on their rights in China.

Seek American Coöperation.

Means will be sought to obtain American coöperation in any decisions reached regarding the far east.

After the Chinese-Japanese question comes Germany's colonial demands, as outlined by Reichsfuehrer Hitler in recent discussions with Viscount Halifax, lord president of the council [British vice premier].

Other subjects for discussion include:

1. Anglo-French uneasiness over concentration of Italian troops in Libya and fortifications opposite Gibraltar.

2. The Spanish war and the consequences to France of Britain's exchange of "agents" with the rebel government of Gen. Francisco Franco.

3. The position of central Europe and Germany's attitude toward Austria and Czechoslovakia.

4. The problem of world-wide political and economic appeasement with particular reference to the British-American trade pact negotiations.

Hitler May Get Concession.

Viscount Halifax will participate in the talks to outline the results of his discussions with the Nazi chiefs. Hitler, it was revealed, stated emphatically that Germany insists on recognition as an African colonial power, and asserted the right to get back all her pre-war colonies. This affects not only Britain, but France, Belgium, and members of the British commonwealth.

Despite the obstacles to colonial transfers, the indications were that Hitler's demands probably will be satisfied in some manner, but only on the distinct understanding that Germany gives watertight peace guarantees in return.

The Chamberlain government is opposed to any policy of handing back colonies to Germany as a "sop," and will not allow Hitler a free hand in central Europe.

Military Staf Makes Plans.

The Spanish crisis and its threat to spread through the whole of Europe has receded somewhat into the background in the British view. The British ministers will inform the French, however, that Anglo-Italian negotiations for a general understanding will not take place until the Italians and Germans fighting for Gen. Franco are withdrawn.

Authoritative sources said that in advance of the ministers' talks, the French and British naval and army staffs had worked out detailed military plans to defend their Mediterranean lifelines against the final victor in the Spanish war and to balk Italo-German control of the western and southeastern portions of the Mediterranean.

Equally important was the threat to Egypt and French Tunis from the Italian colony of Libya and to the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan from Italian conquered Ethiopia.

Never Two Alike

(Story in adjoining column.)

Josephine Tozzle wearing a black felt crown tiara.

Fashion Parade Discloses Some Weird Ideas.

One out of every two women parading along Chicago's boulevards is wearing one of the extreme new hats, which to the masculine eye may appear bizarre, fantastic, or downright wierd, an hour's check along the 900 block of North Michigan avenue disclosed yesterday. The count per every ten women of hats which might be classed merely as strange or unusual ran much higher, about seven out of ten.

A few pill boxes were seen, usually with the new streamers tied under the chin, but by far the majority of hats were high and appeared to draw the wearers up by the eyebrows. Including the finishing touches of fur or feathers, some hats were one foot high.

Unaccompanied by Escorts.

Perhaps because it was early in the afternoon, these women, all fashionably dressed, were unaccompanied by men. The suggestion that men would no longer walk down the street with women in the latest fashioned hats was scorned by one woman pedestrian.

"That's ridiculous," she said. "Men love to make a fuss over women's hats, but secretly they love extreme hats, even wild hats. I think they have a dread fascination for them, really. My husband loves mine."

Often the hats apparently had no relation to the faces beneath them, as seen in the Michigan avenue parade of fashion. One demure platinum blonde with thick mascara on her lashes and generously applied lipstick wore a quaint old-fashioned hat with a cluster of plumes in front, a coy veil, and a chin strap.

Wears Sombrero Effect.

One sweet faced matron wore a sombrero effect. A girl with dimples and round blue eyes wore a spiked feather in a wicked dagger effect. A matron with chins which curved down wore a peeled-onion hairdress and a hat which crescendoed up a foot high in a surprising effect.

A girl with a fairly modest hat and an orchid pinned on her coat explained: "I'm being married today. The girls at the office gave me this. I feel very dressed up."

Georgia Coleman, Diving Star, Partly Paralyzed

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 28.—(AP)—Georgia Coleman, former Olympic diving champion, was in a critical condition tonight, suffering from what physicians said was paralysis of her arms and legs. Early diagnosis, physicians said, pointed to poliomyelitis, or spinal meningitis. Miss Coleman became ill a few weeks ago with a bronchial infection and last night was removed from a sanitarium to the contagious ward of the Los Angeles General hospital.

NAZI CHIEF URGES OUSTER OF JEWS FROM COLONIES

Charges They Wreck Prestige of Whites.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Nov. 28.—"The prestige of the white race in colonies is being undermined by Jews and 'inferior whites'," Dr. Gunther Hecht of the racial political department of the Nazi party declares in the German colonial yearbook for 1938. Voicing official views, Hecht urges the expulsion of Jews from colonies.

"It would be a great relief if it were possible to drive out from the entire colonial territory all Jews, without consideration of their nationality, and all degraded whites," he says.

Calls Jews Agitators.

He charges that Jews in colonies are acting as "petty dealers, political agents, inciters against Germany, as agitators, as newspaper sellers, owners of movies, or shareholders of mines and plantations."

Germany's attitude as to the rights of ruling nations is defined by Hecht as follows: "Peoples, who, due to their racial gifts, possess ability to create states and cultures—that is, ruling the people by nature—these people have a right to make use of their gifts—not right in a legal sense, but the right of the stronger to live."

The attitude of the native toward the average Frenchman is one of hatred and scorn, and his attitude toward an Englishman is one of shyness and fear, he continues.

"A Frenchman not only often creates legal equality for a colored native, but steps down from the level of his European race and mixes voluntarily with colored people and joins their society," he explains. "So long as an Englishman is a fairly normal European, he does not do such things."

Praises Italian Policy.

Hecht stresses that Italians always have made a definite division between blacks and whites in Ethiopia, based on the principle that "Italian blood is the blood of the ruling people and must be kept pure."

"For us Germans, the natives must always be treated in the same way," he declares, pointing out that in religious life the colored people now are treated by their "white rulers as equals," while in economic and political spheres they are treated as inferiors.

"It is impossible to treat in one way in one field and in a different way in another field," he adds. "We should leave the colored man in his homeland and should never bring him to Europe either as a servant worker or a soldier. Through the fault of France, the borders of Africa may one day lie on the Rhine, and through the fault of bolshevism, the borders of Asia may one day be on the Memel if Germanic culture in Europe does not soon halt such advance."

HUNT MOTIVE IN CABBIE'S SLAYING.

New York, Nov. 28.—[Special.]—Police were puzzled today as to a motive for the slaying last night of Raymond Hoffman, 25 years old, a cab driver. His body was found in the gutter in Greenwich Village. Detectives learned he was being sued in an accident case, but were unable to connect these circumstances with his death.

1,500 TO PARADE TONIGHT IN 4-H DEMONSTRATION

BY JAMES O'DONNELL BENNETT.

Tonight will be 4-H club night at the glorious farm festival officially known as the International Live Stock exposition.

Nine-thirty o'clock will bring the grand entry into the vast arena—43d and Halsted streets—of 1,500 of the prize young humans of the United States.

This will be the only mass appearance at the festival of these remarkable young people.

Twelve thousand spectators will be there to cheer them and to join with them in the singing of "My Country 'Tis of Thee," which is their hymn of consecration.

A Brief and Thrilling Event.

In one of the years of his presidency the late Calvin Coolidge, who was not a man given to sentimental surges, saw this grand entry and it made the tears come to his eyes, so fine in spirit and so affecting is it.

It is an event, brief and thrilling, which every Chicagoan, and every resident in the mighty agricultural commonwealths of which our city is the commercial capital, should see at least once in his life. It swiftly unfolds the triumph of youth in the field of things that really matter as well as the consecration of youth to the solving of problems in that field.

On the banners and placards beneath which they will march into the arena tonight you will read the cash values of the cattle and grain and cotton and vegetables and chickens which they and their fellow members back home produced during the year now closing.

Ages from 10 to 20 Years.

These boys and girls are from 10 to 20 years of age and at the International they represent and speak for a 4-H membership of 2,200,000.

Their sturdy appearance, their good manners, the messages which they bring from their comrades throughout the Union and the placards of achievement which they carry cheer the pessimist, hearten the doubter, and put fresh courage into the man who forlornly wonders—as so many of us are wondering—"what this country is coming to."

In the long view of human affairs the 4-H grand entry is the most momentous and inspiring spectacle of the great International which is a steady succession of history making spectacles in an eight day drama of nation building.

That is what practical Calvin Coolidge thought of it. He said so to the magnates of the show—Mr. Leonard, Mr. Sanders, Mr. Henkle, and Mr. Heide.

Time was when the International was a show solely for adult exhibitors, and only adult visitors came to it from points remote from Chicago.

Now, as a result of 4-H participation, it sounds a new note.

That note is the spirit of youth.

4-H youths are making many of the International's most interesting exhib- International's board of directors, its, hundreds of which are on view in the main building and hundreds more in an adjacent building which Arthur G. Leonard, chairman of the gave to the boys and girls of America.

Members of 4-H clubs are winning important awards in the show's annual distribution of more than $100,000 in prize money. But those prize winning exhibits mean more than cash won. They mean that young America on the farms is winning the salutary and nation building victories of peace.

Activities for a Year.

Last year—to hit only a few of the high points—4-H boys and girls raised nearly twelve million bushels of Irish seed potatoes, and seed potatoes have to be exceptionally fine. They raised 2,200,000 bushels of corn and 2,652,000 hens. They raised thousands of head of baby beeves that fairly waddled with as high as 70 per cent of salable meat. Southern members raised thousands of bales of cotton and thousands of tons of yams and peanuts. 4-H girls canned 7,500,000 jars of balanced family diet. In 1935 Cleo H. Yoder, a 4-H boy then aged 19, exhibited the grand champion steer that won the International's supreme award for beef cattle! He raised that animal.

Do you wonder that veteran agriculturists and agronomists are this morning on tiptoe with eagerness to know what grand totals of 4-H production in 1937 will be shown tonight on the banners and placards which juveniles of the farms will carry into the arena, there to repeat in unison this solemn 4-H pledge of consecration:

I PLEDGE:

My head to clearer thinking,
My heart to greater loyalty,
My hands to larger service, and
My health to better living for
My club, my community, and
My country.

$120,000 BLAZE IN TRUCK GARAGE UNDER SCRUTINY

Fire Attorney Henry Eckhardt has announced that he will start an investigation today of the orgin of a fire early yesterday in the Edward J. Meyers Trucking company garage at 1041 West Van Buren street. The flames destroyed the garage and fifty trucks stored in it and the loss was estimated at $120,000.

More than 250 firemen and thirty-five pieces of equipment were called to fight the fire, which was spread rapidly by high winds. E. J. Meyers, head of the company, said he believed it was caused by a lighted cigaret.

BOOKS

There's no mystery about the never-ceasing popularity of good mystery stories. Ever since Conan Doyle sent calabash-smoker Sherlock Holmes skyrocketing to world-wide fame the good mystery book has proved immeasurably soothing to brilliant but tired minds. Prominent statesmen . . high powered executives . . weary housewives find in detective fiction an all-absorbing quality that is particularly restful and enjoyable. Naturally, some mystery stories are much better than others. Our staff of readers here at Kroch's cull the regular output carefully. KANSAS COLLEGE WINS LIVE STOCK JUDGING CONTEST

Second Consecutive Victory at International.

BY FRANK RIDGWAY.

Five students composing the team that represented the Kansas State Agricultural college, Manhattan, Kas., won first in the thirty-eighth annual intercollegiate live stock judging contest at the International Live Stock exposition yesterday, repeating the school's achievement of last year. A third championship next year would give the Kansas college permanent possession of the Spoor bronze bull statue.

The winning team's score was announced to more than 50,000 attending the second day of the show, which will continue all this week. The Kansas student judges, in competition with 24 other schools, scored 4,523 out of a possible 5,000 points.

Kansan's Score Is Highest.

The team also captured the highest individual score, made by Roland B. Elling of Manhattan. His score was 918 out of a possible 1,000. One of Elling's teammates, Charles W. Pence of Topeka, was only three points behind him, but he was nosed out for second place by J. P. King, member of the team from Cornell university, Ithaca, N. Y., whose score was 917.

The Cornell team was second with a total score of 4,497 points, and the team from Ohio State university, Columbus, O., third, scoring 4,427 points. Scores of other teams are:

University of Wisconsin, Madison, Wis., 4,394; Texas Technological college, Lubbock, Tex., 4,392; Purdue university, Lafayette, Ind., 4,384; Oklahoma A. & M. college, Stillwater, Okla., 4,381; University of Minnesota, St. Paul, 4,377; University of Illinois, Urbana, Ill., 4,359.

Men who were student judges in the intercollegiate judging contest 25 years ago were guests of honor at the annual banquet held at the Saddle and Sirloin club. They included Colin N. Wentworth of Chicago, W. H. Peters of Big Falls, Minn., and Prof. C. C. Culbertson of Ames, Ia. These three men were members of the winning team from the Iowa State college at Ames at quarter of a century ago.

Another group at the banquet was made up of men who competed in the contest 20 years ago and a third group that competed 10 years ago.

Canadian Grain Wins.

W. J. Brodie of Stouffville, Ontario, Canada, was awarded the grand champion honor for exhibiting the finest carload of fat lambs in this year's show. He won on a load of Southdown lambs, the breed formerly exhibited by his father, C. J. Brodie, who has won the grand champion carlot lamb award at the last three internationals.

Canadian exhibitors also continue to win top awards in the hay and grain show, a major department of the exposition. Alex M. Stewart of Ailsa, Ont., was crowned oats king at the show yesterday afternoon. This made the third championship scored by Canadian grain exhibitors, who captured the highest awards on barley, field peas, and field beans.

Stewart, the newly crowned oats king, won on his sample of Alaska O. A. C. 157, a variety developed at the Ontario Agricultural college, Guelph. It weighed 47.8 pounds per bushel. In 1936 he won the reserve championship. Last year the crown was awarded to Herman Trelle of Wembley, Alberta, for the third time in succession and, according to the rules of the international, he is barred from competing in oats until 1940.

Stewart farms about 200 acres and is as prominent a beef cattle raiser as he is a seed grower.

C. Wayne Canterbury of Cantrall, Ill., won the championship in the soy bean competition with a sample of the variety known as Illini. C. E. Nickerson & Son of Beaman, Ia., were awarded the reserve title on a sample of the Mukden variety of soy beans.

The champion steer carcass, judged on the hoof, was exhibited by Lawrence Morgan and the reserve honor went to Freddie Hemphill, both of Aledo, Ill.

Nebraska Team Repeats.

The University of Nebraska, Lincoln, Neb., repeated its 1936 record when its team took first in the intercollegiate crops judging contest. Members of the winning team were Weston D. Whitwer, Ogden Riddle, and Al Moseman, who finished third, fourth and fifth in individual standings. Van S. Watson Jr. of North Carolina was top man and Roy Erwin of Oklahoma finished second.

The Nebraska team scored 4,147 points, North Carolina finishing second with 4,096, Oklahoma third with 4,086, Minnesota fourth with 4,038, and Iowa fifth with 4,021. Eleven colleges and universities competed.

Alexander Ritchie, manager of King George's farm at Windsor, England, today will start the work of picking the grand champion beef animal of the 1937 exposition.

The 1,500 4-H delegates swarmed into Chicago yesterday to receive innumerable prizes and trophies, awarded annually by packers and manufacturers who long have backed this progressive farming movement among the youth of America.

Bob Morford, 18 years old, of Amorita, Okla., and Viola Niedfeldt of Bangor, Wis., will be crowned the 1937 national achievement champions tomorrow night. Clifford L. Breeden, 18 years old, of Lafayette, Ind., and Helen Michael, 16 years old, of Eugene, Ore., will be crowned national leadership champions.

National honors also will go to Doris Sullivan of Magnum, Okla.; Evelyn H. Kern of Wadena, Minn., and Marylou Paetzhold of Portland, Okla. These three girls have been selected national cooking champions from among the forty-nine state champions arriving yesterday from the United States and Hawaii. Illinois' champion is Violet Brewer of Greenville.

FAMOUS BELLHOP BADLY BURNED AS ROBE IS IGNITED

John Murphy, famous bellhop at the Blackstone hotel, who has served Presidents and other distinguished visitors was critically burned late last night when his clothing caught fire in his home at 4502 Drexel boulevard.

He was smoking in his room and his cigaret ignited his dressing gown. He was severely burned by the time his wife, Mary, beat out the flames. Murphy was taken to the Chicago hospital. He may die, physicians said.

Murphy, who is 49 years old, became a bellboy at the Blackstone in 1911, shortly after it was opened, and has been there since. Because of his alertness in recognizing incoming guests of importance he was placed on day duty. During his long employment he has served Theodore Roosevelt, William Jennings Bryan, Anna Held, Lillian Russell, August Belmont, and other notables, according to P. W. Schimmel, night manager of the hotel.

AMERICANS FLEE AS JAPS RAIN 114 BOMBS ON CITY

Hundreds Are Killed and Hurt Near Nanking.

BULLETIN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, Nov. 29 (Monday).—(Special.)—Japan will respect China's foreign obligations on China's maritime customs revenues, but will retain control of the customs during duration of the military operations, a foreign office spokesman announced today. He indicated Japan will make written replies to the United States and Great Britain, who protested Japan's seizure of the customs revenues, which China has pledged for loans to the two countries.

(Picture on back page.)

SHANGHAI, Nov. 29.—[Monday.]—(AP)—Shanghai was cut off from telegraphic communication with the rest of China today. Japanese officials, having seized control of the Chinese telegraph and radio channels linking the metropolis with the interior, ordered service suspended.

Arrow shows city bombed by Japanese.

Shortly before this occurred incoming messages reported twenty Americans and Britons were endangered and hundreds of Chinese killed or wounded as Japanese air forces struck savagely at vital points around China's evacuated capital, Nanking.

When 114 bombs were dropped on Chinkiang, Yangtze river port 40 miles east of Nanking, the small American and British colony took refuge on the British gunboat Aphis. No foreigners were hurt.

The air raids apparently were designed to smash all avenues of escape from Nanking and Wuhu, Yangtze port 55 miles southwest of the capital, toward both of which Japanese land forces continued their steady advance.

Missionary reports from eastern Anhwei said Japanese bombers destroyed a train carrying soldiers and civilians near Suancheng, 30 miles southeast of Wuhu. Casualties were said to run into the hundreds.

STRONGER ARMY VITAL TO NATION, WOODRING REPORTS TO PRESIDENT

Washington, D. C., Nov. 28.—(AP)—Secretary of War Woodring reported today to President Roosevelt that the army was more efficient than at any time in its peace-time history but was weaker in relation to foreign armies than it was a year ago.

The reason, he said in his annual report, is that most other major powers have increased the size of their armies and have materially improved their equipment.

"I certainly do not recommend that the United States join in this feverish arms race," Secretary Woodring said, but urged, nevertheless, that, "as insurance against attack, we should further strengthen our armed forces."

"This, I believe, should be done by slightly increasing the number of officers and enlisted men and, more specifically, by accelerating our program of re-equipping our present army with the latest and best in transportation, means of communication, and weapons."

3 WALK TO DEATH FROM MOUNTAIN IN BLINDING SNOW

Trinidad, Colo., Nov. 28.—(AP)—The frozen and broken bodies of two men and a boy were brought here today from a mountain cliff over which the trio tumbled while lost in a blizzard Friday night.

Trapped in the snow when their truck stalled, they started to walk to a shelter cabin atop Mesa de Mayo, 100 miles east of here. Searchers found tracks indicating they struggled to within 200 yards of the cabin before the storm blotted out their vision and sent them wandering over the precipice.

The victims were Carroll Martin Lewis, 41 years old, his brother, James Le Grande Lewis, 29, and James Robert Griffith, 8.

JAPANESE ANGER AT RUSSIA GROWS; PROTEST 'SLURS'

Charge Doctors Refused to Treat Consuls.

The foreign office announced a strong protest to Moscow against an alleged series of offenses against the Japanese consulate at Vladivostok.

The newspaper Asahi reported the soviet government was blocking renewal of the Russo-Japanese fisheries agreement, long a sore spot in relations of the two powers.

The foreign office asserted soviet physicians refused to attend the Japanese consul and vice consul at Vladivostok when they were suffering from fever and that soviet authorities refused to vise the passport of a vice consul who was to have gone from Japan to replace one of the sick men.

The protest also charged Russian authorities had refused to furnish the consulate with pure water and that this was a cause of the illness.

The Asahi said the Moscow government was evading conclusion of a new fisheries agreement by presenting terms which Japan cannot accept. The old agreement, covering rights Japan acquired by the 1905 treaty of Portsmouth to fish in Siberian territorial waters, expires at the end of this year. It was renewed late in 1936 for one year, suspending a bitter quarrel over renewal terms.

Japanese leaders have threatened "independent action" to conserve their fishing rights if Moscow will not renew existing agreements.

Hits World Diplomacy.

MOSCOW, Nov. 28.—(AP)—Foreign Commissar Maxim Litvinov tonight drew a satiric picture of international diplomacy dealing with "three states which loudly proclaim disregard of all international law."

He charged Germany and Italy with "unceremonious intervention" in Spain and Japan with doing in China "everything which until now has been called war."

Speaking at a Leningrad political rally, Litvinov said the three states assert their "aggressive policy with the utmost clarity."

"Nevertheless there are states which do not believe their statements and use all their diplomacy in obtaining confirmations," he said. "They do not cease addressing the aggressors with inquiries like this:

"'You declared that you do not recognize international treaties and you even really violate them. You reject collaboration with us. We wish to know whether we have understood you correctly. Please be so kind as to confirm this precisely.'"

Says Inquiries Go On.

Litvinov said that receipt of such confirmation did not halt further inquiries, oral and written, but that the aggressors "unfortunately do not confine themselves to sending written and oral confirmations."

"The aggressive countries do not have enough guts," Litvinov said. "By engaging in war they have so weakened their economic resources and weakened themselves internally that they cannot engage in a long serious war.

"In their future aggressions they will be forced to seek the line of least resistance. We know and they know this line of least resistance will not be found on our borders."

FRENCH FASCIST CHIEF DISOWNS PLOTTERS' GROUP

PARIS, Nov. 28.—(AP)—Col. François de la Rocque's rightist French Social party today repudiated the secret committee for revolutionary action accused by the French government of plotting a dictatorship under a restored monarchy. The party concluded its national congress at Lyons.

A manifesto, declaring the party's determination to take power with votes, expressed readiness "to rise victoriously if necessary against any attempts by parties of revolution seeking to impose their dictatorship by violence."

Claims Party Is Strongest.

The congress gave new impetus to the party which has been under a cloud since the press implied members were involved in the revolutionary committee uncovered in a series of nation-wide raids.

Several thousand followers cheered as De la Rocque declared his political party was the strongest in France. De la Rocque is under an indictment charging that his party is a reconstruction of the banned Fascist Croix de Feu [Cross of Fire].

Veterans Take New Oath.

The national council of the confederation of veterans and victims of war at the same time in Paris took an oath for its 3,800,000 members "to defend the republic against any attempt at disorder or revolution."

Inspectors of the Surete Nationale [secret police] assigned to the revolutionary committee inquiry said a secret code was disclosing others involved and that new raids were imminent.

CAR SKIDS INTO POST; DRIVER DIES.

40 MILLION OIL HEIRESS TO WED HORSEMAN TODAY

New York, Nov. 28.—[Special.]—A young Lochinvar who came out of the west—as far west, anyhow, as New Jersey—tomorrow will become the husband of Helen Wolcott Bedford, 40 million dollar Standard Oil heiress and the most noted equestrienne of the fashionable colony at Westport, Conn.

Although the 24 year old heiress comes from a long line of Episcopalians, a Catholic priest will unite her in marriage with Arthur McCashin, Irish born polo player, horse judge, and society steeplechase rider. The ceremony will take place at Banrock, the extensive Bedford estate in the Greens Farms section of Westport.

It was their mutual interest in horses that inspired the romance of the trim horsewoman and her 30 year old fiancé. She was mistress of fox hounds last year for the Fairfield County Hunt club and has won countless medals and trophies at horse shows. Last winter she accompanied her father, Frederick T. Bedford, on a three month big game hunt in the African jungles.

McCashin, a chemist, has won many honors for his horsemanship. He is a son of Mrs. McCashin and the late James McCashin of Morristown, N. J. His grandfather was Hugh Blaney, Irish philanthropist.

MOROS BEAT OFF PHILIPPINE ARMY ATTACKS ON FORT

MANILA, Nov. 29.—[Monday.]—(AP)—A Philippine army detachment fought a losing battle today against Moro outlaws entrenched in a cotta, or earthen fortress, near Dansalan, Lanao province.

One soldier was killed and nine injured but the troops in a two-day attack with mortars, mountain guns and rifles failed to dislodge the undisclosed number of native defenders.

The attack was a part of the army's new campaign to destroy all cottas in Moroland.

Singling out the fortress near Dansalan, the soldiers advanced yesterday morning but were held off and four of them wounded. In a renewal of the attack today five were injured, one fatally.

Child, 8, Dies Suddenly of Mysterious Ailment

Michael Clohisy, 8 years old, 6507 Newgard avenue, son of Vincent Clohisy, an attorney for the Hartford Accident and Indemnity company, died suddenly at his home last night. The boy complained of an irritation in his throat when he retired at 9 p. m. His breathing then became difficult and he died before Dr. Thomas O'Donoghue, 5458 Broadway, who was summoned, could arrive. The cause of death was not discovered and the coroner's office will make an investigation today.

U. S. TO END BOMB CASES AGAINST 41 MINERS TODAY

Prepares to Fight Charge of John L. Lewis Frameup

Springfield, Ill., Nov. 28.—[Special.]—Government prosecutors today said they plan to complete their cases tomorrow against 41 defendants charged with a series of bombings in the internecine warfare of Illinois coal miners that raged from 1932 to 1935.

The trial, which began on Nov. 15, is being held here in federal court. The defendants are or were members or officers of the Progressive Miners of America, who rebelled against the leadership of John L. Lewis, head of the United Mine Workers and the Committee for Industrial Organization. The technical charge is conspiracy to obstruct interstate trafic [in coal] and to obstruct the mails.

The government charged that 45 bombings were aimed at mines employing members of Lewis' union or railroads hauling coal from mines manned by United Mine Workers. So far the government has called 182 witnesses to testify to the vandalism attributed to the Progressive Miners, who are now affiliated with the American Federation of Labor. The United Miners are part of Lewis' C. I. O.

Long Defense Expected.

The defense of the 41 Progressives is expected to take at least ten days and to be built around the assertion that the prosecution is a "frame-up" by Lewis.

The vandalism is not denied, but the defendants so far have disclaimed responsibility. Recently Joseph Ozanic, president of the Progressives' union, but not a defendant, said:

"Twenty-one members of our organization have been killed in this civil war started by John L. Lewis. They were killed for opposing the dictatorial policies of the man who is trying to ruin the American Federation of Labor."

See Theory of Defense.

In that statement the government prosecutors saw a possible theory of the defense: That whatever was done was in self-defense by the Progressives, who, revolting against tyranny, saw their lives and livelihood at stake in the struggle.

United States Attorney Howard L. Doyle of the southern district of Illinois is in general supervision of the trial, which is being conducted by the government through four assistant United States attorneys general.

The history of the bloodshed goes back to the refusal of a faction of Lewis' union to accept his leadership in 1932 in agreeing to a wage reduction from a basic pay of $6.10 a day to $5.

Stolen Ballot Boxes.

The whole controversy hinged on an election in which Lewis and his aids said that several of the ballot boxes had been stolen and therefore the result could not be proclaimed. A previous referendum had resulted in a refusal by the miners to accept the wage cut, and it was claimed by the men who formed the Progressives that the second election would have shown the same result.

On Aug. 10, 1932, Lewis, as head of the miners' international union, signed the $5 a day wage agreement for the Illinois miners. He said that an emergency existed, caused by the theft of the ballots and the need for a settlement of the wage problem.

The opposition group, as explained recently by President Ozanic, declared that Lewis betrayed them by his policy of negotiating separate wage agreements for miners of various states and permitting miners of one state to supply the market while miners of neighboring states were on strike.

10,000 Miners Imported.

"Lewis imported 10,000 miners into Illinois at that time," said Ozanic, "to work the Illinois mines."

Among the first mines to resume operation after Lewis signed the $5 wage agreement were those in Franklin county. Miners in the vicinity of Taylorville, in Christian county, organized a march by 15,000 men to Franklin county's mines. Their marching song went something like this:

John L. Lewis blew the whistle;
John H. Walker rang the bell;
Fox Hughes stole the ballots,
And the miners' wages went to hell.

Sheriff Browning Robinson of Franklin county met the miners at Mulkeytown with a large assemblage of deputies and forced the 15,000 to turn back. That was on Aug. 24, 1932. They were a day or two straggling home and many were left behind in hospitals.

Vote to Revolt.

On Sept. 2, 1932, at Gillespie, the anti-Lewis group of miners voted to divorce themselves from the United Mine Workers and to form the Progressive union. Claude Pearcy, a Gillespie miner, was elected temporary president. They claimed to represent 75 per cent of the miners of Illinois.

Lewis, who was shortly to take active charge of the Illinois division of the United Miners when John H. Walker, state president, resigned, said the Progressives would be ignored. He went ahead signing agreements with mine owners.

The Progressives began negotiating their own wage agreements with individual mine owners and clashes between members of the rival unions were frequent. The National Guard was called out to quell many riots.

First Bombings in Taylorville.

The first bombings occurred in Taylorville. A building occupied by the United miners was wrecked and another blast was directed against the plant of the Daily Breeze, a newspaper which urged the acceptance of the $5 wage scale. Several homes of miners also were targets of bombers.

On Dec. 17, 1932, a trestle of the Chicago and Illinois Midland railroad three miles west of Sicily in Christian county was blown up by two dynamite charges. By January four had been killed, and forty wounded in twelve bombings. A battle occurred between 300 armed miners of the rival unions. Two hundred arrests were made. Four bombs were thrown in Taylorville early on Jan. 8.

Twenty-two miners were indicted for murder in Christian county early in 1933. In a siege of a mine at Harrisburg a little later, 16 men were wounded. Early in 1934 four masked men overpowered a guard at the Capitol mine in Springfield and placed six charges of dynamite in a fan house, imperiling the lives of 360 miners at work below.

Twenty Coal Cars Destroyed.

On Aug. 22, 1934, a Chicago and Illinois Midland train was blown up near here and twenty coal cars were destroyed. Several hundred yards of roadbed were torn up, but no one was injured.

Again on Oct. 2, 1934, an Illinois Central train was dynamited near Mount Pulaski and on the following Dec. 22 another train was dynamited near here. The war between the two unions by that time had taken a toll of 15 lives, millions of dollars in property damage and huge losses in pay.

It was estimated that more than 200 dynamitings occurred in all, although the government is concerned only with 45 which affected five railroads.

Passenger Train Saved.

In the trial Thomas Guy, a Springfield railroad policeman, testified he found 113 sticks of dynamite between the tracks of the Midland road near Springfield five minutes before a passenger train was due. He said he disconnected a switch and flagged the passenger train 200 feet from the explosives.

Another railroad official testified that bombings were so frequent it was necessary to run light locomotives ahead of passenger trains and to reduce speed on all trains in the coal region as life saving measures.

Lewis, meanwhile, had obtained through the National Recovery administration the checkoff system, under which the employers deducted union dues from the miners' pay. Eventually, when the coal code was in operation, the Progressives negotiated the checkoff system with mine owners employing their men, and both sides had considerable funds available for their strife.

Bombings Stop in 1935.

United States Attorney Doyle said the federal department of justice stepped into Illinois early in 1935 and that thereafter there were no bombings. The evidence obtained by the G-men resulted in the indictments in the present case. The state, meantime, has obtained only two convictions in the long series of bombings.

The maximum penalty for conviction in the present case is 2 years imprisonment on each count or a possible 4 years for any convicted on both charges of conspiracy to obstruct the mails and interstate trafic. The defense is expected to begin presenting its evidence Tuesday.

(Picture on Back Page.)

Christmas sales of toys are surpassing the records of any year since 1929, heads of several Chicago department stores said yesterday. Christmas shopping, which began a week early, has continued in increasing volume, according to reports, and as usual both adults and children are thronging the various realms of Santa Claus.

INJURIES FATAL TO WORKMAN.

Christian Olsen, 48 years old, 1012 North Whipple street, died in the Lutheran Memorial hospital yesterday of complications that developed after he was injured Friday in the plant of the Anton Clemetson company, desk manufacturers, at 3134 Chicago avenue.

If you could see your intestines, you wouldn't take a cathartic!

The purpose of most cathartics is to over-stimulate your intestines. Sometimes you feel weakened afterwards. In cases of common constipation, isn't it better to KEEP regular with a wholesome, natural food like Kellogg's All-Bran?

All-Bran WORKS—but so differently from medicines. It gives your intestines TWO things they need. First, All-Bran supplies "bulk"—it absorbs water and softens like a sponge. This water-softened mass aids elimination. And second, the intestinal-tonic vitamin "B"—bran is a good source of it! This is the vitamin that tones your intestinal tract and promotes elimination. These things are good for you. They work WITH Nature, not against her.

Kellogg's All-Bran is a crunchy, toasted cereal. Eat it with milk or cream and fruits. Makes grand muffins, too. But however you eat it, use it regularly. Follow this Daily Routine: eat two tablespoons of All-Bran and drink plenty of water. If you do this every day you can avoid common constipation and cathartics, too! Every grocer sells All-Bran. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

ACCIDENT HAZARD GROWING
AAA TESTS SAFETY MEASURES

A car even momentarily out of control is a menace to driver, passengers, other motorists and bystanders, American Automobile Association in Official Test No. 3143 proved how the menace of slippery roads can be minimized by the use of good Tire Chains.

A car equipped with two Weed American Bar-Reinforced Tire Chains can be stopped in 45.8% less distance than the same car without chains. With the chains on all four tires, the car stopped in 66.8% less distance than without chains.

In addition to cutting down stopping distance, good Tire Chains prevent those sudden side skids which often happen unexpectedly. Skidding on slippery roads accounts for more accidents than other mechanical defects. This was disclosed by the Travelers Insurance Company in analysis of 882,000 accidents in which 36,000 persons were killed, 954,000 injured in one year.

SMOKE Soothing SMOKE

because your SMOKE ZONE IS YOUR COLDS ZONE!

Cold or no cold—it's only common-sense to avoid smoke that irritates the sensitive lining of your nose and throat.

Spud smoke is soothing smoke. While the fine tobaccos in these cigarettes scarcely taste of menthol, Spud smoke actually carries soothing beneficial menthol vapor to the sensitive nose and throat passages.

For a clear head, without congestion and a healthy throat, without irritation, switch to Spud—and accept no substitute.

WARNING: There is no other cigarette like Spud. The Spud process and formula is patented and cannot be legally duplicated. Spuds do not overshadow the tobacco taste with menthol; they contain just the right amount to give you the full soothing benefit in the Smoke Zone.

More than DOUBLE the Safe Mileage . . .

● Because they stop forward, backward or side skids, there's extra safety in WEED American Bar-Reinforced Tire Chains. There's double mileage, too. Those big reinforcing bars or lugs provide twice the metal to wear through. Beside that, the metal—"Weedalloy"—is especially tough and wear-resisting. Side chains are electric-welded and case hardened to resist wear on ruts and curbs. Patented Lever-Lock End Hooks are easy-to-use and sure holding.

Extra safety—more than double safe mileage—that's why WEED Americans are called "The Best Buy In Tire Chains." At better accessory stores, garages, service stations.

ASSASSIN FIRES FOUR BULLETS AT EGYPT'S PREMIER

Nahas Pasha Unhurt; Nab Fascist Attacker.

Premier Nahas Pasha.

Izzedine Abdel Khader, who was wearing the uniform of the Green Shirts, a small group with Fascist tendencies, was arrested by police following the premier's auto and charged with the attempt. Khader is 26 years old and was understood to be a government clerk.

The Green Shirts recently joined forces with the parties opposing Nahas Pasha's dominant Wafd, or nationalist party. Nahas Pasha had charged the Green Shirts were in the pay of a foreign power.

One Shot Pierces Car.

The premier's car was fired on about 8:30 p. m. as he was motoring from his home in Heliopolis to Shubra, both Cairo suburbs, to attend a reception. Three shots were wide; one bullet passed through the car, but struck no one.

News of the attempt spreading through Cairo brought on disorders. Bands of infuriated government supporters armed with sticks paraded the streets and attacked offices of opposition newspapers.

Several persons were injured in the disturbances. Police charged a mob that attacked a villa in the heart of Cairo where opposition leader Mohammed Mahmoud Pasha was with a small band of supporters. The mob was dispersed and guards posted about the city.

Clamp On Censorship.

The government immediately clamped censorship on newspapers forbidding them to publish reports of the attempted assassination. The attack was the culmination of a week's campaign by the opposition press charging the premier with adopting dictatorial tactics.

Nahas Pasha, who is 58 years old, has waged a long fight for Egyptian independence, which was granted formally last year in a treaty with Great Britain. However, he was deported in 1921 for refusing to obey British military authorities and spent 18 months on the Seychelles Islands. He has been premier and minister of interior since May 10, 1936.

Weeks of bitter political agitation between Nahas Pasha and the popular young King Farouk broke out into six days of rioting in October.

Oct. 26 the premier announced the king had convinced him that the appointment of the anti-Wafdist Ali Maher as political adviser to the king was not connected with party politics.

PROSECUTOR OF LAKE COUNTY AND NURSE TO WED CHRISTMAS DAY

A romance which began three years ago when State's Attorney Charles E. Mason of Lake county was near death from influenza and Nurse Doris M. Hawk of the Victory Memorial hospital, Waukegan, was sent to attend him, will culminate Christmas day in their marriage. This was learned Saturday when they applied for a license in Waukegan.

Doris M. Hawk.

The ceremony will take place in the bride's home, 912 North Lewis avenue, Waukegan, and after a short honeymoon they will make their home in Gurnee.

Mr. Mason, who is serving his second term as state's attorney of Lake county, lives at 1425 North avenue, Waukegan. He has two sons by a previous marriage.

VOTERS' LEAGUE IS REORGANIZED; SEEK NEW FUNDS

Adlai Stevenson Named as President.

The Legislative Voters' League of Illinois announced yesterday that its reorganization, in progress for several months, has been completed.

Adlai E. Stevenson of the law firm of Sidley, McPherson, Austin & Burgess was elected president and eleven new directors were added to thirteen holdover members of the board. Lawrence Williams was reelected treasurer and Gardner Brown was chosen secretary to succeed Henry A. Gardner. Shelby M. Singleton continued as executive secretary.

The new directors, besides Brown, are John D. Ames, Philip D. Block Jr., Carleton Block, William M. Collins Jr., C. Daggett Harvey, Denison B. Hull, Whipple Jacobs, Marshall G. Sampsell and Frank M. Whiston, all of Chicago, and Logan Hay of Springfield.

Need More Financing.

The necessity for additional financing for the league was emphasized in a public statement.

"Reorganization," it read, "was made necessary by the death early this year of Paul Steinbrecher, who had served as president for six years, and by the loss of several other directors who had been active for years in the league's work.

"Difficulty encountered during the depression in raising the money required to conduct the league's activities led to a situation last spring where discontinuance of its work appeared unavoidable."

Wider Support Sought.

In reference to the drive for funds, President Stevenson said:

"In response to the many protests throughout the state against discontinuance of the work of the league, its directors have decided to do their utmost to continue that work. To do it effectively the league must have substantial support from a larger number of individuals and business concerns than it has had in recent years."

Dr. George F. Zook, president of the American Council on Education, is chairman of the conference, and C. S. Marsh, vice president of the American Council on Education, is executive secretary.

GUTHRIE QUITS; LOOSES PARTING BLAST AT CHURCH

New York, Nov. 28.—(AP)—The Rev. Dr. William Norman Guthrie, whose exhibition of gauzy clad dancers from his pulpit in 1920 startled the ecclesiastical world and brought down the wrath of his Protestant Episcopal bishop, retired today after twenty-six years as rector of historic St. Mark's-in-the-Bouwerie. He is going to do some writing.

Dr. Guthrie, 68 years old, self-termed church radical whose unorthodox services frequently brought him into bitter conflict with Bishop William T. Manning, had a simple explanation for the presentation of dancers, politicians, poets, actors, American Indians, and Hindus to his congregation.

He explained to his parishioners after today's sermon that he was retiring because he could not carry the financial burden of a property ruined by the depression and other elements.

In his sermon today he characterized the Protestant Episcopal prayer book as "a masterpiece of obsolete devotion." "I have always found the Episcopal laws intolerable," he said. "The Episcopal church was founded by gentlemen for gentlemen, and you can break every law of the church if you know how."

Wandering Kitten Rises to Fame at Cat Show

White Plains, N. Y., Nov. 28.—[Special.]—A lost kitten found wandering in a Yonkers railroad station several years ago, rose to fame at the annual show of the Westchester County Cat club here today. MEAT AND THE FARMER

No. 1 Packingtown

By CALEB

THE Union Stock Yards—the world's largest hotel for animals—occupies one-half of a mile square area in the heart of Chicago's south side. The other half of that square mile, plus a few overflow blocks into which packers have bulged, is Packingtown, U. S. A.

Packingtown is the greatest meat processing center of the world. It includes the greatest plants of the greatest packers in the world, forty-three separate plants in all.

Packingtown is a two-way pass for meat and money.

It pays the farmers and ranchers of the vast country around us a million dollars a day for their meat-producing animals. In turn, it distributes meats over a wide area and collects money, which it again exchanges for animals.

A few generations ago, the meat packer was generally a warehouseman who packed and sold on commission. Before the era of modern packing, the stock raiser often found no market—or slaughtered animals for the value of hides and tallow alone.

Thirty years or so ago, the farmer's problem of disposing of live stock was still a serious one. Markets were scattered, transportation uncertain, and prices a puzzle. But today, Bob Billings in Utah, Harry Hartzell in Oklahoma, or John Jennings in Minnesota has never to worry about how he will dispose of what he produces. The packers maintain a year-around market and are ready every business day of the year to buy for cash the meat-producing animals the farmer will sell.

Yet, it is said no live stock producer has ever failed to receive payment for any of the hundreds of millions of animals sent to Chicago Packingtown—depressions, failures, bankruptcies, catastrophes notwithstanding. In about twenty billion dollars of volume, that's a record for all industry to behold!

Twelve times in the last thirteen years the largest single source of cash income to the farmer has been meat animals. In 1936 they brought him over two billion dollars—about 28 per cent of his total cash income.

Economists say that the farmer gets a higher percentage of the consumer's expenditure for products the packers handle than for any of the other things he produces—bespeaking the economy of packers' operations.

Our local Packingtown is a boon to the meat producer, just as it is a constructive servant of the public, and a premier asset to the city of Chicago.

MIXUP OF COURT RECORDS FREES BOY, 18, TO KILL

Co-ordination Might Have Prevented Murder.

Paul Reeder, 18 years old, might not have been free to kill Raymond Sedlacek, 20 years old, in a holdup attempt last Wednesday night if a system for exchanging information between the Juvenile and Boys' court had functioned properly, an examination of court records disclosed yesterday.

The youth, granted a conditional release from St. Charles reformatory last April 1, was under Juvenile court supervision when he was arraigned before Judge Lambert K. Hayes in the Boys' court on Sept. 1 for attempting to break into a home in the Cragin district. No Juvenile court worker was present at the hearing, and Judge Hayes, unaware of the boy's damaging juvenile record for incorrigibility and petty theft, reduced the charge to disorderly conduct and placed him on six months' probation.

Release Is Made Final.

Several weeks later Judge Frank H. Bicek of the Juvenile court, similarly unaware of the Boys' court proceedings and informed that the youth had left the city to live with relatives in Troy, Idaho, suspended the supervisory period, thus making the conditional release final. He declared this was done after letters had been received from the youth by his foster parents, Paul and Mada Buckler, 2612 North Moody avenue, indicating he was "doing well."

"Had a report been made to us, as is the usual custom," he said, "we would have had a court worker at the hearing to make recommendations calculated to produce a sterner punishment." Investigators pointed out that had Judge Hayes been told of the juvenile record, Reeder might now have been in jail for safekeeping instead of for arraignment on the murder charge Dec. 14, three days after his nineteenth birthday.

Crime Starts from Truancy.

Reeder's predicament climaxes an eight year struggle by his foster parents and Judge Bicek to curb his criminal inclinations. From truancy he advanced to stealing bicycles, and in March, 1932, was sent to the reformatory. Paroled in March, 1934, he failed at a "second chance" and was returned in December of that year.

After his release last April—once more in response to a plea for another chance—he was seized in the house breaking attempt, placed on probation, and sent to his relatives. A month later, shortly after he was released from Juvenile court supervision, he ran away, bought a cheap pistol, and returned home.

He told the police he tried to rob Sedlacek and the latter's mother, Mrs. Rose Sedlacek, 48, in their grocery at 1121 Madison street, Oak Park, because he "was getting tired of kid stuff like stealing bicycles." Mrs. Sedlacek was seriously wounded.

MERCURY PLUNGE TO FIVE ABOVE IS FORECAST TODAY

A cold wave from the northwest which swept two inches of snow into Chicago yesterday is expected to keep temperatures far below normal today and tomorrow. The forecast indicated that it would be 5 above zero early today.

The snow, underlaid by a sheet of ice that formed when the cold followed rains of Saturday evening made streets and roads slippery. Motorists were warned to drive with caution. The fall was heavy in downstate Illinois and in Wisconsin.

Extreme cold was general in states west and northwest of Illinois, while abnormally high temperatures were registered in the east. A windstorm caused heavy damage in western Pennsylvania. At Irwin, near Pittsburgh, twenty homes were damaged. The roof of a tobacco warehouse at Mount Sterling, Ky., was carried away. Other buildings in the vicinity were unroofed and damage was estimated at $100,000.

Railroads announced that their schedules had not been disrupted by the cold. Among the noted arrivals in Chicago yesterday were five stars of the stage and opera. They were Ruth Gordon, Dennis King, Paul Lukas, and Sam Jaffe, all members of a show opening tonight in the loop, and Lawrence Tibbett, baritone.

Hunt Candy Store Bandit After Two Robberies

A robber who held up two candy stores Saturday night, obtaining $109, was being sought yesterday by the Sheffield avenue police. In the Andes store, 3160 Lincoln avenue, he obtained $52, and at De Met's, 613 Diversey parkway, $57.

'MOVING CLIFF' QUIET, BUT NEW SLIDE IS FEARED

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 28.—(AP)—All was quiet today on Elysian park's "moving mountain," a 350 foot high bluff that pitched an avalanche of 1,000,000 tons of earth across Riverside drive and into the Los Angeles river bed late Friday night.

Geologists expressed belief the earthquake fault within the hill would become active again and perhaps cause another upheaval. With the slide mass covering Riverside drive, there was little or no immediate danger to life or property.

Riverside drive will have to be abandoned in the slide area until such time as the gaping hole in the side of the bluff is terraced.

Geologists, engineers and power, water and park officials of Los Angeles will meet tomorrow to map the city's plans concerning the hill.

BOAT FACILITIES IN LINCOLN PARK LAGOON SAVED

No More Filling for New Drives Planned.

Members of the Lincoln Park Boat club were assured yesterday by Robert J. Dunham, president of the Chicago park district, that at least for the present, the lagoon in Lincoln park will not be filled in north of the lake inlet near Eugenie street. Members were fearful that plans for new drives in the park contemplated filling in the lagoon to Fullerton avenue, necessitating the disbanding of the club.

The lagoon south of the inlet has been filled in and will be used for laying two 50 foot pavements, extending Lake Shore drive from North avenue to meet an extension of La Salle street. The pavements, part of a program of a $4,500,000 Works Progress administration allotment for the park district, will be started immediately.

Fears Dissolution of Club.

Commodore Justus A. Benson of the boat club said that the organization uses the lagoon exclusively and would discontinue as a club if the lagoon were filled to Fullerton avenue. The club has been in existence for more than forty years and has nearly 200 members.

The commodore said that besides providing recreation for the members and amusement for thousands of others, the lagoon adds to the beauty of the park. The club is a rowing group and holds scull races in the lagoon each year with other organizations.

He said the present fill does not interfere with the club activities, and he was hopeful that any future plans for additional widening could be made without abandoning the lagoon.

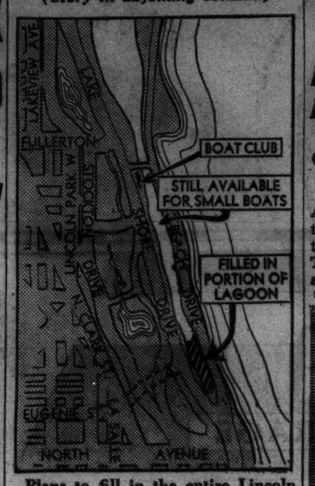
Original Plans Changed.

Mr. Dunham said that the original plans for filling in the whole lagoon were made more than a year ago and have been changed since that time. He asserted that if in the future it should become necessary to fill in the lagoon other facilities would be found for the club.

Mr. Dunham announced that besides the construction of the La Salle street extension from Stockton drive to Lake Shore drive, the park drive east of the lagoon will be widened from its present 24 foot width to 40 feet. Another pavement will also be started immediately parallel with Lake Shore drive between Belmont avenue and Grace street. This will give Lake Shore drive three roadways between those two streets.

Save Boat Space

(Story in adjoining column.)



Plans to fill in the entire Lincoln park lagoon have been abandoned. The proposed new drive will have connecting links with Beach drive and Lake Shore drive, leaving the northern portion of the lagoon for boats. Dotted lines mark proposed extension of La Salle street.

FIRST COMPLETE BELT LINE EASES DECATUR TRAFIC

Full Benefit Lacking, Due to Poor Markings.

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Decatur, Ill., Nov. 28.—[Special.]—A complete belt route, said to be the first in Illinois, now encircles this city with a population of 57,150. The route was finished a few weeks ago by the state building slightly more than a mile of forty foot slab, much of the distance on a bluff shore of Lake Decatur.

The primary purpose of a belt route is to remove through trafic from congested business districts. Henry H. Bolz, secretary of the Decatur Chamber of Commerce, pointed out this afternoon that, due to lack of proper marking, tourists in U. S. 36 and U. S. 51, the main crossroads here, still are traversing the downdown area instead of taking the available by-pass around the city.

Faults Realized Seven Years Ago.

Seven years ago the chamber of commerce realized that tourist trafic was detrimental rather than advantageous to a crowded shopping district. In 1930 a committee approved plans for highway markers to route tourists around the city, with optional routes marked through the business district.

State highway markers now follow the by-pass, but the U. S. 36 and U. S. 51 shields lead through the heart of the city.

"We have had no reason to regret our support for the belt line," said J. J. Maloney, president of the chamber of commerce. "We felt then and still believe that the belt should make the Decatur business district a more convenient place for shopping.

"Through trafic will find it more expeditious and safer to use the by-pass. And with this travel removed from our business district, it will be safer for local trafic, parkers, and pedestrians in the downtown area."

Survey Shows Little Is Lost.

A survey by Prof. Ben H. Petty of Purdue university revealed that only 14 per cent of the out of state automobiles using U. S. 52 paused long enough in passing through Lafayette, Ind., to make a purchase.

Robert Kingery, manager of the Chicago Regional Planning association, looked at the by-pass problem from the viewpoint of public officials as well as that of an engineer.

"The protest of rooming house, hotel, and garage proprietors has been a strong influence in retarding the development of belt routes," said Kingery. "The man whose pocket book will be touched by a change in the route of highway markers voices protests that reach public officials. Shoppers and through travelers who would benefit by the new routing do not have such a loud voice. Decatur is to be congratulated upon its enlightened stand."

NEW YORK MAYOR PRAISES CHICAGO PARKING SYSTEM

New York, Nov. 28.—[Special.]—Viewing parking as the key obstacle to a solution of the city's trafic problems, Mayor F. H. La Guardia announced today a broad program to provide additional parking space in buildings and on vacant lots in congested areas.

"New York City should be able to handle that problem as Chicago does," said the mayor, "by providing for parking inside of buildings. It's about time that we got rid of this silly law that prohibits the parking of cars in residential buildings. I don't see why new apartments cannot be built with parking space underneath."

11 SUFFER BURNS WHEN NEW GAS WELL EXPLODES

Charleston, W. Va., Nov. 28.—(AP)—A new 10,000,000 foot gas well burst into roaring flames today, sending 11 men to hospitals with burns. All are expected to recover.

The explosion occurred in the heart of the Kanawha valley gas field on the H. A. Shirkey farm, near Sissonville, while a dozen workmen were engaged in pulling out tools.

The blazing gas created a giant torch reaching far up the 87 foot steel derrick. Its roar could be heard a mile away and at night fell the flames could be seen from hilltops for miles.

WRITERS of books on journalism confine themselves almost exclusively to description and comment on the editorial department with perhaps a sneering reference to advertising as an unaristocratic adjunct given over to the profit motive.
For the mechanical marvels which make the newspaper possible, and hence the profits on the book about the newspaper, they have not a word. Their superficial studies have not extended that far.
The fact remains that producing a great newspaper rivals in scientific wonders the operations of industries exclusively manufacturing.
For some years the Tribune has been conducting visitors through its plant, showing them its various functions. These plant tours have never failed to bring expressions of surprise and wonder. They make clear that the real story of the making of a newspaper is not generally known.
The Tribune now proposes to extend its plant tour service.
To explain to readers the operations required to produce its circulation of more than 825,000 daily and in excess of 1,000,000 Sunday, the Tribune will print a series of advertisments of which this is

How You Get Your Tribune

Forty, thirty and perhaps twenty years ago, editors made up the newspaper and had it printed on a press, perhaps in a loft, perhaps in a basement.

The newspaper was compelled to be in the central section of the city in which street car lines, telephones and other communications, including the mail, alone were accessible. As downtown rents soared, newspapers built skyscrapers to eke out their revenues.

When Chicago Tribune circulation began its great expansion in the second decade of this century, it was perceived that these advantages were insufficient.

The Tribune building at Dearborn and Madison streets could not be expanded. The streets converging on the plant could no longer accommodate the trucks bringing rolls of newsprint paper nor the wagons carrying away the printed newspapers.

First Move Made in 1915

A first partial move came in 1915 when the Tribune located its color and rotogravure presses on East Ontario street. This facilitated production but moving these color sections to the main plant to be assembled with the other sections of the Sunday Tribune increased congestion on the streets.

The Tribune decided to move its main plant out of the Loop. It looked around for a new site.

The requirements were land accessible to railroad and water transportation for raw materials, and uncongested thoroughfares for delivery of newspapers to readers.

The new site was chosen because it abutted on the North Western railroad, and because trucks would be able to use the lower levels of Michigan avenue and Wacker drive to take newspapers south and west. Further, they would be able to pass east and west under Michigan avenue by way of Austin (now Hubbard) and Illinois streets, and could go north over the unused streets of Streeterville.

An old malthouse nearby was rented as a garage for the Tribune fleet of trucks.

New Site Promotes Economy

As the Michigan avenue bridge had not been finished it was impossible to foretell the development of North Michigan avenue. Accordingly construction of the new Tribune plant was begun in 1919 on the east end of the initial tract acquired, leaving the future to decide how the Michigan avenue front should be developed.

The initial tract consisted of the south half of the block bounded by Michigan avenue, St. Clair, Illinois and Hubbard streets. In 1923 the north half of the block was acquired.

It was hard for the Tribune to move from its place of business which it had occupied so long, but by 1923 everything but the accounting, advertising and public service offices had been transferred to the north side.

Later, warehouses on the Chicago river were acquired to receive paper shipped by rail and water from the Tribune mill. The rolls of paper at first were transported from the warehouses to the plant by truck. They now move by tunnel.

As indicated by the map, the convenient proximity of Tribune buildings promotes economy and saves road use.

By moving, the Tribune took out of the Loop's congested trafic area 37 daily truckloads of newsprint paper and 300 daily wagonloads of newspapers.

Loop Trafic Cut by 2,000,000 Loads

With Tribune circulation now practically double what it was when the new plant was built the Loop has been relieved of a trafic totaling over 2,000,000 truck and wagon loads of paper and newspapers—a tremendous volume that would have seriously interfered with Chicago's use of its central business and shopping district.

And by locating its new plant on a strategic site the Tribune has had elbow room in which to expand and to put into effect the methods which make possible the production of a circulation in excess of 825,000 daily and over 1,000,000 Sunday.

FIND PATRONAGE KEY TO NEBRASKA DAM SITE STRIFE

Litigation May Salvage a Portion of Waste.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Grand Island, Neb., Nov. 28.—[Special.]—Strife between the major PWA power-irrigation projects on the Platte river in Nebraska, and difficulty in getting cities with municipally owned plants to sign contracts for PWA electric energy not yet being produced, are elements in the controversy over Nebraska's proposed little TVA.

Antagonism is strong between the Sutherland project and the Tri-County project, and there are charges of patronage-politics. The Columbus project on the Loup river is a power enterprise only.

The Sutherland and Columbus projects engaged Arthur Mullen, Roosevelt floor leader at the 1932 Chicago convention, to present their case at Washington. They got early action. Work on the Sutherland project started in August, 1934. Columbus got its first allotment about the same time.

Norris Pet Comes Into Funds.

The Tri-County project, with headquarters at Hastings, had been languishing in the background. It was a pet of Senator George Norris, regarded as the godfather of TVA and after whom Norris dam was named. At first PWA cast cold eyes on Tri-County. It seemed to have been given thumbs down by PWA engineers. But as Mullen slipped in influence, Tri-County prospects went up.

Sutherland promoters said Tri-County would cause a great glut of power—Sutherland and Columbus themselves would produce energy far above present total market consumption in the area.

In 1935 $10,000,000 was allotted to Tri-County, the cost of the project being estimated at 30 to 33 million dollars. Tri-County's allotment was 45 per cent grant or gift and 55 per cent loan. Sutherland and Columbus had been given 30 per cent gifts and 70 per cent loans. This difference caused some huffiness.

Litigation Ties Up Project.

Last August Tri-County was allotted $20,096,000 more, making a total of $30,096,000, which Engineer George E. Johnson estimates will suffice to complete the job. There has been considerable litigation, however.

Privately owned utilities obtained an injunction in the District of Columbia court against the building of the Tri-County's hydroelectric plants and the grid system proposed by the district. This injunction still stands. Another court hearing has been set for March.

Commenting on the little TVA venture in Nebraska, A. F. Buechler, who recently resigned from the Sutherland project board, said the outcome is doubtful. Buechler first was appointed a director by Charles Bryan when governor. Thirty years ago Buechler was instrumental in establishing the municipal electric plant here.

"Uncertain as Administration."

"The final outcome of experimenting in Nebraska with hydroelectric production, to compete with municipally and privately owned steam plants," said Buechler, "is as uncertain as it is to know what is to come next at Washington. The projects, one in particular [Tri-County], were born in patronage politics; interment may be loss in the sand dust of which our hills are largely made.

"I resigned because I refused any longer to assume a director's responsibility, with practically no authority to exercise judgment. PWA had demanded a change in the position of chief engineer and manager. The board of directors voted unanimously that a change would be detrimental, and sent a committee to Washington to explain. It was of no avail.

"Washington authorities announced they had not asked a resignation—only a change. That was the last straw for me. The resignations of Manager Don Price, President Harry Williams, Attorney A. H. Evans and myself followed.

Norris Takes Personal Hand.

"A bit of history here. Arthur Mullen became counsel for the Columbus and Sutherland districts. He obtained PWA approval of both. Up to this time Senator George Norris had not been interested, but immediately he tried to delay action on Sutherland until the Tri-County project could be approved. The Tri-County setup was disapproved by R. W. Rigsby, acting assistant to the PWA administrator, because it was based on diversion of water from the Platte river into the Republican.

"Secretary of the Interior Harold Ickes disapproved because the state already had received more than its share of funds. C. McDonough, PWA chief engineer, disapproved because the security offered was insufficient and water rights would be subject to litigation. But Senator Norris was assured a congressional appropriation would provide for Tri-County.

Hope to Save 30 Millions.

"The federal government has expended or allotted nearly 30 million dollars on these federal power and irrigation projects. It is destined to spend 20 to 30 millions more if the third and largest, Tri-County, is permitted to execute its plans. It is believed 30 million can be saved if the Water Protective association wins its suit in defense of the retention of what is left of the river's flow for the valley. When Platte interests appealed to the Supreme court of Nebraska, the court ruled in their favor against diversion into the Republican watershed.

"Then Senator Norris proposed Tri-County take action under the navigation clause. This was done. The federal power commission demanded applications for license on the theory that the Platte, which is dry from May until autumn, affected Missouri river navigation. The commission has set a hearing for Dec. 8 at Washington. It is clear to the Platte interests that this is a plan to circumvent the decision of the Nebraska Supreme court by putting control of the Platte's water resources into federal hands, regardless of irrigation and even of domestic users."

Aids Slaying Quiz

MRS. MYRTLE NEWMAN.

Detectives Thomas Dorgan and Robert Walsh of the Grand Crossing station, investigating the slaying of William King, a recluse, who was shot to death Friday night in front of his home at 7324 Dante avenue, will visit the Board of Trade Safety Deposit company, 141 West Jackson street, today in search for a deposit box King is reported to have there.

King, whose real name was Mortimer Hamburger, was formerly a large speculator in the grain market. He is reported to have made a half million dollars and lost it. He had $745 in his pockets when he was found.

Although the investigators have not discarded the robbery theory, they believe that some private transaction may have provided a motive for his murder. His mother, Mrs. Amelia Hemburger of West Pittston, Pa., will arrive today to give what assistance she can to the investigators. Mrs. Myrtle Newman, former wife of the slain man, told police she had not seen or heard from King in more than a year.

Police plan to have witnesses of the slaying look today at John Sharich, alias Skarich, an ex-convict, who was arrested early yesterday. He had a bullet wound in the left hand. Police believe one of King's slayers may have been shot. Sharich, who is 20 years old and lives at 2843 South Wells street, says he was wounded resisting two colored robbers. He was paroled from Pontiac reformatory in 1936 after serving a term for a robbery committed in 1934 in which his partner, Charles Bagnolia, was slain by police.

British Constable Slain by Arabs in Nazareth Hills

JERUSALEM, Nov. 28.—(AP)—A gang of armed Arabs ambushed and killed a British constable tonight in the nearby Nazareth hills. He was returning to Jerusalem after having assisted Jewish farmers who had been attacked earlier by the same Arab band.

HAMILTON LAYS TRADE SLUMP TO ROOSEVELT LAWS

Washington, D. C., Nov. 28.—[Special].—John D. M. Hamilton, chairman of the Republican National committee, declared tonight that the policies adopted by the Roosevelt administration to "handcuff, shackle and hog tie" legitimate business solely were responsible for the present slump.

Warning that the slump, if not curbed, might assume disastrous proportions and pave the way for dictatorship, Mr. Hamilton denied that the Republican party favored "rear guard" action or "a return to days that have gone by." But, he said, the ultimate test of progressive measures must be the extent to which they can be made to work within the framework of the democratic system and serve the best interest of the average man and woman.

The tax on undistributed profits prevents business from saving for "a rainy day," and from keeping their employés steadily employed, he said. He also opposed the capital gains tax in its present form.

SAFE CRACKERS FOILED.

Safe crackers blew off the combination of a safe in the Gordon Baking company, 3416 Belmont avenue, early yesterday, but failed to get the safe open. They obtained nothing. A bottle of nitroglycerin was found beside the safe.

Forester, Shot by Hunter as He Climbed Tree, Dies

Hunt Wilmette Burglar and $100 in Jewelry Loot

Wilmette police yesterday sought a man about 45 years old who Saturday night ransacked the home of Attorney Harry E. Smoot at 610 Maple avenue in the suburb and fled with $100 worth of jewelry as Smoot's daughter, Betty, 17 years old, entered the house.

FARM DICTATORSHIP.

The new agricultural bill has been rightly called the farm dictatorship bill. That is exactly what it is. It is intended to confer upon the secretary of agriculture the power to dictate to American farmers as Stalin, Hitler, and Mussolini dictate to the peasants in their countries.

The bill assumes that farmers do not know their own business. They must be directed and compelled to act in their own interest. For lack of competence they must operate on orders from Washington and, having received them, they must obey without question. If two-thirds of the farmers growing a principal crop can be cajoled or bribed into accepting this dictation, the rest must obey. If any farmer then fails to make the complicated reports of seeding, production and sales provided in the bill he can be sent to jail like a common criminal. Nor is that the full measure of the bill's tyranny. As Senator Copeland showed, a farmer who has done all the paper work can be heavily fined for exceeding a quota arbitrarily imposed on him by a burocrat a thousand miles or more away in Washington.

If all this dragooning of the farmers were to accomplish any real good for them it might be excused, perhaps, as a heavy-handed and clumsy scheme for achieving an otherwise desirable end. But the bill, if enacted, won't work. In so far as it can be understood at all, it is a hodgepodge of all the failures of recent years. It borrows price-fixing from the Hoover farm board, a plan which cost the taxpayers nearly half a billion dollars and buried the farmers under a mountain of unsold surpluses. It borrows processing taxes from the original AAA, which greatly reduced consumption. It borrows arbitrary acreage control from the Bankhead law and similar measures. Every one of these laws resulted in increasing the surpluses or in reducing consumption, or both. Thanks largely to these devices, America is rapidly losing its foreign market for cotton and for the first time in the nation's history American farmers have lost a substantial slice of the domestic market for foodstuffs. It is laws such as these which have brought tens of millions of bushels of Argentine and African corn into our ports and Polish hams by the shipload.

Yet it is these proved failures which Mr. Wallace wishes reënacted in a new farm law. The men who framed the bill have no confidence in it. Otherwise they would not have provided the savage fines and imprisonments. These punishments are intended to make farmers comply with a law which they otherwise could not be induced to obey.

THE RUSSIAN PURGE.

Roundabout news from Russia reports the execution of Y. H. Davtian, soviet ambassador to Poland; the ministers to Finland, Lithuania, and Latvia, and a military attaché once assigned to London.

Danger to the soviet diplomatic corps throughout Europe had been previously indicated by the recall of these and other representatives and by the abrupt departure of Max Litvinov, commissar for foreign affairs, from the Brussels conference. Litvinov is said to be conducting the battle of his life with Yezhov, the head of the GPU, to persuade Stalin that the secret police charges involving his department in conspiracy with Germany and Japan are untrue.

Confirmation of the story of the executions in the diplomatic service and an extension of the purge would indicate that the wily old bolshevist statesman has lost his fight and probably his life. World diplomacy may then regret the passing of a personality which added amusement as well as confusion to many pretentious international gatherings and conferences.

The communists of the Russian revolution have taken considerably longer time in self-liquidation than their predecessors in the French revolution, but the Russian terror within the party did not get under full headway until a few years ago. Since then its movements have been rapid, spreading to all classes of the population and in its high spots taking first the commissars and then the generals and now the diplomats.

The fable that the exiled Trotzky has been able to wreck the communist party and lead nearly all of Lenin's old associates to their doom has now worn so thin that friends of the soviet union must find the malignancy inside and not outside the dominant Stalinite ruling group. The list of the victims, conspicuous and humble, already executed is long, but the list of the persons who have disappeared without trace is as imposing and even more significant in its illustration of terrorist methods. It includes the old bolshevists, Bukharin and Rykov, who were arrested months ago and who have not been heard of since.

Even the French revolution was an open book of justice compared with the processes of the Stalin massacres. They are entirely in the dark and the brief illumination given the trials of last January which ended in the condemnation and execution of Piatakov and others was so unsatisfactory even to the authors of the strange tragedy that no attempt has been made since to conciliate world opinion. Stalin now merely kills them and doesn't trouble to explain them.

When Robespierre had brought the French revolution to such a pass its time had run and the guillotine was waiting for him. Fascism, if it should be able to destroy the communist soviets, would lose then half its own reason for being. It has tried to justify itself as a force opposed to another force. Without either the world would be better.

We naturally shudder at the horrors in Russia. We had better save a few shudders for use at home. Among the stoutest defenders of the Russian massacres are the loudest advocates of the New Deal.

GOOD BUS SERVICE FOR SOME.

Some people think the bus company should not have been permitted to institute limited service to Rogers Park and other outlying sections of the city. It is true that the elevated lines serve these communities, at least after a fashion, but it is also true that many customers live nearer the boulevard than the elevated. For this and other reasons they prefer to ride in buses if they can do so without too much loss of time. In our judgment, the limited buses are performing a useful service which should be expanded as rapidly as the demand warants.

But the limited routes should not be established at the expense of other services, as appears to the customers to be the company's intention. At the evening rush hour, for example, almost all the new double-deck buses assigned to the north side are operated as limiteds. These buses usually are comfortably filled, but as a rule they are not crowded. Frequently as they pass Oak street, north bound, empty seats are seen.

In contrast, the double-deck buses which at that period of the day serve the near and middle north sides are almost invariably the ancient rattletraps which should long ago have been replaced. With few exceptions these buses are overcrowded to the point of indecency. It is no uncommon experience to see three or four handsome limited coaches go by before one overcrowded rattletrap on local duty comes snorting along.

The Chicago Motor Coach company is owned by a holding company which also operates buses in New York. From the published reports of the holding company it is not possible to determine what part of the revenues of the Chicago system are derived from any one of its various lines and services, but everyday observation of the north side lines suggests that the greater part of the business and presumably of the profits as well come from the local routes. If that is the fact or even approximately the fact, the injustice of the present distribution of equipment is manifest.

As was said at the start, there is no sound objection to the limited services as such. The company showed commendable initiative in instituting this improvement. But there is objection to building new business by maltreating the best customers the company has. If the company wishes to expand its business it should obtain additional equipment adequate to its larger needs.

The old buses have been in service for well over a decade. If they haven't been fully depreciated they should have been long ago; as a matter of fact, the accounts suggest that the write-off was substantially completed several years ago. The reserves thus accumulated ought to be available now for new buses.

For reasons which are far from clear, the buses purchased in recent years by the company for Chicago's use were bought on instalment contracts with a modest down payment. It would seem that the coaches could have been bought largely if not wholly for cash from the depreciation reserves. Perhaps the reserves accumulated by the Chicago company have been used to purchase modern buses for the New York customers. In support of this supposition, attention can be called to the fact that a few years ago the New York subsidiary purchased a number of antiquated street car lines and reëquipped them with modern buses.

Only a few days ago the New York papers reported that the Fifth Avenue Coach company had received ten new single-deck buses to be placed in service on its Fifty-seventh street crosstown line. The new vehicles are described as "part of an order recently placed for a fleet of seventy buses. The remaining sixty, to be delivered within the next few months, will be of double-deck type. . . . When the entire order is on hand, the company will have added 190 new coaches to its rolling stock within two years at a cost of $3,500,000."

Meanwhile the rush hour customers on what appear to be some of the company's most profitable lines in Chicago are nightly packed into contraptions which belong in a museum. The customers can hardly be blamed if from time to time they wonder what use has been made of the reserves for the purchase of new equipment which the company has been setting aside year by year. Quite a few of the dimes collected on each trip went into the depreciation pot. What became of the money?

Editorial of the Day

CHALK UP ONE FOR TRADITION.

[Cedar Rapids Gazette.]

Remember the Amish and Mennonite farmers in Lancaster county, Pa., who got themselves talked about last year because they insisted they didn't want the federal government to give them a large grant to be used in building a modern school building for their children? Well, it seems the determined philanthropists at Washington couldn't believe any one really could be serious in turning down a government handout, so the $112,000 school was built in spite of the protests.

But the simple farm folk got the best of the argument just the same. When the school opened last month thirty of their children who were expected to attend it stayed away. And last week a half dozen of the parents called on Pennsylvania's Gov. Earle and urged him to reopen the ten little red school houses the PWA school replaced. They pointed out that their traditional religious beliefs were involved. The governor, not unmindful of the fact that there are 250,000 Amish and Mennonites in the state, complied with the request. The children will go back to their old schools, which will be maintained at state expense, for something like $6,000 a year.

"This is a pittance and for that amount of money I wouldn't interfere with religion," said the governor, a true guardian of the constitutional liberties and no piker with the taxpayers' money.

Thus does the New Deal give way to the old order on at least one front. It is but a sample of what national planners would encounter if they tried a thorough job of remodeling on the country without taking the infinite variety of human tastes and convictions into consideration.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may. Reg. U.S. Pat. Office

BACK OF THE COAL PILES and through the railroad yards is the home of the little red tugboats, where we take you today. Bridgetenders are vague, the man you telephone at the tug office can't tell you exactly how to get there, taxi drivers don't know, and the steam shovel men who sprinkle coal dust on you assure you it isn't anywhere. But if you scuttle northeast from the Naval armory and stop the right switch engine you find it's hidden away a block south of the outer drive bridge.

The New Jersey was tied up there and the Washington was out towing a boat. They're the only harbor tugs regularly stationed downtown. You think there are more because you see them so often. The big letter on the smokestack doesn't help any one identify a tug. Both the downtown ones have the same letter, G, and so do all those kept in South Chicago. It only means Great Lakes Towing company. Although they're only 70 feet long and 20 feet wide, the tugs can keep the largest steamer from going where it shouldn't. When the man in the tug office hears four long whistle blasts and a short one he knows one tug is wanted. Four and two means two tugs. The tug doesn't throw its tow line aboard the boat it's to tow, but makes the boat use its own. That way, if the line or hawser breaks and the big boat's damaged, it isn't the tug's fault. A tug requires three to three and a half hours to meet a boat and tow it to a dock in the river or go to the dock and tow it out into the lake.

The New Jersey carries a crew of four: captain, who sits on the soft green lether bench in the pilot house and steers; engineer, who stays down in the engine room running the engines the way the captain signals, and fireman and deckhand. Even though they have a cooking stove and refrigerator, they bring their lunches, but make coffee. They cook meals on a long trip only, like crossing the lake for a disabled vessel. Because they have to have steam anyway, there are plenty of radiators, and the boat's warm as toast. Despite the smoke it's so clean inside the crew could wear white, all but the fireman. One whistle means go, or stop if already in motion; two is back; three is check, and four? Everything's all right. The same signals are used between the tug and the boat it's towing. Only the largest boats need two tugs, and many of them can leave the river with a tow tug only. Coming in, with the current, is the task that sometimes needs a tug at the back as well as the front.

WHERE FUR GARMENTS HANG.

Strange that this ordered cupboard always brings
The thought of lovely and unfettered things.
Caressing garments wrought of lustrous fur
Sedately hang yet, I can fancy, stir
In mute protest. I saw an evergreen
Once lift tall tapers flamed with sunset sheen;
And through the branches, on a hill yet bright,
Wide, stricken eyes foretold a futile flight.
Now fleet, shy beast and bough, blown and free,
Are linked at last in kindred destiny,
As, fittingly, the pungent cedar shields
This final toll that some wild creature yields.

DISILLUSIONMENT.

It was in a Clark street restaurant, on one of the colder nights. The old woman said she was hungry, but had no money. And so the waitress, who must have grown up in a small town where people help each other, gave her a quarter that she might order food. Greedily the old woman ate, and then, while the waitress was in the kitchen, stole out without paying. Burrell Storrs.

THE OTHER HALF.

Pushcart men with something to sell are usually burly, but the fellows who pull carts around gathering wood for fuel and old paper are almost invariably undersized. One had such a load in his cart the other day that it overbalanced him and lifted him up in the air when he tried to haul it up a slight incline on Grand avenue. On South State street another got caught in trafic and delayed a street car because he could neither turn out of the way nor run fast enough to keep any distance ahead. Exhausted and stung by the motorman's reproaches, he finally made his way around the corner and wept.

ARE YOU DRUG SENSITIVE?

THE consumption of tablets and powders for colds, headaches, and pains in the joints probably is on the increase. Many remedies are advertised as harmless and there is a growing inclination to indulge in self-dosing which—in some instances at least—may menace health.

Little more than ten years ago a peculiar disease of the blood made its appearance. The chances are that it had existed prior to that time, but its recognition was delayed until careful studies of the white blood cells disclosed its true character. In the condition mentioned, instead of the normal five to seven thousand leucocytes per cubic millimeter of the circulating fluid, this number may decline to one thousand or even below.

Several years elapsed ere it was shown that the starting point—in many cases—was one of the drugs of the barbituric acid series or some such compound as pyramidon. We can scarcely realize that as late as 1932 publications dealing with this disorder gave no hint as to the cause. It is now recognized that chemicals can injure the bone marrow and thus destroy its power to form leucocytes—particularly those known as granulocytes.

But the symptoms were common enough, the patient complaining first of fatigue, weakness, and prostration. Then came chills, headache, and pain in the joints. A few days later a scratchy feeling in the throat was succeeded by inflammation and swelling. This increased in severity and extent, involving all the mucous surfaces within the mouth and throat. At this point the victim may believe that he has tonsilitis, but an examination will show that the inflammation is not confined to these glands, but has spread widely. Within another 24 hours ulcerations within the mouth, even of the alimentary tract and the bronchial tubes, may be obvious. The breath is unusually foul and the lymph glands beneath the lower jaw are greatly enlarged.

By this time the patient is very uncomfortable and swallowing may be practically impossible. Nausea, vomiting, and excessive perspiration add to the discomfort. The temperature at this stage is generally 103 or 104 degrees Fahrenheit. The diagnosis may be determined with fair accuracy if a blood count discloses that white cells are low.

While numerous measures have been proposed, including blood transfusions, the most successful is pentnucleotide. This is administered into the muscles two or three times a day until the young leucocytes begin to show up in the circulation. Ten cubic centimeters are given at each dose. Thereafter, one injection daily is maintained until the white cells reach the normal level. As a rule, four or five days are required for response.

Those who have recovered from the disease are obliged to shun coal tar derivatives as they would a deadly viper, as a tendency to recurrence continues for approximately two years. These relapses are really new attacks of the original trouble, stimulated possibly by some drug closely allied to the one which was responsible in the first place. We may regard the disease, therefore, as poisoning of the bone marrow.

Among coal tar products that have been blamed, mention may be made of phenacetin, amidopyrine [pyramidon] and allonal. Most authorities agree that amidopyrine is taken with impunity every day by thousands of individuals and that the same statement applies to many of the barbituric acid compounds. There seems to be, therefore, an idiosyncrasy on the part of those whose white cells begin to drop so abruptly.

The theory also is advanced that some dietary deficiency may lie at the base of the difficulty, inasmuch as experimental animals deprived of vitamin G will develop ulcers within the mouth, accompanied by a decrease in white cells. Be that as it may, there is no question that some persons are extremely susceptible to chemicals and hence any and every coal tar product should be used for a short time only and its effects watched critically.

EXAMINATION IS URGED.

M. K. writes: For about a year I have been coughing up large amounts of phlegm specked with black. Does this indicate bad tonsils, tuberculosis, or what? I smoke about four cigarets a day.

REPLY.

Do you live in a smoky atmosphere? The black specks in the sputum are soot or dust. You probably have bronchitis and a lung examination is called for.

LAUNDERING DIAPERS.

R. C. writes: Is there any kind of bleach that can be used safely to bleach diapers?

REPLY.

Ordinary boiling and rinsing with bluing, followed by drying in the sun, is usually all that is necessary to keep diapers white and sanitary. A dilute chlorine solution may be added to the rinse water if stains persist.

ALIEN DEPORTATION.

Chicago, Nov. 25.—[Friend of the People.]—I have been in this country for twelve years and have no citizenship papers. I have seven in the family and I am on relief. I am not in good health and cannot work in this country. I have a piece of land in the old country and have no way of going back there. My wife and myself are not citizens of this country. I would like to know if it is lawful for the government to deport us. P. K.

Under the provisions of the act of Feb. 5, 1917, any alien who has fallen into distress or is in need of public aid from causes arising subsequent to entry and is desirous of being removed to his native country, or to the country whence he came, or to the country of which he is a citizen or subject, may, on order of the commissioner of immigration and naturalization, at any time after entry, be so removed at government expense. Any alien applying for removal, if he is so removed, shall be forever ineligible for readmission except upon the approval of the secretary of state and the secretary of labor. For further information it is suggested that the inquirer call at the immigration and naturalization service.

PHILIPPINE INDEPENDENCE.

Chicago, Nov. 25.—I read in The Tribune's dispatch from Manila that President Manuel S. Quezon of the Philippine commonwealth wants complete political independence in 1938, or in 1939 at the latest. It is, I believe, just an idle gesture. This is a particular case in which racing against time will serve nobody any good, even the racer himself.

The ten year period of provisional trial was inserted by the framers of the constitution of the Philippine commonwealth only after careful deliberation. They were aware that political independence was not a cheap bargain. It entails very serious responsibilities. Most important of all is the necessity of making some basic adjustments both in and out of their economic back yard. The Philippines, like most other countries, is dependent in large measure for its prosperity on its foreign trade. Our export trade, consisting chiefly of agricultural products, are highly competitive, for which the United States is the chief market. The preferential duties accorded to most of them have enabled the Philippines to hold their only profitable market, without which the whole economic structure of the islands will virtually collapse. The Manila politicos have not yet done a thing to effect the necessary adjustments.

There is another equally important reason why Señor Quezon can well afford to toss his personal ambition to the wind. Events in the far east are rapidly transpiring. No one, even the most confirmed optimist, knows the eventual outcome of the current Sino-Japanese war. It is a dead certainty, however, that when the two nations smoke the pipe of peace the political map of Asia will be drastically remade. The effect of such changes upon their neighbors and upon the world at large is at best only conjectural.

WHO ARE THE GAME HOGS?

Waterman, Ill., Nov. 26.—I would like to write a few words in reply to an article, headed "Who Are the Game Hogs?"

Mr. H. Faber bemoans the fact that Chicago sportsmen have to pay a license fee [probably $1.50 or $2] to hunt, and the farmer doesn't. I would just like to ask Mr. Faber who, besides the farmer, is feeding that game? We probably don't feed them the year around, but from early fall until spring they practically live off the corn, oats, and wheat that they get from our fields. If the value of that grain doesn't amount to several times as much as the license fee Mr. Faber regrets paying so much, then prices would have to be low indeed.

I have never heard of any cow being shot, but I wouldn't be surprised if it has happened, provided the cow was unlucky enough to be in the same field.

These town and city sportsmen will come out here about half an hour after the hunting season opens, offer you a dollar or a drink of hootch for the privilege of hunting in your fields, and by the time they get through blasting and banging everything that gets up in front of them you might as well look for a needle in a haystack as try to scare up any game.

The city sportsmen might be supporting the conservation department, but we're providing most of the feed for the game, and I guess we are entitled to some of it. AN ILLINOIS FARMER.

THANKSGIVING IN AMERICAN HISTORY.

Paw Paw, Mich., Nov. 25.—I have just read your excellent editorial entitled "The Day of Thanksgiving." I note an error, however, which I am taking the liberty of correcting. You state that "each President since 1864 has followed Lincoln, who that year, when certainty of success had not dissipated the fears of failure, by a proclamation turned the minds of citizens to thoughts of their great trial and hopes of final deliverance."

The implication is that this was the first of the Lincoln Thanksgiving proclamations.

Having just completed the manuscript of a book entitled "Thanksgiving Day" in preparation for the writing of which I have read every book and magazine article I could find on the subject of Thanksgiving, as well as every Thanksgiving proclamation of the Presidents and the continental congress, consulting original records, etc., I can speak with some assurance on the dates of Thanksgiving proclamations.

On July 15, 1863, Lincoln issued a proclamation setting aside Thursday, Aug. 6, as a day of thanksgiving.

On Oct. 3, 1863, Lincoln issued another Thanksgiving proclamation setting aside the last Thursday in November as a day of thanksgiving.

The next Thanksgiving proclamation of Lincoln was issued Oct. 20, 1864. He set apart the last Thursday in November "as a day of thanksgiving."

Johnson's first proclamation was issued Oct. 28, 1865, and he set the date "the first Thursday of the following December."

I trust you will not consider this carping criticism. I am doing this simply because of my interest in getting the exact truth concerning historical matters. H. RANDEL LOOKABILL.

WHO IS "BUSINESS"?

Chicago, Nov. 24.—That phrase which The Tribune has popularized, "The alliance between crime and politics," needs further development to be in accord with the facts. Like the province of Gaul, the institution of corrupt government is "divided into three parts: crime, politics, and business. Like crime and politics, business maintains an elaborate lobby system in every seat of government, from Washington down.

The "alliance" between these three is evident in that no powerful corrupt criminal or political ring could long exist without either the active or passive consent of the business interests of the community. MAIN STREET.

BRANCH LIBRARY CLOSED.

Chicago, Nov. 3.—The Eckhart branch of the public library has helped many children with their homework; it helped many adults to while away their time usefully in search of knowledge; it has been our best source of joy. And now they have closed it for the winter because they can't afford to heat it. In this large city, with its wealthy business men, is it possible that no one is able to pay the coal bill of the Eckhart Park library? IRENE RACHTON.

GEORGE CAUUET was directing a rehersal of "L'Amour Veille," the French comedy to be presented at the Goodman theater next Friday and Saturday, and Louis Rousseau, formerly of the Opera Comique, who plays a leading rôle, happened to make a remark about Sarah Bernhardt.

"Ah, Sarah," sighed Mr. Cauuet, reminiscently. "I played with her in 'L'Aiglon.'"

"Indeed!" said Mr. Rousseau, astonished.

"Yes," said Mr. Cauuet, "I shall never forget. The divine Sarah! It was truly an inspiration to act with her."

"What part did you play?" Mr. Rousseau asked.

"O, I was cast as the shadow of one of the soldiers," answered Mr. Cauuet, blandly.

R. D. Stuart Jr. Is Engaged to Syracuse Girl

BY JUDITH CASS.

MR. AND MRS. R. DOUGLAS STUART and their son, Robert Douglas Jr., were in Syracuse, N. Y., yesterday for a most important event, a tea given by Mr. and Mrs. Harold Edwards of that city to announce the engagement of their daughter Barbara to young Mr. Stuart. The three Stuarts just returned from an extended stay abroad and Mr. and Mrs. Stuart rushed home for a few days, returning Saturday night to Syracuse for the announcement party.

Mr. Stuart Jr. went directly to Syracuse from New York and the date for his arrival in Chicago is indefinite. So are plans for his entering business, as he was just graduated from Princeton last June and went abroad immediately afterward. Where he and his bride will live after their marriage is not known yet, nor is a date for their wedding set.

Miss Edwards was educated at Miss Madeira's in Washington and Vassar college, although she did not stay there to get a degree. Mr. Stuart prepared for Princeton at the Los Alamos school in New Mexico. His maternal grandfather was Dr. James G. K. McClure, the celebrated Presbyterian minister, educator, and author. Mrs. McClure still is living in Lake Forest, where the Stuarts live also. Young Mr. Stuart's paternal grandmother is living in Chicago; she is Mrs. Robert Stuart of 4850 Woodlawn avenue.

R. Alexander Andersons on the Radio Today.

Every one who met the attractive R. Alexander Andersons when they were visiting the Kingman Douglasses in Lake Forest recently will be at their radios this afternoon at 3 o'clock to hear "Peggy" sing to "Andy's" accompaniment, because the informal programs they gave at the many parties for them were enjoyed immensely. Mr. and Mrs. Alexander live in Honolulu. They spent a week with the Douglasses recently, then went east for Thanksgiving and returned to Lake Forest yesterday for a very brief stay. They leave tonight for the west coast to return to Honolulu.

The Stuart Templetons entertained at luncheon yesterday for the Alexanders and the Douglasses gave a supper party for them last night.

Mrs. G. F. M. Ennis of Uitenhage, South Africa, is coming from England on the mid-December sailing of the Queen Mary to spend Christmas with her sister, Mrs. Victor C. Sanborn, in Lake Forest. Mrs. Ennis, the former Ethel Kirkland, has many friends here and will be entertained considerably during her month's visit. She is leaving her lovely gardens in Uitenhage, a suburb of Port Elizabeth, when the gardenias and other tropical flowers are in full bloom—it is summer there, of course—but she wanted to visit her old home during the winter.

Katherine Dole Baird Bows in Great-Aunt's House.

Several trafic officers were needed at La Salle and Elm streets Saturday afternoon so that several hundred motor cars might stop at the old red brick house on the northeast corner, where Miss Katherine Dole Baird was being presented to society by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Warner Green Baird, and her great-aunt, Miss Mary Pomeroy Green. It was a charming, old fashioned debut, such a one as Miss Green herself, the chatelaine of the old house that was built in 1873, might have had except that there was a punch bowl in the library. It was the first time in the history of the delightful and hospitable old house that liquor ever had been served in it, but Miss Green waived her own principles so that her great-niece's debut should be a good party from every one's standpoint. And it was.

Kreisler Is So Good a Critic Finds Him Dull

BY EDWARD BARRY.

The history of happy nations makes proverbially dull reading. So does the story of a Fritz Kreisler recital, and for much the same reasons.

Looking more than ever like a genial country doctor, the great violinist came to Orchestra hall yesterday afternoon to display once more a type of art which allows the eager critic no opportunities to point out helpfully the flaws here and there and to suggest innocently the means by which they can be remedied.

Nor is there a chance to work up a little public interest by challenging Kreisler's standing and by insinuating that his public acceptance is largely the result of clever build-up. The man is just too good, and nothing at all can be done with him. Whether you single out tone, phrasing, technique, or general interpretative powers, there seems to be nothing to attack, nothing that will give your review even the most pathetic little lift.

But stop! Was there not a blue note in the first movement of the Mozart Concerto and a suggestion or two of the physical—of pressure of bow on string—in the Bach Partita? Mr. Kreisler had best brush up a bit before he again presents himself before a Chicago audience!

As a feature of the Beaux Arts salon, held every Sunday afternoon in the lounge of the Medinah club, Muriel Pontius yesterday made her downtown recital debut. In a program consisting almost entirely of lyric songs, this young Chicago soprano proved that she possesses a daintily beautiful natural voice and the type of instinctive musicianship which results often in remarkably eloquent phrasing.

PIANISTS WITH SYMPHONY

BY CECIL SMITH.

Hitting upon the happy idea of making its Great Northern theater concert a family occasion yesterday afternoon, the Illinois Symphony orchestra invited Guy Maier and his wife, Lois Maier, to play Mozart's E-flat concerto for two pianos. Such an undertaking is nothing new to Mr. Maier, who earned a national reputation as half the two-piano team of Maier and Pattison before he became assistant to the director of the federal music project. Mrs. Maier was a piano pupil of Mr. Maier before their marriage.

Under the direction of Albert Goldberg the Maiers and the orchestra turned out a first class performance. Mr. Maier has a winning way of playing Mozart. He treats the music almost conversationally, but with all the wit and finesse of one who regards conversation as a fine art. A delicious lilt and a wayward catch give life to his playing of the happy passages, and a reticent hint of sentimentality adds a caressing note to the lyrical episodes. And Mrs. Maier is a most competent collaborator.

The suite transcribed for modern orchestra by Sir Hamilton Harty from Handel's occasional music for the royal fireworks in 1739 opened the concert. Mr. Goldberg's conception of the music had a breadth and a dignity that were only partly translated into convincing orchestral playing. The orchestra's brass sounded well, but the strings were occasionally lacking in animation.

After the intermission Mr. Maier appeared as solo pianist in Liszt's E-flat concerto, and Mr. Goldberg concluded the program with two Wagner items, the "Forest Murmurs" from "Siegfried" and the prelude to "Die Meistersinger."

Edgar Nelson spent yesterday afternoon at the Studebaker theater playing superb accompaniments for no satisfactory reason. Somebody has been kidding Dorothea Lawrence, American lyric soprano, pretty badly. Her singing is frankly sub-conservatory level, and she has no career ahead of her unless she finds a capable teacher who is willing to spend two years getting her voice out from underneath her palate.

Getting Ready for Her Opera Debut

Tries Singing; Now, 18, She'll Star in Opera

BY MARCIA WINN.

Beverley Lane, at 18, has sung in public just once. That was two weeks ago before an Episcopal women's group in Evanston. But on Dec. 8 she will sing opposite Lawrence Tibbett in "Rigoletto" in the Chicago Civic Opera house.

Beverley possesses what Paul Longone, impresario of the Chicago opera, calls a glorious coloratura soprano voice. Until three years ago, however, her ambition was to be a pianist and her singing was almost wholly of the bathtub variety.

Yet yesterday, as she nursed a sore throat in the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Milan Sachs, 2649 Carmen avenue, she disclosed that she already has a fine grasp of operatic tradition: She has changed her name.

"No, I'm not frightened about singing 'Gilda'," said Beverley, a slender, auburn-haired girl in a mustard colored dress, as she thumbed the score of "Rigoletto." "But I guess I am very excited, especially singing it with Tibbett!"

So are the members of Beverley's family. Her father, a meat seller, and her mother, who has a sweet lyric soprano voice, and her little sister, Virginia, who stooges for Tibbett with a deep contralto in casual living room rehersals, all find it incredible. The Civic Opera company, after hearing her sing once, signed her up for a three year contract!

"You see," Beverley explained, "I studied piano for seven years, and I intended to become a concert pianist. I just suddenly changed my mind. I had been singing around the house, in the bathtub, but nowhere publicly. I always liked voice. I thought I'd like to try because I was interested in it. Then I got so interested I didn't even care about the piano."

"But did you think you had a voice?" she was asked.

"Y-e-e-s," she replied slowly. "Otherwise I would never have gone into it. Maybe that's egotistical. It's a matter of personal opinion whether you think you're good or not, but I thought I could try."

At that time she was still in Von Steuben school, an honor student, but she began to study with Ada Paggi, who will sing the rôle of Madelina in "Rigoletto." Later she attended Wright Junior college.

She already knew German, since her family speaks it at home, but she set to work to master French and Italian, and every day put in a half hour of vocalizing, trilling one scale after another. "Vintutis gloria mercès"—on Dec. 8 she sings with Tibbett!

Regardless of her voice [although one really should not disregard a soprano's voice], Beverley should please the aesthetes as Gilda, for she is tall [5 feet 5 inches], slender [120 pounds], is pretty [brown eyes, a wide smile, and white, even teeth], and probably will sing with only her own reddish brown hair on her head.

Good Morning!

Remember Oscar Homolka? As the Dutch leader in "Rhodes, the Empire Builder"? If so, you'll recall he did excellent work—and be glad to see him again in this his first movie under a Hollywood contract.

His rôle? That of a captain who's lost his ship and papers because of drunkenness.

This production [in technicolor] is important more because of excellent performances than for the story, which as adapted, is pretty incredible, and the direction which is a bit too rambling.

Re the former—

On a South Sea island you meet three beach combers. Capt. Thorbecke, who can obtain a berth with no shipping company; Huish, a worthless cockney, and Robert Herrick, an outcast Englishman. . . .

One day the island authorities commissioned Thorbecke to take away a visiting pestilence ship, bound for Australia. . . . The disgraced captain and his pals sail off with her. Learning, as they believe that there is a cargo of champagne, Thorbecke makes a decision. He'll steer the boat to Peru, sell her and her contents, and with the money start life anew. . . . The cockney is agreeable. Herrick isn't, but he can't throw an old friend down so, acquiesces. . . . Then——

Out from the hold steps Faith Wishart, daughter of the ship's dead captain and, gun in hand, demands that the vessel go where it was intended to. . . .

It doesn't. Capt. Thorbecke gets drunk and stays drunk until a typhoon brings him to his senses. . . . The big blow over, the ship is in strange waters and an unknown island is sighted. . . . Upon landing they find a suave madman named Attwater and the three natives over whom he has established jurisdiction. . . .

Peculiar things happen on the island. When the ship sails away it sails without the captain. . . .

Mr. Homolka gives a magnificent performance. He does the trick of making you believe in Thorbecke most of the time, and Thorbecke isn't a consistently believable character. Ray Milland and Frances Farmer carry the straight rôles capably, though unremarkably, and Lloyd Nolan is a chillily [doesn't that look funny?] intriguing chap as the man three natives believe a god until. . . .?

But it's Barry Fitzgerald—he who was with the Abbey Players, you know—who steals the show. The audiences love him!

RUN!

By Patricia Wentworth

(Copyright, 1937, by Patricia Wentworth Turnbull.)

SYNOPSIS.

Delivering a new car to a customer, James Elliot, lost in the fog, finds himself on some one's estate. Groping his way to the dark house he stumbles over a bicycle. The front door is ajar. Entering, his flashlight reveals a girl, who commands him to "Run!" A shot whistles after them as they flee to hide in the taxiing. The girl tells James she was searching for a necklace her dying Aunt Clementa had told her was hidden in the house. James cannot believe the tale. The girl vanishes before James can learn more. At a party at his cousin Daphne's James meets the girl.

INSTALMENT VII.

TROUBLING TROUBLE.

Sally went on looking at James for about a minute and a half. The kink in her eyebrows straightened out. Her eyes stopped laughing. They considered him in a serious way. James had the odd feeling that things were happening between them. It was as if she said "I want to come in and look," and it was as it he opened his door and said "Here you are—you can look at anything you like," and back of this the hope that things were reasonably clean and tidy.

So Sally came in.

He could feel her there, moving round, looking where she wanted to, touching things gently, straightening something here and there, as a woman does when she comes into a room. The oddest part of the whole odd business was that it all felt quite natural. She might have been there always. It might have been her room as well as his. The blood came up into his face. Sally went on looking at him, and said:

"Did you recognize me before I said that about the bicycle? I think it was very clever if you did, because I made my voice quite different—nice and gentle and modest. It's Sarah's voice really. I keep it for great-aunts, and traffic cops, and the policeman when I've gone the wrong way round an island or butted in at the other end of a one-way street. But I can't keep it up—not for very long, because I'm not really Sarah or Elizabeth—I'm Sally."

"I wasn't sure," said James. "Something kept bobbing up, but I couldn't get hold of it. Sally's a nicer name than Aspidistra. I can't think how you thought of a name like that in the middle of running away and being shot at."

"O, but I didn't. I've been Aspidistra since I was about 6. I thought it was the loveliest name, so I had it for all my adventures. I used to tell myself a new one every night in bed—coral islands, and pirate, and flying [illegible] and hunting for treasure—so the minute I had a real adventure it came quite natural to be Aspiristra. I really couldn't be anything else."

She had the prettiest soft color in her cheeks. Her eyes were as bright as water. James felt a foolish strange desire to be a little boy again and go adventuring with her—on a coral island—in a pirate ship—on a flying carpet that would take them over the moon. He nodded and said:

"I see." And then, "You said Sally West. I saw a thing in the paper the day we ran away. It said Lady Clementa Tolhache had left a lot of money to her great-nephew, John Jernyngham West. I was at school with a John Jernyngham West—he was my fag for a year. J. J. we called him. You said you had an Aunt Clementa. I didn't believe you until I saw the bit in the paper——"

"You've got a very unbelieving mind."

"No, I haven't—not any more than most people. Clementa on the top of Aspidistra was a bit steep, you know. I didn't really believe it even when I saw it in the paper—Clementa Tolhache——"

"They call it Tullish. Such a pity, isn't it, but they're awfully stuck up about it."

James frowned. The name still sounded so unlikely. He said abruptly, "I was asking you about J. J. is he a cousin of yours?"

"O, no—he's my brother. As soon as you'd said your name and where you'd been at school, I knew all about you. Jocko used to talk about you a lot."

"I can guess the sort of things he said. He was the cheekiest fag I ever had."

"He's a brat," said Sally. "He always was, and I expect he always will be. He goes round asking for trouble——" Her voice trailed away. When she had said "trouble" it stopped altogether. She looked hard at James and said, "I'm awfully worried about him."

"Why?"

"Because our old nurse used to say, 'If you don't trouble trouble, trouble won't trouble you,' and, 'Let sleeping dogs lie.' I don't suppose Jocko will. I'm not very good at it myself."

"I know. I shouldn't think you were, or you'd have kept out of that house. Did you know there were sleeping dogs there?"

"Well—I thought there might be, but I didn't think they'd shoot."

"How did you know I wasn't one of them?" said James. "I mean, there we were in the dark. And I saw you because my torch picked you up on the stairs, but you couldn't possibly have seen me, so how did you know it was all right to clutch me and say 'Run!'?"

"I didn't! How could I? I just chanced it. Because, you see, if you were one of them, I was done already, and if you weren't, there was quite a good chance of getting away. Besides, I'd just about got to the point where I had to clutch some one. You can't think how nerve racking it was when your horrible ray came out from nowhere and hit me in the face. I don't suppose I shall ever feel safe in the dark again."

"What were you doing in the dark?" said James in a portentous voice. "What were you doing in that house at all? Don't you think you had better tell me?"

"I did tell you. I told you I was looking for Aunt Clementa's diamond necklace."

James made the sound which is written pish, or tush, or tcha.

"It's frightfully valuable and completely unwearable, you know—the sort people wore when they had a nice cushiony shelf all pushed up in front with tight stays. Aunt Clementa had a lovely one. There's a photograph of her with a waist about the size of your neck, and billows and billows of white satin, and the diamonds laid out on her shelf, and feathers in her hair, and a tiara, and a fringe right down to her eyebrows like the pictures of Queen Alexandra. I could show it to you if it would make you believe in the necklace."

"Why do you want me to believe in it? said James. He thought he had startled her, and he wondered why.

Her color rose.

"I don't want you to. You can believe just what you like. It doesn't matter to me, and Aunt Clementa's dead, so it doesn't matter to her, though she would be most awfully annoyed if she could hear you not believing, poor old pet. She was most enormously proud of her necklace. It had about fifty large brilliants and a hundred middle sized ones, beside masses and masses of little ones. She made me learn the numbers, but I've forgotten half of them."

James felt that he was being got at. What in the world had all this got to do with the adventure in the dark house? He didn't know, and he wanted to know. He very much wanted to know. He looked very straight at Sally West, and he said in his most Scottish voice:

"What's the good of all this stuff about a diamond necklace? Why don't you tell me what you were really doing in that house?"

Nothing happened—no voice, no answer, no response of any kind. James felt that he was being snubbed. And why should he be snubbed? He'd been shot at, hadn't he, and not missed by very much either? He said with deliberation:

"We ought to have gone to the police—I told you so at the time."

This had no soothing effect.

"Suppose I go to the police now?" said James in a stiffened voice.

"They wouldn't believe you."

"Why wouldn't they?"

Sally looked at him sweetly.

"You'd rather lost yourself, hadn't you? I mean, the scenery was mostly fog, wasn't it? I suppose you'd be able to tell the police where the house was. I suppose you do feel quite sure you could lead them straight to the spot."

Cozy Comfort Travels with Slipper Gift

BY RHEA SEEGER.

There have been so many undeserved quips about slippers, especially as Christmas gifts, that we're out to remind one and all that slippers can be among the most individualized and desirable of gifts.

For the footweary youngster battling with her first job, send the knitted numbers that look from the front like shaggy sheep dogs. They're nothing more than an oblong of knitted wool finished with a foam of yarn tassels for the toes, but they're supercomforts after a tough day in town, work or no work. They will be found in the notion departments, and come in pastel of bright colors.

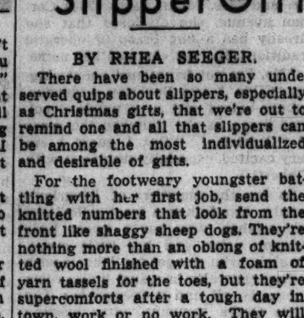
In the same haven of foot comforts will be found the Pullman travel comforts, this time made of moire and fitted in a travel case the same color as the slippers. They're made as cleverly as the fine lethers and priced much less.

Lounging slippers of bright patent lether are among the new arrivals. These are made of cross toe straps with eyelets and a moderately high heel. Very smart footgear for lounging robes of flannel or tailored pajamas. There are some in silver and gold lether for more dress parade occasions.

See the fetching peasant printed heelless slippers made in Vienna; they're not so new, but they're always good. The colors are effective with dark colored negligees and lounging pajamas.

Other comforts for both men and women are the thick velour affairs that come in beige, deep blue, Christmas red, and pastels. These are typical comforts, almost utilitarian except for the colors. The "scuffers," come this season with a springy new heel effect, combined with the two cross straps of colored fur.

This Old Pieced Quilt Always Is Favorite Design



Lattice Square.

Patterns of this design are 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street or Tribune Tower.

BY NANCY CABOT.

"Lattice Square" is one of the old pieced blocks, and always is a favorite pattern for novice as well as experienced quilt makers. It is a simple design to set together and, with a modicum of ingenuity, the needleworker may design a most unusual coverlet. The block is a nine patch pattern, and is used to form an all-over design. The shades of blue and white form a latticed window effect. For variety the blocks may be set together with five inch bands of white material. Finished, the squares measure 12 inches, and only thirty are required for a coverlet. Surrounded by a five inch border, the finished quilt measures 90 by 107 inches.

Housework, Dry Red Hands Made Soft and Lovely

There is one sure way that has never failed to make hands soft, smooth and white. The way Doctors, Dentists and Nurses do . . . and every one knows how important it is for them to keep their hands in good condition.

Hands get rough and red when essential skin elements are destroyed by harsh treatment, dishwashing and bad weather. The way, then, to make them soft and white, is to replace these essential elements. To do this, get a jar of Mystic cream from any druggist or department store. Mystic cream supplies everything your skin needs to keep it from chapping and getting rough and red.

Apply it at night before retiring. It is absorbed almost instantly. Mystic cream is not the least bit sticky or greasy, and it won't stain. Results are quick and sure.

No work will be too harsh. Bad weather won't bother you. You will always have soft, smooth, lovely hands if you get the habit of using Mystic cream.

The Illinois Federation of Music Clubs will give a luncheon for Mrs. Vincent Hilles Ober of Norfolk, Va., president of the national Federation of Music Clubs, at 12:30 o'clock today at Kungsholm, 621 North Rush street. Mrs. Louis E. Yager heads the Illinois federation.

Tomorrow Mrs. Frank G. Logan will give a tea and program for Mrs. Ober in her home at 1150 Lake Shore drive.

Mrs. Ober will be the guest of the Eleventh district, Illinois Federation of Music Clubs, at a luncheon Wednesday in the Hotel Baker in St. Charles.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

Those boxes of powder puffs with your name on the little ribbon are back again — and we for one are enormously pleased. We can't think at the moment, of any inexpensive gift that could top them. They come packed a dozen to a smart cellophane box, in delightful colors, and they're charmingly individualized. All you do, when you buy them, is give the name of the recipient to the salesgirl and when your box arrives each puff will bear the name in a pretty scroll. If it sounds expensive don't be deceived. There's no extra charge for having the name put on.

Every woman vants, and should have, a whole flock of powder puffs. A box of these insures her of a dozen —and each will be pretty special in her eyes because it bears her own name. The puffs are good, and a good size.

The other day we saw two boxes of guest puffs that made a great hit with us. The boxes are oval, of cellophane, and come in two sizes, chock full of chubby, snowy wool puffs. We couldn't count how many there are to a box but we'd wager that there are about fifty to the small box and a hundred or mode to the large one.

The box is stunning in shape, with "guest puffs" written 'n white across the top. It's a handsome ornament for powder room or dressing table. And certainly the contents are bound to make a hit with your guests because these fluffy puffs are the kind all women like.

It's rather a mistake to think of these as exclusively for the use of guests. If you want to guard your skin you really shouldn't use a puff more than once or twice yourself. Keep a big box of them around.

The Housewife

BY EDITH WEIGLE.

A Christmas present suggestion for the housewife: A set of attractive, transparent protectors that slip on the hanger over a dress and cover the top part of it. A set of five is priced 'way under a dollar, and the bindings are in pretty, soft colors—peach, yellow, wine, and scarlet.

In another package are protectors plus hangers, for slightly more money. The hangers are velvet covered and they're especially good looking in peach, with the dress protectors' binding in the same tone.

orchids; Miss Baird, in a quaint dress of black taffeta trimmed with yellow organdy and carrying an armful of chrysanthemums in autumn colors, and Mrs. Baird, in a gown of Pompeian red crêpe embroidered in crêpe, received in the parlor. Tea was served in the dining room from a table decorated with autumn flowers. Every room on the first floor was outlined with baskets and vases of flowers that had been sent to the hostesses, and there were so many that even the ladies' coat room had many fragrant bouquets.

The big, high ceilinged rooms with their exquisite old furniture and mirrors were lighted pleasantly by candles and gas fixtures on the walls. The house has electric lights, of course, but on Saturday only the more old fashioned methods of lighting were in use. To list those who were received by Miss Green and her nieces would be to name every one in Chicago and on the north shore whose names make social news. "This is the first debut tea I've been to in years," was on the lips of many of the older guests, who ordinarily do not go about socially much in these hectic times. No young people were invited, for Mr. and Mrs. Baird will entertain them at a tea-dance they will give for their daughter in the Fortnightly club on Dec. 23.

Mrs. Clarence Mitchell Returns to California.

Mrs. Clarence Mitchell has returned to California, but Mr. Mitchell still is in Chicago, for he has not finished making colored pictures of the beautiful and famous jade collection at the Field museum. He will join his family shortly, but he and Mrs. Mitchell will be back in Chicago in January. On Jan. 20 the pictures he has made will be shown at the Casino. Mrs. Mitchell's mother, Mrs. Charles Garfield King, is assisting the museum director, Clifford C. Gregg, in making arrangements for the showing.

Mr. and Mrs. Lester Armour, who spent the Thanksgiving holidays in the east with their boys, who are at St. Mark's, are expected back in Chicago today.

Count Robert van der Straten-Ponthoz, Belgian ambassador to the United States, arrives in Chicago this morning to attend the golden anniversary banquet of the Belgian Draft Horse Corporation of America Thursday night and the International Live Stock exposition.

Not a revival of the old Kinsolving musicals, which were so popular and fashionable for many years, but reminiscent of them will be the first of the Eleven O'Clock Matinees this morning in the Red Lacquer room of the Palmer House. Helen Jepson is to give the program, starting at 11, and which will be followed by many luncheon parties. Mrs. Gilbert Smith, who has planned the three matinees—the others will be on Dec. 13 and Jan. 10—will entertain for the singer, her husband, George Possell, and Lawrence Tibbett. Other hostesses will be Mrs. George B. Dryden, Mrs. Edwin Mills, Mrs. William B. Hale, Mrs. Brown Caldwell, Mrs. Arch Shaw, Mrs. Howard C. Phillips and Mrs. William Darrow. Ushering will be the Misses Cynthia Cleveland, Eleanor Wilson, Eleanor Wetten, Caryl Nicholson, Myrtle Lampert and her twin, Lillian.

Abbe Dimnet Addresses Town Hall Forum Tonight.

The Abbé Ernest Dimnet of Paris, who has made many friends on his previous visits to Chicago, will greet them again tonight at the opening forum of the Town Hall meetings of Chicago, to be held at 8 o'clock in the Lake Shore Athletic club. Abbé Dimnet and Prof. Quincy Wright of the University of Chicago, will discuss "Dictatorship versus Democracy."

Among those who have made reservations for dinner preceding the discussion are the Edward V. Platts, the Ross Langdons, the Paget K. Cadys, the Chauncey Blairs, Walter Frazier and Mrs. Kay Wood. During his visit in Chicago Abbé Dimnet is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Max Epstein. John H. Wigmore, Harold C. Woodward, O'Neill Ryan Jr., Dr. Horace J. Bridges, Col. George T. Langhorne, and Orville J. Taylor are members of the advisory committee planning the Town Hall programs.

Hospital Workers to Hear Cleveland Woman.

Mrs. Franklin McGowan of the Lakeside hospital in Cleveland will address a meeting of the volunteer workers of the Children's Memorial hospital at 3 o'clock this afternoon in the Nurses' home, 700 Fullerton parkway. Invitations to the meeting and tea afterward were issued in the names of Mrs. D. Mark Cummings, Mrs. George D. McLaughlin, Mrs. James McKenna, Mrs. Clarence B. Estes and Mrs. Orville E. Babcock, who are the Committee on Volunteers of the hospital.

Practical and Yet Dressy

WOMAN'S AND MISS' BLOUSE.

A practical yet dressy blouse to be worn with your winter suits and extra skirts is offered in our pattern today. Depending upon the fabric you select, the garment may be sturdily fashioned for general wear or exquisite enough for cocktails, tea, and dining out, when worn with a velvet, duvetyn, or rich silk skirt. With your tweed skirts you might wear a blouse of soft woolen jersey or practical silk. With your dressy skirt the blouse is pretty fashioned of metal cloth, satin, duvetyn, or velvet.

This blouse may be worn over the skirt or as a "tuck-in" model. If worn in the former manner, the garment may have a peplum or a tunic. There are three neckline versions: high and collarless, V and collarless, and V with soft rolled collar. Sleeves may be short, bracelet length, or long. A slide fastener may be used in the front, or the closing may be a simple surplice. Soft shirring is found at the shoulders and all around the half circle created by the "corselet" waistline.

Style No. 2040 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, and 20 years and 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, and 42 inches bust measurement. Size 36 requires 1⅞ yards of 39 inch fabric.

Stretching Is Ideal Exercise for Reduction

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

[Copyright: 1937: By The Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.]

We scarcely need to emphasize that it is the silhouette, more than the dress, that dictates your rating among the well dressed. For more reasons than just reducing, we advise exercise. There must be a flowing grace of movement along with the frock or the cause is lost. With body heaviness, there generally is a solidity of movement that ill becomes the clothes. And stiffness! Or a gross flabbiness which is even more detrimental to clothes. In the process of building better lines and form, ease of motion is desired, more of the feeling of lightness certain exercise prescribes, and grace, of course.

For the overweight woman we suggest the simpler exercise type. Leave the complicated exercise movements to those in better physical trim. We recommend stretching as ideal. It is not difficult. It is not straining. It gives you just enough verve to carry on. It is reducing, and splendidly so. We recommend beginning your morning, even before you are out of bed, with stretching movements, stretching legs long. Stretch from the waist to toe tips, from waist to shoulders, from the top of the head to the toes. Stretch arms wide. Stretch the body, from fingertips stretched high over head, to toes. We recommend you get down on the floor and stretch, stretch, stretch every which way. Then, when you're on your feet, stretch again, rising on tiptoes and stretching head up to reach the stars, as it were.

Stop in the course of the day frequently and pull yourself up tall, tall, and taller. Walk around the room, stretching and stretching. It's amazing what this will do for you, really! You can take inches off hips, thighs, waistline. At the same time you get a new feeling of well being with your new resilience as a result of the muscle stretching practice. Your posture will be improved immeasurably. Gradually you may add an exercise or two such as this one, which is not too strenuous.

Lie on your back on the floor, with arms stretched wide at shoulder height. Bring your right foot over and across the left, carrying the right foot on and up toward the outstretched hand on the left side. Keep the head and shoulders on the floor. Reverse and bring the left foot over the right and on up to meet the right hand.

Enhance your beauty! Learn the secrets of making the most of powder, rouge, creams, and lipstick. Get a copy of the booklet, "Makeup Magic," by Antoinette Donnelly, Tribune beauty editor. On sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower. Price, 5 cents. Postpaid, 7 cents.

Josef Hofmann Feted on 50th Anniversary as a Concert Pianist

New York, Nov. 28.—[Special.]—The first fifty years of Josef Hofmann's career as an artist in America were celebrated tonight at the Metropolitan Opera house, where, as a boy of 11, he made his debut on Nov. 29, 1887.

As the guest of honor, the world famous pianist responded to the tumultuous tribute of the audience in the way that is most natural to him: He made music. He was not only the principal performer but a benefactor as well. At his request the entire proceeds were turned over to the musicians' emergency fund. Since top prices for orchestra seats were $15, the gross was about $22,000.

Werner Janssen Accepts Baltimore Symphony Baton

According to CULBERTSON

[Copyright: 1937: By Ely Culbertson.]

The National Self-Rating Bridge Examination ends this week. Question 58, to be asked this coming Friday and answered Saturday, will wind up the proceedings.

Readers who have been rating themselves will, of course, know their final grade and will either exult or blush accordingly. Those contestants [I use that word for want of a better one; this has not been a contest, in the literal sense] who have sent in their answers for my grading will, I trust, be patient while my staf and I wrestle with the 100,000 letters involved. As promised, I will send certificates bearing the final mark to those readers who have achieved the upper ranks; the final mark, without a certificate, to the lower ranks.

The exam has been successful even beyond my fondest hope. Shortly I will be able to comment in this column about the facts and figures adduced.

Last Friday's question was:

Question 52: East-West vulnerable; North-South not vulnerable. The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 club	Double	2 no tr'p	3 hearts
3 spades	4 hearts	Pass	Pass
Double	Pass	5 clubs	Double
Pass	Pass	Pass

Which player—South, West, North, or East—has the weakest hand?

Answer: North has the weakest hand. His two no trump bid directly over the take-out double cannot be taken seriously, particularly in view of his later take-out of his partner's four heart double. The vulnerability conditions confirm this. [One point demerit for incorrect answer.]

TODAY'S QUESTION.

Question 53: You are South. Both sides are vulnerable. The bidding has been:

North	East	South	West
1 heart	Pass	1 spade	Pass
2 clubs	Pass	?

You hold:

♠ 9 8 6 5 3 ♥ None ♦ Q 10 7 4 2 ♣ A 8 5

What call do you make now?

TODAY'S HAND.

Match point duplicate.

♥ K 6 5 2
♦ A 8

WEST
♠ J 8 2
♥ A 7 3
♦ K Q 6 4 3

EAST
♠ Q 6 4 3
♥ 9 8
♦ J 10 7 5 2

SOUTH
♠ A K 10 5
♣ K J 7 5

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 spade	Pass	2 clubs	Pass
2 hearts	Pass	4 hearts	Pass
Pass	Pass

I am recording the bidding as it took place at every one of the seven tables in a recent duplicate game. The fact that every South passed to North's four heart bid is highly significant. Obviously, they did not appreciate the potential strength of their hand in connection with North's bidding. North, by his two club bid, had advertised a hand containing at least two honor tricks and probably, although not surely, a club suit as good as A x x x x x or, if only four long, A Q x x. The heart jump had revealed not only a good heart fit, but had shown additional honor or playing strength. It was virtually certain that North held no more than two spades. Thus South could see that there was no spade and probably no club loser. He himself could guard against more than one diamond loser. It then became a question of the heart suit. Surely, after North's jump, South could depend on losing no more than one heart. Thus, to feel out the situation more fully and to give a slam try without going past the safe five level, South should have bid five clubs. North then would need no great imagination to go to a slam and, since it was match point duplicate, to contract for six hearts rather than six clubs.

As I have repeatedly pointed out, aggressive bidding is desirable when players are assured that the hands fit admirably.

Tomorrow's Hand

Dog Drawings by Ward Binks Are Delightful

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

A delightful exhibit of water color drawings of sporting dogs by Ward Binks, the famous English artist, has opened in the Ackermann galleries, 408 South Michigan avenue, to continue through December.

There are large landscapes in which pointers or a Labrador are the features of interest and there are groups of heads, the three Sealyhams, for instance, or the two black and white Setters, or the Scottie by his grand lonesome, which will arouse your most fervent admiration. This man, you will say, knows dogs!

As a companion exhibit to this gorgeous showing, portraits in wax by Ethel Frances Mundy are on the walls. Miss Mundy models her miniature portraits in colored wax and she gets many truly lovely effects.

The colors are soft and intriguing and the likenesses excellent. She does children beautifully and her two or three portraits of women, the entire figure, are very effective. The young son of Lawrence Tibbett, the singer, made an attractive model and among the other children portrayed are the two little daughters of the Edison Dicks of Lake Forest and tiny Lolita Armour Mitchell.

Many Types of Breads Made of Cornmeal

BY MARY MEADE.

[Copyright: 1937: By The Chicago Tribune.]

The well loved, old fashioned "johnny cake" is associated in our minds with cornmeal often to forgetfulness of many other good breads which may be made from this coarsely ground meal.

Cornmeal is prepared by the water ground, or "old process," which removes only the outer bran coat of the grain, or by the "new process," which removes bran and germ. The latter type of cornmeal keeps better, but hasn't the flavor or nutritive value of the former type. Either kind may be used in all of these recipes except the last, in which the old process white cornmeal is preferable.

Cornmeal Waffles.

2 cup flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon soda
½ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons sugar
1½ cups cornmeal
2 eggs
1¾ cups sour milk or buttermilk
¼ cup melted butter

Sift flour once before measuring and resift several times with baking powder, soda, salt, and sugar. Add cornmeal to the sifted mixture. Beat eggs and combine with sour milk or buttermilk and melted butter. Add liquid to dry ingredients all at once and stir only enough to be sure ingredients are all blended. Bake in a hot waffle iron.

Cornmeal Potato Muffins.

[Eight Muffins.]

2 tablespoons butter
1 tablespoon sugar
1 egg
1 cup milk
1 cup mashed potatoes
1 cup cornmeal
4 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt

Cream the butter and sugar together and add the egg. Beat well and add the milk and potatoes. Beat until smooth and add cornmeal sifted with baking powder and salt. Mix well and pour into greased muffin pans. Bake at 400 degrees for 20 minutes.

Cornmeal Pancakes.

1 cup flour
1 cup cornmeal
3 teaspoons baking powder
1½ teaspoons salt
2 cups milk
1 egg

Sift flour and combine with other dry ingredients. Beat egg and add milk. Combine the two mixtures and beat until smooth. Cook on one side and then on the other on a hot griddle.

Cornmeal Crisps.

[About Sixty.]

1 cup minus 2 tablespoons white cornmeal [old process]
1 cup boiling water
2½ tablespoons melted butter
½ teaspoon salt

Add cornmeal gradually to boiling water and stir until smooth. Add butter and salt. Drop mixture from spoon onto greased cookie sheet. Spread thin with a spatula dipped into cold water. Bake in a moderate, 350 degree oven, but do not allow to brown. When the cakelets show the first signs of browning, remove from the oven and roll each one over to form a cone shape, using a spatula. Return to oven to brown and crisp. Serve with salads, or fill with any suitable mixture to serve as canapes.

C.Y.O. FINALS MEAN A LOT TO ANOTHER NOTO

Al Wants to Follow in Brother's Steps.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Last year the regulars who watch the daily drills at the Catholic Youth organization boxing center began to notice a little kid who turned up faithfully every afternoon. He was also a constant attendant at the routine C. Y. O. shows, and seemed to have eyes, not to say voice, for one boxer—Flyweight Johnny Noto from the west side. His loyalty to Johnny soon became a topic, and finally it was revealed that the faithful one was none other than John's young brother Al.

At that time none thought that little Alphonse himself would be up there battling for a championship, but that's where he will be Wednesday night, when the finals of the seventh annual tournament of the C. Y. O. are decided at the Chicago Stadium.

A New Thought Strikes Him.

Yesterday Al explained how he came to follow his brother, one of the ablest small fighters the town has developed. He had been content to sit and cheer Johnny, occasionally exercising his natural artistic bent by sketching either his brother, a favorite model, or one of the latter's opponents. He watched Johnny go through his routine workouts and saw him battle in a hundred real bouts before a thought suddenly struck him one afternoon.

"Why, I can take some of these kids myself. Why shouldn't I be in there, too?"

With no experience except what his own observation of his brother's career had taught him, Al finally asked Johnny if he would volunteer a little practical instruction. Johnny was so enthusiastic about the proposition that Al left the pews of the railbirds and was soon to be found in the C. Y. O. ring every afternoon after he had finished classes at Marshall High school.

Takes 112 Pound Novice Title.

It didn't take the neophyte long to become an expert. He proved it in the C. Y. O. tournament last year when he won the 112 pound novice championship. This victory, coupled with that of Johnny in the same weight class of the open division, brought their home parish, Presentation, the team trophy.

Johnny himself has retired from the boxing wars as a competitor, but he will forget his duties in his uncle's west side bakery Wednesday night long enough to cheer for Al to bring another open title back to the Noto domicile at 3832 Lexington street.

Last Battle Is a Draw.

Woven into the pattern of the Noto boxing fortunes is another Italian. That is why Al is probably the most sincere young man now training for Wednesday's bouts. The other Latin in question is Walter Cavalieri, who lost a close decision to John Noto in the 1936 finals. Since then Walter and Al have met ten times, and the former has been notably superior throughout the feud. He won nine straight decisions from Alphonse, but in their last battle Noto earned a draw. Al feels that there's a first time for everything, and he intends to get his first victory over Cavalieri Wednesday night.

Al, a native of a small town in Calabria, Italy, was brought to this country when he was seven years old. He is now in his senior year at Marshall High and has no ideas about following professional boxing. He has concentrated on art during his four prep years and plans to carry his ambition further at St. Norbert's college of Green Bay, Wis., after high school.

VILLANOVA WINS, 25 TO 0; FINISHES YEAR UNBEATEN

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 28.—(AP)—Undefeated Villanova wound up its 1937 football campaign today with a 25 to 0 victory over Loyola university and sat back to await possible invitations for a post-season game.

A crowd of 20,000 saw the Wildcats win their eighth game of the year in a record marred only by a scoreless tie with Auburn. The score boosted Villanova's total points to 265 to 7 points by the opposition.

Officials of the team indicated bids to play in New Orleans' Sugar, Dallas' Cotton, or Miami's Orange Bowl New Year's day would be welcome.

Villanova scored three times on breaks and the last on a forward pass and lateral, Half Back Ray Stoviak to Right End Walt Nowak to John Mellus, that was good for seventy-two yards.

Loyola passed the Villanova 20 yard line only three times.

BY GEORGE STRICKLER.

The Chicago Bears won the championship of the western division in the National league by defeating the Cleveland Rams, 15 to 7, yesterday at Wrigley field.

The triumph, accomplished on a thirty-five yard pass, Bronk Nagurski to Bill Karr in the first period, a forty-three yard pass, Bernie Masterson to Eggs Manske in the second period, and a thirty-five yard field goal by Jack Manders, qualified the Bears for the league championship playoff against the eastern division winner on Dec. 13. The title game will be played at Wrigley Field. The Bears' opponent in the playoff will be decided in New York next Sunday where the Giants meet the Washington Redskins.

4,188 Watch Game.

An enthusiastic but shivering audience of 4,188, the smallest crowd before which they have played all season, saw the Bears clinch their third western division title since the National league was separated into two divisions in 1933.

Cleveland, submitting grudgingly to its tenth defeat as it closed its first season in the league, strove valiantly to make a contest of it and succeeded to the extent of providing the two outstanding offensive feats of the game.

John Drake, former Bowen High school and Purdue star, who was a member of THE TRIBUNE'S All-Star squad last summer, got away on the longest run of the contest in the first quarter when he plunged over guard and ran forty-six yards to the Bears' 15 yard line, where he was brought down from behind by Beattie Feathers.

Cleveland's thirty-seven yard forward-lateral pass touchdown maneuver in the early minutes of the third quarter climaxed the day's play when Ed Goddard, another TRIBUNE All-Star graduate, passed twenty-six yards to End Sam Busich and Busich lateralled to Tackle Ralph Miller for eleven yards and the score. Bob Snyder of Ohio university place kicked the extra point.

Bears Rely on Passes.

The Bears, not fully rested from their 13 to 0 victory over Detroit on Thursday, took the easiest way out on the frozen field, which made footing uncertain, and relied heavily on passes. They threw fourteen, completing six for 144 yards and 12 points. Cleveland, a vastly improved team over that which appeared at Wrigley field against the Cardinals, also made frequent use of passes, throwing ten, three of which were completed for 44 yards.

The game was marked by the unusual spectacle of Manders, the game's greatest placekicker, missing a point after touchdown and two field goals before he succeeded from the 35 yard line in the third quarter.

Bad Day for Manders.

Until his final effort sailed over the bar, it had been a bad day for the big Bear half back and the league's leading scorer. He juggled a perfect pass from Masterson after apparently having made the catch in the open on the goal line. He missed an opportunity to increase his point total when the only pass he did catch was completed beyond the end line in the third period. His two field goal failures came from the 19 and 24 yard lines, the latter having been blocked.

Almost two teams of former Bear stars witnessed the contest, which had been designated as the Bears' first annual homecoming. They were the guests of the club at a banquet last night, which also served to celebrate the Bears' return to the throne for the first time since they were

Sure He'll Do It

AL NOTO.

Tip to Rivals: Dykes Is No Santa Claus

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Jim Dykes, who manages the White Sox, doesn't object to being called uncle, but refuses to go for a Santa Claus rôle. He came to town yesterday from Philadelphia boiling, despite the wintry weather, because men associated with him in the baseball business have been trying to take him for the fellow who gives away things and asks no questions.

What they want from Uncle Jim is a few of his ball players. Naturally, he wants a few in return. His demands, according to his viewpoint, are modest, even fair, but not so with the others. They are trying to work the old racket of a toothpick for a cord of wood.

"I guess they think I put over a couple of good ones the last few years and want to get even, but your Uncle Jim is still in his right mind," spoke the manager as he warmed up for the Milwaukee minor league meetings this week and the major sessions here next week.

O, That Cochrane Man!

"Is Cochrane [Detroit manager] still after you?" he was asked.

"Is he after me!" Dykes exploded. "I can't lose him. Just last Saturday at the Army-Navy game I heard somebody repeating 'How about that pitcher?' I figured some guy wanted to catch some of the rain water which was coming down in healthy fashion. Finally I looked around. It was Mike. I told him to shut up and watch the game.

"Mike couldn't see the field through the fog so he decided to get his money's worth by annoying me. When he discovered he couldn't get me into an argument he began to play on my sympathies. He said, 'Well, you owe me something.' I had to laugh about that one. He's still peeved because he gave me $75,000 for Al Simmons a few years ago. At the time he thought he had put over a swell one. He figured Simmons was what he needed to win a pennant. It didn't work out that way.

Be Reasonable, Mickey.

"I finally told him to quit talking history and with that he tells me he is going to continue to hound me at Milwaukee and Chicago. Well, if he wants to be reasonable, I'll listen to him."

Dykes' can't work himself into a crying jag over Cochrane's lack of pitching strength, because of what happened a year ago. Dykes tried to convince his old Athletic pal that John Whitehead would help the Tiger staff. Mike couldn't get the Simmons deal out of his mind, so spurned the suggestion. Now Mike has decided to be less choosy.

If Cochrane really wants a pitcher, he can have Merritt [Sugar] Cain, who held out last spring and thus fell into bad repute with the Sox manager. All the Tigers have to do to get him is to give Dykes a third baseman. The latter will take Marvin Owen, the veteran, or Mark Christman, whom the Tigers have called in from their Beaumont Texas league farm. According to the Heilbroner yearbook, just published, Christman batted only .291 last season but stole forty-six bases. Dykes never has seen the kid play but is willing to gamble, the White Sox third base situation being what it is.

Senators Also Seek Charity.

Dykes also is worked up over what he considers a request to contribute to the welfare of the Washington

YESTERDAY'S RESULTS.
Washington, 14; Green Bay, 6.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 28.—(AP)—Sammy Baugh, star of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S All-Star game this year, pitched the Washington Redskins to a 14 to 6 victory over the Green Bay Packers today in a National Professional league football game.

Baugh whipped a fifty-five yard pass to Charley Malone, an end, in the third period. On six successive plunges Cliff Battles put the ball over.

Jankowski Suffers Injury.

In the fourth quarter Baugh shot a sixteen yard pass to Don Irwin and followed up with an eleven yard toss to Malone, who dropped over the goal line for the second Redskin touchdown.

Ed Jankowski, Packer full back, suffered a possible skull fracture in the fourth period. He was taken to Emergency hospital, where physicians said they were unable to determine immediately the seriousness of his condition.

Jankowski was hit hard on a rushing play and was removed from the field on a stretcher. He was unconscious for about two hours.

Garner Attends Game.

Headed by Vice President John N. Garner, 30,000 spectators—the largest crowd to attend a football game in Washington—saw Green Bay launch a first period air attack which resulted in a touchdown.

Don Hutson, Packer end, also a former All-American in THE TRIBUNE'S contest, took a flip from Bob Monnett over the goal line for Green Bay's score, setting a new professional record for pass catching. It was his thirty-sixth of the season.

Packers Eliminated.

The victory kept Washington right behind the New York Giants in their battle for the eastern division championship. It also eliminated the Packers from possible representation in the annual playoff between champions of the eastern and western divisions. The lineups:

Kansas City Gets Joost on Option from Cincinnati

Kansas City, Mo., Nov. 28.—(AP)—Officials of the Kansas City Blues announced today they had obtained Edwin Joost, an infielder, on option from the Cincinnati Reds. Joost, who was farmed to Syracuse last season, comes as part of the deal that sent Infielder Charley English and Pitcher Ted Kleinhans to the Reds. A native of San Francisco, Joost formerly played with the Missions in the Pacific Coast league.

Bears on the March Toward That First Touchdown

Bronko Nagurski of the Bears blasts his way through the Rams for fourteen yards, with Ed Goddard and John Drake closing in on him. He was tackled at the point marked with the cross. Then he tossed a lateral pass to Jack Manders, who took the ball at the other cross and continued for 14 yards more. This play occurred in the first quarter of yesterday's game at Wrigley field. It put the ball on Cleveland's 42 yard line. A few plays later the Bears scored.

In the Wake of the News

BY ARCH WARD.

WHITE SOX fans still groan about that day in Boston when Manager Donie Bush spent an hour before the game teaching Smead Jolley how to back up a 20 degree slope to catch flies in Fenway park's left field. . . . In the fourth inning Jolley backed clear to the fence without a stumble, got set for a fly, then saw he was back too far. . . . Moving forward, he fell flat on his face. . . . "Bush just taught me to back up," he explained. . . . Max Stein of Belleville, Ill., who holds the all-time record for the American Bowling congress all-events, may owe some of his skill to an auto accident which so altered the shape of his hand that he has to use a special bowling ball with a 5¼ inch span between thumb and finger holes. . . . The largest previously recorded span was 4½ inches. . . . Scrapiron Young, Notre Dame's trainer, claims he can bandage an ankle, gauze, tape, and everything, in 25 seconds. . . . Bob McNamara, Pennsylvania guard, started his fifty-ninth consecutive game against Cornell Thanksgiving day. . . .

The late Andy Smith considered his quarter back, Charlie Erb, so valuable when he was coaching California that he did not have one play in which Erb carried the ball. . . . When Frankie Frisch takes his St. Louis Cardinals to camp next spring he's going to try out equipment he has seen on the football coaching fields this fall. . . . He plans to build a platform and get a megaphone. . . . Then, when some rookie throws to the wrong base, Frankie can spot him right away, and won't he give it to him with that megaphone? . . . The University of Washington varsity football team had five regulation games with the freshmen this season with the following result: Freshmen, four victories and one tie. . . . Jeff Cravath, assistant to Howard Jones at Southern California, scouted Alabama's last two games. . . . The Trojans open their 1938 season with Alabama. . . . Bill Watson, Michigan's shotput champion, has one ambition for the winter—to break the world's indoor shotput record of 53 feet 1½ inches. . . . He is bettering 50 feet in practice consistently.

Americans Tie Bruins, 3-3, on Stewart's Goals

Boston, Mass., Nov. 28.—(AP)—Nels Stewart led the New York Americans to a 3 to 3 deadlock with the undefeated Boston Bruins tonight before a crowd of 12,000 at the Boston garden. The veteran center whipped in all of the Americans' goals in less than seven minutes during the second period to wipe out the Bruins' 2 to 0 and 3 to 2 leads.

Milt Schmidt opened the Boston scoring during the last minute of the first period and Roy Goldsworthy and Charley Sands accounted for the Bruins' other goals, made during the second period.

The ice, due to the unseasonable heat, started melting in the third period, with the result that the surface was almost unfit for play during the overtime action. The Bruins, starting without the injured Ray Getliffe, played the last 20 minutes without Red Beattie, who suffered a skate cut on his leg halfway through the third frame. Goalie Earl Robertson of the Americans was cut over the eye in the third period and play held up while he was stitched.

It was the Bruins' eighth game without a setback and by splitting the points they raised their total to 14 in the American division, seven more than the second place Rangers. The lineups:

MAROONS, 3; WINGS, 1

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 28.—(AP)—Montreal's Maroons pulled into a tie with the Canadiens for third place in the international division of the National Hocky league tonight by whipping the luckless Detroit Red Wings, 3 to 1, before 8,819.

The champion Red Wings, with a chance to get out of the American division cellar by winning, could not crack the Maroon defense and suffered their sixth defeat in nine games. It was the Maroon's third victory in nine contests.

Russ Blinco scored the Maroons' first goal at 11:19 of the first period, skating in fast from right wing to take a pass from Stew Evans and beat Goalie Norm Smith. Baldy Northcott and Earl Robinson added the other Montreal goals midway in the second period.

CHICAGO ENTRIES HAVE A BIG DAY AT HORSE SHOW

25,000 Attracted by Two Performances.

Twenty-five thousand spectators packed the International Amphitheater yesterday afternoon and last night to witness performances of the horse show held in conjunction with the annual International Live Stock exposition.

They witnessed an impressive string of victories by exhibitors from Illinois, with those from Chicago and suburbs predominating to the extent of making it almost a clean sweep in the award of blue ribbons.

Chicago horses had not been expected to score as consistently as they did, but they were in rare form and showed their merit against the best from many parts of the United States.

George Peak Drives.

The night performance produced the spectacle of George J. Peak, 76 years old, of Winchester, Ill., driving his bay mare, All Spring, to third place in the high speed roadster class. He has competed in every show since the first international, 38 years ago. Top honors in the event were taken by Mr. Peak's son, Ralph.

Another interesting evening feature was the appearance of Mrs. William C. Cox as the first woman judge ever to officiate at the classic. Mrs. Cox, who has served at the Olympic show in London, the Royal in Toronto, and major shows in the United States, pinned the ribbons in the Chicago Equestrian grand championship, in which place winners of various shows held in this vicinity during the last season competed.

The entrants were rewarded for horsemanship and the final selections in the order named were: James A. Tatman Jr., International Live Stock exposition horse show; Douglas Robb, Dunham Woods horse show; Phyllis Thompson, South Shore Country club horse show; Robert Goes, Chicago Charter Jubilee horse show, and Joan Monroe, International.

Some of the Winners.

James Vernor Jr., of Detroit broke the string of Illinois victories when his North Woods won the jumpers class at the matinée show, and Miss Judy King of Atlanta, Ga., repeated in the evening with her Killoran Magi and Dufferin Dare in the event for harness horses exhibiting in pairs to a light four wheel vehicle.

The 124th Field Artillery Gunners, lining up with Lieut. Don Rice, Capt. W. S. Everett and Lieut. W. D. Fergus, made their debut in the round robin polo tournament last night by defeating the 122d Field Artillery, 4½ to 4.

Pennsylvanian Is Named Princeton Soccer Captain

Princeton, N. J., Nov. 28.—(AP)—George H. Johnson, class of 1939, of Drexel Hill, Pa., was elected captain of the Princeton soccer team, Coach William F. Logan announced today. Ernest B. Lindsay, 1939, of Bronxville, N. Y., will succeed James B. Kerr, 1938, of Greensburg, Pa., as manager.

SMILIN' JACK—THE MOONLIGHT MENACE

Sparta Wins, 4 to 2, from Shamrocks

BY OFFSIDE.

The Sparta soccer team defeated the St. Louis Shamrocks, Western cup winners the last two years, 4 to 2, at the Sparta stadium yesterday. The field was covered with ice and snow.

The Shamrocks scored first, Neilson tipping a rebound from the Sparta goalkeeper, Silvosky, into the net. Wolf tied the score for Sparta after twenty minutes, driving around Erbe to get his shot at the goal. The half ended with the score 1 to 1.

Benefited by the wind, in the second half, the Sparta team completely dominated the play, going into the lead after twenty-two minutes on a goal by Trimmel. McNab soon tied the score, however, on a fine shot. This situation continued until near the end of the game, when Trimmel found the net twice more to assure a Sparta victory.

ACORNS BEAT EAGLES, 2-1.

The Oak Park Acorns defeated the American Eagles, 2 to 1, in the replay for the National Amateur Soccer cup yesterday at 2600 West Grand avenue. Cold and snow forced cancellation of other games in Chicago yesterday.

MACCABEES WIN, 6-3.

St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 28.—[Special.]—The Maccabee soccer team of Chicago defeated St. Matthew, 6 to 3, today. Reggie Wright and Al Waldron made two goals each and Lillie and Molvie one each for the Maccabees. Murphy, Moore and Zimmerman scored for St. Matthew.

KILIAN-VOPEL TEAM LEADS IN NEW YORK RACE

New York, Nov. 28.—(AP)—The German team of Heinz Vopel and Gustav Kilian led New York's 63d six day bicycle race at midnight tonight, three hours after the grind got under way before 15,000 in Madison Square Garden.

A total of 70 laps were stolen during the first three hours, with the German pedalers, winners of the recent Chicago race, showing the way by a lap to the Peden brothers, Torchy and Doug, from Canada, and the French-Belgian combination of Alf Letourner and Gerard Debaets.

DON LASH WINS A. A. U. RUN; HIS FOURTH STRAIGHT

Newark, N. J., Nov. 28.—(AP)—Don Lash, former Indiana university star, won the national senior A. A. U. cross country championship today for the fourth consecutive year, running the 10,000 meters at Branch Brook park in 32:57.4.

Lash took the lead at the start and was out in front all the way. Finishing second was Tom Deckard of Indiana university, about 100 yards behind, and third, 100 more yards behind, was Joe McClusky of the New York A. C.

Lash is the only man to win the event four times in a row. Millrose A. A., champion in 1934, regained the team title, scoring 35 points as its men placed third [Lash's place does not count in team competition], sixth, seventh, ninth, and tenth.

City Squash Tournament Games to Start Saturday

The annual city squash tournament at John Marshall Law School courts, 315 Plymouth court, will open Saturday when John Marshall, defending champion, meets the Dartmouth alumni team. Class A entries, besides John Marshall and Dartmouth, are the C. A. A., University club, Chicago Town and Tennis club, and Chicago Dearborn club. Class B has two squads from John Marshall and one each from Chicago Dearborn club, Union League club, Evanston Y. M. C. A., Lake Shore A. C., Lawson Y. M. C. A., and Allman's gym.

TEMPLE SMITH WINS IN DINGHY RACING SERIES

Three races were held yesterday by skippers and crews of the Chicago chapter of the North American Dinghy association, in Belmont harbor. A strong north wind froze spray to the dinghies' rigging.

After an unofficial tune-up race, the crews of five craft shoved off from the Chicago Yacht club in the first event. A windward and leeward course was sailed, one mile in length up and down the harbor. Leeds Mitchell Jr. finished first in the opening contest. His time was 7 minutes and 33 seconds for the mile. Temple Smith won the second race, in 9:10. Gus Larsen was first in the final race, in 13:30.

Point standings, including skippers who placed in the lead and the runners up in each race, gave Smith high score for the day. Larsen scored second in the three races, followed in points by Mitchell, and Grover Steffen.

PAUL SHU, V. M. I., TOPS CONFERENCE WITH 65 POINTS

Richmond, Va., Nov. 28.—(AP)—Paul Shu, Virginia Military institute sophomore who scored in every game this fall, led the Southern conference this season with 65 points. The Alexandria, Va., youth counted nine touchdowns and eleven points after touchdown. He also contributed to three other V. M. I. touchdowns with scoring passes.

Duke's Elmore [Honey] Hackney trailed Shu by a point with the same number of touchdowns and ten points after touchdown. Jim Meade, Maryland, and Mel Henry, Virginia Tech, were tied for third place with 48 points.

Hawks Go to Montreal; Still Seek Victory

New York, Nov. 28.—[Special.]—The Chicago Blackhawks, who have not been able to score against the New York Americans in the two games played this season, left tonight for Montreal and the last game of their present three game trip which now shows two losses. Last night the Americans won, 4 to 0.

They clash for the first time this season Tuesday night with King Clancy's Maroons, who handed Chicago decisive defeats in all of the six 1936-'37 meetings, making 24 scores to the Hawks' 7 in accomplishing the feat.

Thompson at Right Wing.

Dahlstrom filled in at center between Gottselig and Brydson on a second string. A third line has Vic Heyliger at left, Louis Trudell at center and Bill Kendall at right.

March Will Be Ready Thursday.

A telegraphic report from Dr. H. S. Meacham, Blackhawks' physician in Chicago, carried the cheering news that Mush March will be able to participate in the Hawks-New York Rangers' clash, which is scheduled for Chicago Thursday. In a previous meeting in New York between the teams the Blackhawks won, 3 to 1.

BARBARA AND BROWN FEATURE MARIGOLD CARD

Former Golden Glovers Meet at Ten Rounds.

Johnny Barbara and Harold Brown, a couple of Golden Gloves products, will top tonight's card at Marigold Gardens, Broadway and Grace street. They meet for ten rounds at 148 pounds.

The weight may have something to do with the outcome, for Barbara wore heavy clothing during chores last week, causing speculation as to whether or not he will make the required poundage without weakening himself.

Barbara Is the Heavier.

In his last performance Barbara carried 149½ pounds for his eight round triumph over Chester Rudy at White City Oct. 8. Brown weighed 144¾ for a victory over George Salvadore at Marigold Oct. 11.

Barbara, who is unbeaten in seventeen fights, is getting an opportunity to shine. Fans admit Brown, who has been defeated only twice in thirty appearances, is good, but they're willing to wager Barbara will match anything the west sider does.

Early arrivals will see Paul Berlenbach, the former light heavyweight champion, as referee in one of three matches at four rounds. These will bring together Fred Tello, Louisville 137 pounder, and Johnny Heistrom; Bill McDowell, welterweight, also of Louisville, and Owen Woods, and Al Schiarato, south side junior welterweight and Charley Hudson.

EASTERN SEASON ENDS IN A BLAZE OF FOG AND MUD

Fordham, Pitt Round Out Unbeaten Campaigns.

BY WILFRID SMITH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 28.—The football season, at least in the eastern sector, went down to a watery grave yesterday and in its passing proved that the football public can take it as well as watch it. One must go back seven years to Soldiers' field, when Notre Dame defeated Army, 7 to 6, to find a larger number of persons more uncomfortable than were the 102,000 drenched spectators in yesterday's fog and rain at Philadelphia's Municipal stadium.

It wasn't cold and this is the only word of praise that can be given a game which was intended to be the height of pageantry and social parade, with military and governmental background, but which lagged through dismal hours more drab than was Fordham's intra-city triumph over New York university or Pittsburgh's victory over Duke at Durham, N. C.

It Should Have Been a Show.

Cadets and midshipmen were present. They cheered and sang as only these student regiments can cheer and sing. And the Navy goat, the Army mule, and Army's latest mascot, a miniature mule disguised as a goat which was escorted to the stadium in a patrol wagon, were there. Washington's bigwigs, and the generals and admirals and their ladies were there, huddled under transparent raincoats.

Neither regiment paraded, except around the cinder track to their seating sections, on which they stood most of the afternoon, to the further discomfiture of spectators behind them.

Although the regiments stayed off the gridiron, their reasonable restraint was not matched by thousands who swarmed from the stands during intermission, as if at a country fair, and churned up the soft surface as thoroughly as if 4,000 student soldiers had marched.

Ceiling Zero; Visibility Zero.

Over all was the fog, sometimes obscuring the mud caked players, and the rain, which never ceased. Huge fog-blurred pylon lights blazed dimly through the murk as Army and Navy finished their football ritual.

Thus, Jim Craig's touchdown for Army in the first period, preceded by two astonishingly successful forward passes, was seized upon as the dramatic event of the game. Craig's plunge was as routine as practice drill and the passes of utter simplicity, but by them Army won, 6 to 0, and justified hours of discomfort.

Nearly a half million dollars was paid in admissions. To this sum, if one is mathematically minded, may be added speculators' profits, parking fees, sales of transportation, hotels, and the amount paid for tons of hot dogs and gallons of coffee a hungry public consumed.

Wilson Is the Real Hero.

Much will be written of Craig, the Oklahoma boy, who whipped Navy. More should be said about Woody Wilson, who had handled the ball on five of the six plays by which Army moved from Navy's 42 yard line to the 1 yard line, for Wilson, at the call of Coach Gar Davidson, turned over his assignment and the headlines to his substitute.

Rose Bowl fever is raging on Rose hill today after Fordham's 20 to 7 conquest of New York University and completion of an undefeated season. Fordham held Pittsburgh to a scoreless tie and, for this reason, considers its claim on a trip to Los Angeles of equal merit to that of the Panthers, who trounced Duke yesterday, 10 to 0. In the south, equally ambitious, and with a record of never having lost a Rose Bowl game, is Alabama, undefeated and untied.

Pitt Is the Best Team.

The basis of selection will be explained after choice has been made, but if California wishes to play the best team, it will meet Pittsburgh. If California wants an undefeated team, it presumably could have Lafayette, Villanova, or Colorado in addition to Alabama.

If California wants publicity it will choose Fordham. There are a score of New York newspapermen anxious to vacation in California.

Nebraska again is Big Six champion by the margin of Lowell English's field goal at Kansas State. Georgia's run back of a kick tied Georgia Tech, 6 to 6, and Tulane, with an imperfect pass defense, fell before Louisiana State, 20 to 7. Holy Cross remained undefeated [although tied twice] by whipping Boston college and Stanford was held to a scoreless tie by Columbia, which ended a most disappointing season with this satisfaction.

Irish Also Make Headlines.

Second in importance only to the victories by Fordham and Pitt was Notre Dame's rallying finish to whip Southern California, 13 to 6. By this victory, the Irish not only broke a long string of one touchdown games but concluded the season with six victories, two defeats, and one tie. None would have predicted this when at the end of one third of the schedule Notre Dame had been tied by Illinois and defeated by Carnegie Tech.

Andy Puplis, who had been the chief offensive threat of the campaign, tied the score. The winning point after touchdown was blocked, but, in a dramatic finish, Mario Tonelli broke away for sixty-nine yards in the final minute and then followed up with an eight yard smash for victory.

Quick Captures 25,000 Francs Race at Auteuil

AUTEUIL, France, Nov. 28.—(AP)—M. Desrez's Quick won the 25,000 franc [$3,100] Prix Auguste Merle today, leading Simon Guthmann's Bach Agha to the wire by five lengths. Andrew Prevost's Mar Bella was third. The winner paid 45 for 10.

Lateral Pass Clicks.

One exchange of punts, on which the Bears gained four yards, preceded the first scoring thrust. Goddard's punt was killed on the Bears' 25 yard line and Manders got the goalward march under way with a three yard smash inside tackle. Nagurski got six yards in two plays, but the Bears were off side on Manders' attempt for first down. Nagurski blasted his way outside the Rams' right tackle for 14 yards on fourth down and lateraled to Manders for 14 more, making it first down on Cleveland's 42 yard line.

Feathers swept wide to the right for eight yards, the Bears were off side on the next play and Molesworth got back only four on a lunge at center, Nagurski then rushed up to the line, fired a short pass to Karr coming across from right end in front of Drake, Karr raced 31 yards to the goal line. The icy condition of the field hampered Manders' attempt for the extra point and the ball sailed wide of the uprights.

Rams Make Threat.

In the final minute of the first period, Drake, bucking over right guard on second down, cut back, struck out for the far side of the field. He was nearly away along the west side lines when Feathers overtook him on the Bears' 15 yard line. Snyder made seven yards, but Drake lost two as the quarter ended. The threat waned when Snyder was stopped for a two yard gain on the first play of the second period and expired on the next play when Goddard, attempting to pass, was thrown for a seven yard loss on the 15 yard line.

The Bears' second touchdown drive got under way from this point with Nolting losing three yards on the first play. He slipped around Cleveland's right end for twelve yards, and another twelve yards was added on third down when Masterson passed to Manske. Nolting bucked for a yard, then plowed through a hole at left tackle for seventeen yards, placing the ball on the Rams' 46 yard line.

Manske Scores on Pass.

Masterson's first down pass failed and Ronzani got only three yards at center, making it third down on the 43 yard line. Masterson then threw a pass up the middle to Manske. Wayne Gift had Manske covered, but when the ball arrived high Gift stayed on the ground while Manske leaped and made the catch. The leap gave him a lead on Gift and he continued on twenty-five yards to the goal. Masterson's attempted place kick was blocked and the Bears led at the half, 12 to 0.

Cleveland aroused the Bears at the start of the second half by receiving the kickoff and scoring without surrendering the ball. Goddard brought the kickoff back thirty-one yards to the 36 yard line. A Bear offside penalty moved it to the 41 yard line and Drake made it first down with a five yard drive off tackle. Two plays netted no gain, but on third down Snyder passed sixteen yards to Busich. Busich lateraled to Goddard, but Goddard was dropped on the Bears' 38 yard line for no gain. A plunge gained a yard, then Goddard passed to Busich for twenty-six yards and Busich lateraled to Tackle Ralph Miller for eleven and a touchdown. Snyder place-kicked the extra point, making the score 12 to 7.

Manders Kicks Goal.

The Bears had two opportunities in the next six minutes, but turned only one into points. Stydahar blocked Goddard's punt and Karr recovered on the Rams' 29 yard line. Nagurski, Manders and Feathers advanced seventeen yards on three plays, but after Masterson's two passes had failed Manders made an unsuccessful attempt to place kick a field goal from the 19 yard line, driving the ball into the line of scrimmage and propelling it out of bounds on the 8 yard line.

Feathers brought Snyder's first down punt back nineteen yards to the Rams' 33 yard line, from where Nagurski advanced five yards in two smashes. Masterson passed to Manders in the corner of the field on third down. It was a perfect pass and a touchdown seemed inevitable, but Manders allowed the ball to bob about in his arms and fall to the ground on the goal line. He then went back to the 35 yard line and with Masterson holding, place-kicked a field goal, making the score 15 to 7. Neither team made any noteworthy advance in the fourth quarter.

N. Y. Sends Out 600,000 Licenses to Hunt, Fish, Trap

Albany, N. Y., Nov. 28.—[Special.]—The state conservation department has sent out more than 600,000 hunting, fishing, and trapping licenses to county clerks for distribution starting Dec. 1.

Sonja Henie to Open 8 Day Show Dec. 25

Sonja Henie, ice skating and movie star, who within a period of two years has developed into one of the world's greatest box office attractions, will open an engagement at the Chicago Stadium or Christmas night and will remain for eight nights, including New Year's day. It will be the longest engagement for any ice production in Chicago. Last winter Miss Henie appeared at the Stadium for five performances, every one of which was a sellout. The total paid attendance was 90,000, a record for a skating show.

Supporting the dainty former Olympic champion, who now is in motion pictures, will be a company of 100 skaters from Hollywood. The supporting cast and ballet are now working on Miss Henie's third picture, "Bread, Butter, and Rhythm," and will arrive in Chicago several days in advance of the première for final rehelsals.

Miss Henie has selected the skaters who will appear in her company and promises several champions from Canada and Europe. The ballet that appeared with Miss Henie in the films "One in a Million" and "Thin Ice" is expected to appear in its entirety.

SANTA CLARA ROUTS GONZAGA; RECORD CLEAR

Sacramento, Cal., Nov. 28.—(AP)—Santa Clara's Broncos, only major far western football team to complete its season without defeat or tie, made its last and greatest bid for second invitation to the Sugar Bowl today with a 27 to 0 victory over Gonzaga University.

Head Coach Lawrence Shaw, ill at his home, was not afforded the satisfaction of watching his team complete its season of eight victories, 157 points scored and only nine yielded. The Broncos scored a touchdown in each quarter today, Fisher, Brown, Pellegrini and Gunther going over.

Jerry Lavan Captures City Table Tennis Title

Jerry Lavan won the Chicago district table tennis championship, Saturday night at the Stay and Play club. In the finals, Lavan beat Gordon Muchow, 21-19, 21-14, 21-15. The semi-final tryouts for the Chicago team that competes in the national team tournament will be held Tuesday at the Stay and Play club. Because of his victory, Lavan is exempt from this round, entering the final matches.

Autumn Metaphor.

The gorgeous shades of fall
Lovely thoughts of you recall,
For brilliant, sparkling skies
Remind me of your deep blue eyes;
And glossy oak leaves I compare
With the sheen of your brown hair.
No prettier tint red apples show
Than the blushing, rosy glow
Upon your cheeks. Your gentle sigh
Echoes in breezes whispering by.
At harvest time glad thanks are due,
And I give thanks, my dear, for you.

GEORGE WILLIAMS BASKET TEAM TO PLAY 13 GAMES

Three transfer students have bolstered prospects for this year. Kraft from Carroll college and Reid of Midland college, Nebraska, are fitting in as regular forwards. James, former Negro star at Toledo university, is playing center. Capt. Rollin Ball is at one guard post and Kremanak of Traer, Iowa, and Pranger of Parker High school are alternating at the other guard position. The schedule:

Dec. 8—Chicago Normal at Chicago Normal.
Dec. 11—Concordia at Milwaukee.
Dec. 17—Lake Forest at Lake Forest.
Jan. 8—Milwaukee State Teachers at home.
Jan. 13—Wheaton at Wheaton.

Feb. 5—American at home.
Feb. 11—Detroit Tech at Detroit.
Feb. 12—Detroit "Y" at Detroit.
Feb. 18—Kalamazoo at home.
Feb. 19—Elmhurst at home.

Rebel Spain's Soccer Team Loses to Portugal, 2 to 1

LISBON, Nov. 28.—(AP)—Insurgent Spain entered the field of international sports today. Its soccer team was defeated by Portugal, 2 to 1, at Vigo, Spain.

Field Hocky Title Is Won by Southeast

The women's national field hocky tournament ended yesterday at Skokie field in Winnetka with the awarding of the championship to the Southeast No. 1 team and the selection of two all-American squads by the United States Field Hocky association judges.

The Southeast team ended four days of play without a defeat by defeating the Northeast first team, 5 to 0. Ann Leary of Philadelphia scored twice, while Eleanor Hull, Virginia Marryweather, and Marian Edwards, all of Philadelphia, accounted for a goal apiece.

A and B Squads Named.

The custom of choosing an All-American team by position was abandoned in favor of selection of A and B squads. Only four players merited the A team selection. They were Francis Elliott, Philadelphia, seven times a national choice; Anne Townsend, Philadelphia, an All-American since 1923; Anne Delano of Boston, and Betty Ritchie of the Vassar college faculty.

Those named on the B squad were: Jane Adair, Kenilworth; Barbara Crowe, Boston; Marian Edwards, Virginia Marryweather, and Anne Peary, Philadelphia; Marian Fuller, Richmond, Va.; Louise Gray, Madison, Wis.; Marjorie Harrowell, St. Louis; Frances Pierce, Bennington, Vt.; Gretchen Schuyler and Selina Silleck, New York City; Harriet Walton, Richmond, Va.; Elizabeth Washburn, Highland Park, and Evelyn Wieneke, Glencoe.

Midwest Ties, 0 to 0.

Other results of the final round: Midwest, first team, and Great Lakes, first team, played to scoreless tie; Northeast seconds defeated Southeast seconds, 1 to 0; Midwest seconds defeated Great Lakes seconds, 2 to 1.

STREET LOOKS AT TEAM; SAYS HE IS READY TO TRADE

St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 28.—(AP)—Gabby Street, newly appointed manager of the St. Louis Browns, arrived in town today and indicated several player deals are in the air.

"You can't hurt yourself by making trades, you know, when you wind up in last place," the old sergeant drawled. "We need a shortstop, a second baseman and a catcher as well as pitchers. We have several irons in the fire—at the moment with New York, Chicago, and Detroit—and they don't all involve pitchers. But maybe I'll be able to get a little more out of some of the boys than they showed last season."

Street will depart tomorrow for Milwaukee to attend the minor league meeting.

Zimmy Almost Swims in Lake; Polar Bears Do

Charles Zimmy, the legless swimmer who paddled the Hudson river from Albany to New York without a stop, almost went into Lake Michigan yesterday.

He was invited by the Polar Bears' club to join them in a dip at Edgewater beach. He accepted, announcing that there was no better way to train for the Key West-Havana swim he is planning for next month than to battle the local variety of chilling waves. But when he arrived on the sands there was no boatman to carry him out and he can't swim [he said] in less than five feet of water.

"I must give up this idea," he said. "I have a better one. I'll jump off a bridge into the Chicago river tomorrow, or maybe Tuesday. Of course, I'll ask Mayor Kelly if he minds, and if he does perhaps I won't do my Brodie. I'll go up to Toronto and practice a little in Lake Ontario. That'll be cold enough to toughen a man for a tropical swim."

LEWIS BREAKS 30 LAP RECORD IN ARMORY RACE

Marshall Lewis of Los Angeles increased his lead in the race for the midwest auto racing championship at the 124th Field Artillery armory last night. He won the thirty lap main event in the record time of 6:17:58.

Johnny Ritter of Detroit finished second and Jimmy Snyder of Chicago third. Lewis' new record erased a mark of 6.35:45 set by Ritter. Summaries:

SECOND ELIMINATION, CLASS A—Won by Emil Andres; Myron Fohr, second; Ted Duncan, third. Time, 2:42.

THIRD ELIMINATION, CLASS A—Won by Cletus O'Rourke; Jimmy Snyder, second; Henry Banks, third. Time, 2:43.

FOURTH ELIMINATION, CLASS A—Won by Doc Shanebrook; Duke Nalon, second; Ted Tetterton, third. Time, 2:45.

FIRST ELIMINATION, CLASS B [12 laps]—Won by Bill Shindler; Earl Simmons, second; Bill Klein, third. Time, 2:56.

SECOND ELIMINATION, CLASS B—Won by Dan Bummerstadt; Martin Wiswald, second; Bill Smith, third. Time, 3:03.

HANDICAP [15 laps]—Won by Ted Duncan; Johnny Ritter, second; Emil Andres, third. Time, 3:16.

FINAL, CLASS B [20 laps]—Won by Fred Tortmeier; Marty Wiswald, second; Frank Burany, third. Time, 4:43.

MEMO TO DYKES' RIVALS: OLD JIM'S NO SANTA CLAUS

"Griff had me thinking he would trade Kuhel for Bonura," said Dykes. "When I make inquiry, what do I hear? Sure, I can have Kuhel for Bonura but I must also throw in a pitcher. I was surprised Griff didn't say that he would consider Stratton or Kennedy as the pitcher. He may be the Old Fox, but he's not going to prove it at my expense."

Griff also is ready to trade Infielder Buddy Myer and Dykes is interested but dreads hearing what the Washington demands will be. He suspects Griff will ask for a pitcher along with Utility Infielder Lou Berger.

The landing of Bill Werber, Athletics third baseman, apparently is out. Dykes' last word from Connie Mack, boss of the A's, was that Werber and Outfielders Johnson and Moses were not on the market. Dykes would welcome either of the latter pair. But he may get outfield help by dealing with the Browns for Joe Vosmik.

MUNGO MAY GO

New York, Nov. 28.—[Special.]—Van Lingle Mungo, right hander of the Brooklyn pitching staf, may be seen in the livery of some other National league club next season, but only in the event that such a shift can be brought about in a deal that would prove advantageous to the Dodgers.

This was the opinion given today by Manager Burleigh Grimes upon his arrival in town to pick up the loose ends of rehabilitating the Dodgers.

At first a trifle reluctant about discussing the matter, Grimes gradually thawed out. The first thing he made clear was that the Dodgers have no intention of "giving away" the big pitcher, who in mid-season went balky on the Dodgers, suffering first a lame back, then a suspension. Mungo recently was quoted as declaring he would not pitch for the Brooklyn club next year and, unless traded to somebody else, would retire.

REDS READY TO DEAL

Cincinnati, O., Nov. 28.—[Special.]—Paul Derringer, Gene Schott, and Al Hollingsworth are to be the principal trading bait offered by the Cincinnati Reds this week at the minor league baseball meeting in Milwaukee, it was learned authoritatively tonight. All three are pitchers. The word is out that Bill McKechnie, new manager of the Reds, is hopeful also of trading Ernie Lombardi, hard hitting catcher, and Lew Riggs, third baseman.

Club officials let it be known that they are fed up with Derringer's prima donna attitude.

CHICAGOANS SUE ARTHUR HAYS FOR INVESTMENT LOSS

Charge Assets Wasted in Solvents Concern.

Wilmington, Del., Nov. 27.—[Special.]—A lawsuit directed principally against a number of defendants including Arthur Garfield Hays, New York attorney who is spokesman for a number of liberal and radical organizations, is scheduled for a hearing here next Wednesday.

Among the plaintifs are several prominent Chicagoans who invested in the Union Solvents corporation and who allege Hays and others were responsible for dissipation of its assets. The plaintifs are represented by Attorney Harold M. Keele of Chicago.

More than $850,000 had been put into the stock of the company which was organized to develop butyl alcohol and acetone through a new and improved process of fermentation recommended by Dr. Nathaniel Frutkow, Chicago bacteriologist, who died last year. The company was formed early in 1929.

Chicagoans Backing Action.

Among the investors who are bringing the suit are Max Adler, donor of the Adler Planetarium, and Otto C. Doering, both of whom were vice presidents of Sears, Roebuck & Co.; Horace Levinson, son of Attorney Salmon O. Levinson of Kellogg peace pact fame, and Martin C. Schwab, engineer and art connoisseur.

According to Attorney Keele, the new company began producing solvents early in 1929 and almost immediately a suit alleging patent infringement was filed by the Commercial Solvents corporation. The courts held there was a patent infringement and the Union Solvents corporation was enjoined against using the process.

The company suspended operations, according to the complaint, and recently stockholders learned that all its assets had been dissipated.

Attorney Names Promotors.

Bernard Pollak, a member of a Cincinnati steel family, and Jules P. Carter were named by Attorney Keele as promotors. He charges they and Hays continued to draw large salaries and fees from the company, which was out of business, and that its property was sold for a fraction of its value, and without the knowledge or consent of the stockholders.

A petition asking an accounting was filed here, the company having been incorporated here, and the court was asked to appoint a receiver who would be authorized to sue Hays, Carter and Pollak. He said the court would act on the petition Wednesday.

WILMETTE BOYS' BODIES TAKEN FROM ICY LAKE

A 48 hour search ended yesterday with the recovery of the bodies of Jack Jennings and Jay Crowell, New Trier high school seniors and residents of Wilmette, who drowned when they broke through the ice on Rainy lake, near International Falls, Minn.

The youths, both 17 years old, had gone with Arne Bridges, instructor in French at New Trier, to spend the Thanksgiving holiday on Bushyhead island in the lake, where Bridges has a cottage. They started across the ice to Renier Friday afternoon, intending to get mail.

On Saturday a resident of the region reported that he had seen two caps near a hole in the ice along Black bay, an arm of the lake, and policemen and game wardens dragged the lake bottom.

Young Crowell's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Francis J. Crowell of 623 Lake avenue, Wilmette, left yesterday afternoon for International Falls and are expected to arrive there this morning. Jennings is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph C. Jennings, 126 Broadway, Wilmette.

CHANUKAH OPENS WITH SERVICES IN SYNAGOGUES

Chanukah, Jewish feast which combines joyous celebration with religious devotion, began last night at sundown and will continue eight days. The feast recalls the rededication of the temple at Jerusalem after the city had been recaptured from Antiochus Epiphanes and his Syrian Greeks by Judas Maccabeus and his Jewish followers in the second century before the Christian era.

Special services and entertainments mark the observance in all synagogues. Yesterday afternoon North Shore Congregation Israel, Glencoe, marked Chanukah with an entertainment in which children of the synagogue took part.

Services will be held at Agudath Achim synagogue, 5029 North Kenmore avenue, tomorrow night with singing by Cantor Aaron Kritz and Isadore Mishkin, concert baritone. At Temple Beth Israel, Bernard and Ainslie streets, Chanukah will be observed Friday night, with Dr. Evelyn K. Garfield, Madison, Wis., as the principal speaker.

Wednesday Is Deadline for Real Estate Taxpayers

Taxpayers were warned yesterday that Wednesday will be the last day for the payment of the second instalment of real estate taxes for the year 1936. William J. Lake, chief clerk in the county treasurer's office, said a penalty of 1 per cent will be added to bills paid after that day.

Hold Memorial Services at Graves of 150 Show Folk

Memorial services were held yesterday over the graves of 150 show folk in Showmen's Rest at Woodlawn cemetery. It was the annual ceremony of the Showmen's League of America, which will have its annual benefit ball at the Hotel Sherman on Wednesday.

2 CARS COLLIDE; POLICEMAN AND 2 OTHERS HURT

Machines Collide in Skokie Road.

A Lake Forest policeman and two other persons were injured yesterday in a collision between a squad car and an automobile in Skokie road a third of a mile south of Westleigh road. Policeman Derk Bennes was returning to the police station with Robert L. Wood, colored, 42 years old, a deputy clerk of the Chicago Municipal court, after putting out a fire in Wood's car. The squad car and an automobile driven by Dr. M. J. Doyle, 40 years old, a dentist of Lansing, Mich., collided. Bennes, Woods and Dr. Doyle's wife were injured.

Harry T. Smith, 51 East Elm street, wealthy former shoe manufacturer, will be arraigned in Safety court today on a charge of leaving the scene of an accident. He surrendered after Earl Rook, 41 years old, 7627 Emerald avenue, house detective at the Edgewater Beach hotel, was knocked down and injured in front of the hotel early yesterday.

Mrs. Neal Rhynearson, 34 years old, 359 Marshall street, Gary, died last night of injuries suffered Saturday evening when she was struck by a hit and run automobile at 4th avenue and Marshall street, Gary.

Francis Moran, 51 years old, 5124 Fulton street, an elevator operator, died yesterday in the Frances Willard hospital of injuries incurred Saturday when he was knocked down at Laramie avenue and Madison street by an automobile driven by Leo Goldstein, 38 years old, 5552 Gladys avenue.

F. B. Eager of East Chicago was killed and Edward Ramsey of Assumption was injured at Decatur yesterday when the car in which they were riding skidded and crashed into a ditch.

Donald Robinson, 7 years old, 213 Superior street, Ottawa, Ill., died in Presbyterian hospital early today from a skull fracture incurred two months ago when hit by a truck at Ottawa. Typhoid fever developed after he was injured and when he recovered from it, he was brought here for further treatment of the fracture.

Up to 4 p. m. yesterday, 983 persons had been killed by automobiles in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these 740 were killed in Chicago, where 20,881 were injured in the period.

ESTIMATE U. S. WILL HAVE BIG WHEAT SURPLUS

Carryover Put at 200 Million Bushels.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

The United States will have a wheat surplus of about 200 million bushels when the present crop season officially closes on July 1, 1938, according to present prospects. This is 50 to 75 million bushels larger than a normal carryover and 100 million bushels more than that with which the country began the present season last July.

A surplus of approximately this size appears inevitable despite the prospect that American export sales will expand materially in the next few months. So far export business has not been up to expectations, due in part to the fact that Russia has supplied more wheat to the world market than was counted on and partly to the fact that European importing countries have delayed purchases as much as possible pending the outcome of the crops in Australia and Argentina.

Argentine Crop Damaged.

In the last four weeks the Argentine crop has suffered materially from frost damage. American export prospects have improved correspondingly. But after making allowance for the prospective increase in American exports, there remains the likelihood of a big surplus. It is this factor, probably more than any other, that has weighed down wheat prices

Blames Rising Cost and Taxes for Trade Dip

Rising costs of doing business and an increasing tax burden are two of the principal factors explaining the business recession of the last three months, the Guaranty Trust company, New York, asserted yesterday in its current monthly review.

The earnings of many business concerns unquestionably have been affected by increasing costs of carrying on their activities and the increase in such costs "threatens to become more serious rather than less so as time goes on," the survey said. It offers this as an explanation of what it terms a "growing hesitancy in making forward commitments."

Rising Costs Affect Prices.

These growing costs, the report declares, have had an effect on retail prices of consumers' goods. This also injures business, it was said, because competition frequently makes it impossible to adjust prices quickly so as to pass the increase along to the consumer. The resultant decrease in profit margins stifles business initiative and causes declines in production and in employment.

Among the industries said to be feeling the "unfortunate effects" of high costs were those involving durable goods, construction, railroads, and automobile production.

Blames Indirect Taxes.

Concerning taxes, the survey said the direct levies were only a part of the load and that indirect taxes make up a large share of the increase in business costs.

As remedies the survey suggested the repeal or revision of "uneconomic tax laws" and a reduction of government expenditures sufficient to balance the budget without excessive taxes.

Drastic changes in or outright elimination of the undistributed profits tax and the capital gains tax were urged.

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farms

By Frank Ridgway

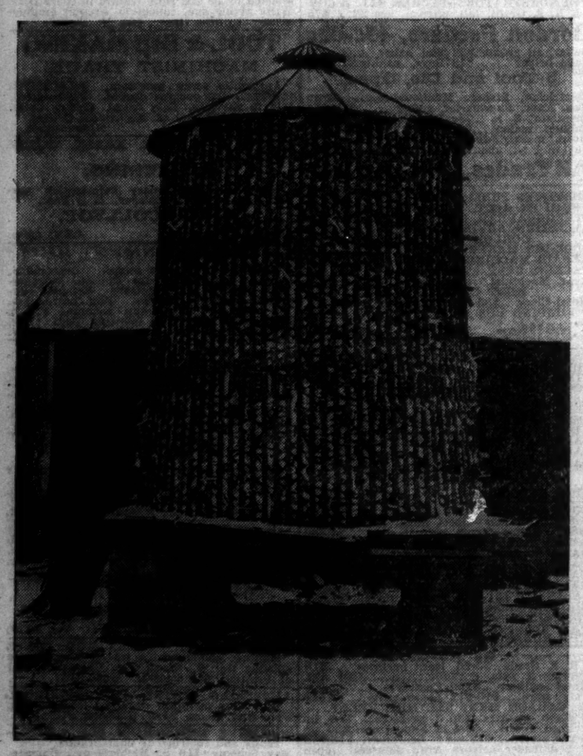
Corn Yields High.

November 28, 1937.

YIELDS ran high in the corn fields at the Wheaton farm this year. Seven different hybrid strains were used. Only a small patch of open pollinated corn—yellow dent—was grown.

Several different fields scattered over the farm were used in testing on a field basis the various hybrids. Of the 55½ acres raised on the place this year, the ears were picked and cribbed from 35 acres. Yields of the ear corn varied from 40 to 84 bushels per acre, according to the farm manager's figures. He believes that most of this variation is due to the difference in the richness of the soil.

Although all the hybrids grown for grain reached maturity before the first killing frost, much of the corn had a fairly high moisture content and extra precautions were taken to prevent spoilage in the cribs. Corn stored indoors has been provided with ventilators placed here and there over the cribs to encourage free circulation of air. Some of the corn was stored outdoors in a crib made of sections of a snow fence.



Emergency corn crib made from three sections of snow fence and used in storing corn in Tribune's Wheaton farm. It is built on tile to encourage free circulation of air and to keep out rats and mice.

84 Bushels Is Highest.

A seven acre field of No. 657 LE and a 6 acre field of No. B 639 were the highest producers of the grain hybrids, both averaging about 84 bushels an acre. No. B 639 matured about five days earlier than any of the other strains. They were all planted about the same time. No. 657 LE and No. 614 ranked next to B 639 in time of maturity.

No. 635, an Iowealth hybrid, was about ten days later in maturing than B 639, the earliest strain. It ranked next to the highest yielders, producing an average of 80 bushels an acre. Eight acres of No. 635 were grown.

Iowealth hybrid No. 657, grown on a two acre patch, produced the lowest yield, averaging 40 bushels an acre. This ground is next to a strip of timber which no doubt had much to do with holding down the yield.

64 Bushels on Thin Soil.

Twelve acres of Iowealth hybrid No. 614 averaged nearly 62 bushels per acre. The soil in this field was quite thin compared with the fertility of the ground where the highest yielders were grown.

All the hybrids, including those grown for silage and fodder, stood up well.

Hybrid No. 667 was used for silage and fodder, producing unusually high yields. The manager estimates roughly that in some spots this hybrid produced about 19 tons of silage per acre. The stalks were tall and the foliage dense. The blades were wide and close together.

Gulf Coast Water Bonds.

Investors' Guide: Can you tell me the rating of Gulf Coast Water company first mortgage 5 per cent bonds due in 1948? Are they bonds a farmer can put his money into and forget and not have to worry?—H. W.

Answer: The bonds are considered reasonably sound, but are more the type of bond for a business man prepared to keep an eye on his investments than the gilt-edge type of investment to be forgotten about. Interest has been paid regularly, however, and charges have been covered by a good margin—2.51 times in 1936, 2.99 times in 1935, and 2.43 times in 1934. The company sells water for agricultural and industrial purposes, serving rice growers of Wharton and Matagorda counties, Texas, among others.

Fractions.

Investors' Guide: Why are fractions such as ⅞ths used on the stock market?—J. S.

Answer: Use of fractions makes a better market and reflects the value of a stock exchange in providing an active market and reducing "wide spreads" between prices bid by prospective buyers and those asked by prospective sellers. When little stock is available, as in the case of some securities, both listed and unlisted, the best bid price may be several dollars a share less than the lowest offering price. This makes for a limited market and possible difficulty in buying or selling at a fair price when you wish to do so.

Lows.

W. E. B.—In answer to your inquiry, here are the low prices since 1929 of the stocks in question. All lows were reached in 1932, with the two exceptions noted:

Chrysler corporation, $5 a share.
General American Transportation, $9.50.
Montgomery Ward, $3.50.
Pullman, Inc., $10.50.
Stewart-Warner, $1.87½.
Standard Oil of Indiana, $13.12½.
Sears-Roebuck, $9.87½.
United States Gypsum, $10.50.
Youngstown Sheet and Tube, $4.
Procter and Gamble, $19.62½ in 1933.

Birds Eye Frozen Foods.

Investors' Guide: Is it possible to purchase stock in Birds Eye frozen foods, and if so under what names are they listed on the stock market? —C. W. O.

Answer: Birds Eye frozen foods are distributed by the Frosted Foods Sales corporation, a subsidiary of General Foods corporation. Stock of General Foods corporation is listed on the New York Stock exchange.

York Ice Machinery Corp. Reports Increased Profit

The preliminary report of the York Ice Machinery corporation, manufacturer of air-conditioning and refrigerating equipment, for the twelve months ended Sept. 30, shows net profit of $970,057, after depreciation, interest, and federal and state income and excess profits taxes, but before provision for tax on undistributed profits, exemption from which is claimed. Profit was $165,586 in the twelve months ended Sept. 30, 1936.

RAIL RATE BOOST HEARINGS TO BE STARTED TODAY

Washington, D. C., Nov. 28.—(AP)—Railroads of the nation joined forces tonight for what they termed through counsel a fight for life. They declared their continued existence is dependent on the outcome of hearings starting tomorrow before the interstate commerce commission on their plea for a 15 per cent rate boost.

The original petition was drawn up by class 1 railroads—carriers with gross revenue of $1,000,000 or more annually—but has been augmented by similar freight rate petitions from virtually every rail and water carrier in the country.

The increases sought would yield the class 1 roads about $508,000,000 additional annually. No estimates have been advanced by other railroads or water carriers.

CHICAGO TRADE DULLED BY LACK OF EMPLOYMENT

Disquieting employment reports overshadowed the Chicago business situation last week, the Chicago Association of Commerce reported yesterday. Many distributors and other concerns that usually increase their personnel just before Christmas were reducing their pay rolls. Retail stores for the most part have not hired any extra help, according to the report.

More optimistic news came from gift manufacturers, who reported a marked pickup in sales during last week.

PRICES OF BONDS RECOVER TOWARD CLOSE OF WEEK

New York, Nov. 28.—(AP)—After declines in the early part of last week, the bond market gained buoyancy on more encouraging news from Washington. The close of trading Saturday found prices generally higher.

Secondary rails were bought in sizable volume on Friday and Saturday, and utility liens also found support for the first time in quite a period. Higher priced industrials and top grade rails and other corporate issues likewise advanced.

Int. Paper to Retain $50 Newsprint Price in 1938

New York, Nov. 28.—(AP)—The International Paper company announced tonight that it did not plan to increase its price for newsprint during the last six months of 1938. Its $50 base price for delivery at Chicago and New York and other Atlantic and gulf ports previously set for the first six months of the year will be extended through December, 1938.

Field Warehouse Receipts.

The use of field warehouse receipts is a form of short term financing which has developed rapidly in recent years. This form of financing calls for the issuance of warehouse receipts against readily marketable commodities stored in bona fide warehouses. Such receipts are posted with banks as collateral for loans.

Staples suitable for field warehousing include cotton, rice, cottonseed oil, cottonseed meal, pecans, soy bean meal, preserved figs, lumber, hides, steel products, sugar, tobacco, sulphur, and many other articles for which a quick market is available.

In establishing a field warehouse the operator frequently leases buildings or space from the industry being served. A bonded representative takes charge. He is in full custody and issues negotiable receipts against articles in the warehouse. The bank is protected by the operator, who assures that no goods will be delivered to the borrower until the bank has signed a release.

Because of the ready marketability of the commodities against which warehouse receipts are issued, banks consider this form of collateral of excellent quality in most cases.

STOCKS HIGHER IN WEEK AFTER SEVERE SLUMP

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 28.—The stock market rallied in the last two days of last week to finish higher after sinking to the lowest level reached since April, 1935. Gains in the active list ranged from fractions to more than 3 points.

For the five days of trading the rise in thirty industrial issues, as measured by the Dow Jones average, amounted to 4.58 points. The rails advanced 1.61 points and the utilities 2.05 points.

The entire market started weak Monday, marking the sixth decline in a period of seven trading days. On Tuesday the list was a bit firmer, but this was nullified on Wednesday when a new low level for the year was reached.

Market Reacts Friday.

When traders came back to the market on Friday after the Thanksgiving holiday many believed the list was in a position to rise because of its oversold condition and the federal administration's more friendly attitude toward business. The result was an advance on a broad front. Saturday the gains were extended substantially.

Business statistics showed further recessions. However, the street took encouragement from the President's conferences with the heads of two of the biggest utility concerns in the country—Floyd Carlisle, chairman of the Consolidated Edison, and Wendell Willkie, head of Commonwealth and Southern. After his talk at the White House Carlisle announced that his company was ready to spend $100,000,000 in the next two years on an expansion program.

Hope for Tax Reforms.

Meanwhile, the drive in both houses of congress for revision of taxes continued. Hopes rose for repeal of the levies on undistributed profits and drastic revision of the capital gains tax. Other topics to get much discussion in board rooms during the week included the ultimatum delivered by the chairman of the Securities and Exchange commission to the authorities of the New York Stock exchange to "clean house." The exchange is expected to make a reply next week.

Steel Output Sags; Holiday Recess Factor

Steel ingot production last week declined 3½ points to 31.5 per cent of theoretical capacity, the magazine Steel estimated yesterday. The decrease was partly due to week-end idleness in some mills beginning with Thanksgiving day. A few steel making centers increased operations as a result of an accumulation of small orders, but the increases were insufficient to offset the general slump.

"November steel buying has been at a rate between 10 and 15 per cent lower than in October, with practically all producers meeting about the same conditions," Steel said. "Much of the current lack of buying is attributed to existence of sufficient inventories in the hands of consumers to meet present reduced demands for their products.

Automotive Demand Limited.

"In the automotive field this appears less evident than in others, but limited production of cars has cut deeply into requirements. Some miscellaneous consumers have been buying at a fair rate. Had railroad and automotive needs been at the usual rate for this time of year, total steel sales would have been at practically a normal rate, in the opinion of many steelmakers.

"Railroads continue to contribute some important tonnages to the market, although delay until the matter of increased rates is settled has reduced the volume of buying below what their needs would normally bring out."

Chicago Output Large.

Ingot production in the Chicago district rose 2.5 points last week to 30 per cent of capacity. Clevenad increased operations 13 points to 28 per cent, Cincinnati 4 to 29, and St. Louis 5.6 to 20.6. Birmingham continued unchanged at 54 per cent.

Other centers declined, with Pittsburgh 7 points lower at 27 per cent; Wheeling, 8 lower at 35; Youngstown, 5 lower at 37; eastern Pennsylvania, 8 lower at 27; New England, 3 lower at 27; Buffalo, 7 lower at 21, and Detroit, 12 points lower at 59 per cent of capacity.

Kreuger & Toll Creditors May Get Further Payments

New York, Nov. 28.—(AP)—A further dividend for creditors of the bankrupt Kreuger & Toll estate will probably be paid when the courts decide the status of claims of American certificate holders, said Edward S. Greenbaum, trustee in bankruptcy of the American estate, in a report on its finances released today. The report showed that the estate has over $1,600,000. The Swedish estate, he said, has more than 21,800,000 Swedish kroner, or more than $5,000,000.

U. S. WILL START GRAIN CONTROL DRIVE THIS WEEK

Commodities Board to Hold Hearing.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 28.—(AP)—The federal administration will take steps this week toward tightening government control of the nation's grain markets.

Senator Capper fights speculation in grain.

The commodity exchange commission will hold hearings at Chicago Tuesday and Wednesday on its own proposals that new restrictions be placed on speculation in grain futures—an activity that involved $25,000,000,000 last year. One proposal would place a limit on the speculative transactions of any individual.

Grave Danger, Says Wallace.

Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, a member of the commission, declared that "excessive speculative operations, particularly by one or a few individuals, are a grave danger in any market and may force prices far out of line."

The administration is not alone in its drive on speculation. Senator Capper [R., Kas.] went on the radio tonight to declare that the government has not "gone nearly far enough in clamping down on the gambling in necessities of life on the Chicago Board of Trade and other commodity exchanges."

The commission move, it was said, grew out of a congestion in September corn futures that forced a suspension in trading on the Chicago Board of Trade when one trader, Wallace said, obtained control of 74 per cent of all open commitments on the long side.

Plan to Prevent Squeeze.

Another commission proposal would prohibit trading in an expiring grain future during the last ten days of the delivery month. Such a provision, officials said, would tend to prevent "squeezes" and market congestions endangering price stability.

The commission announced today it would give publicity to daily tradings in cotton on commodity markets.

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

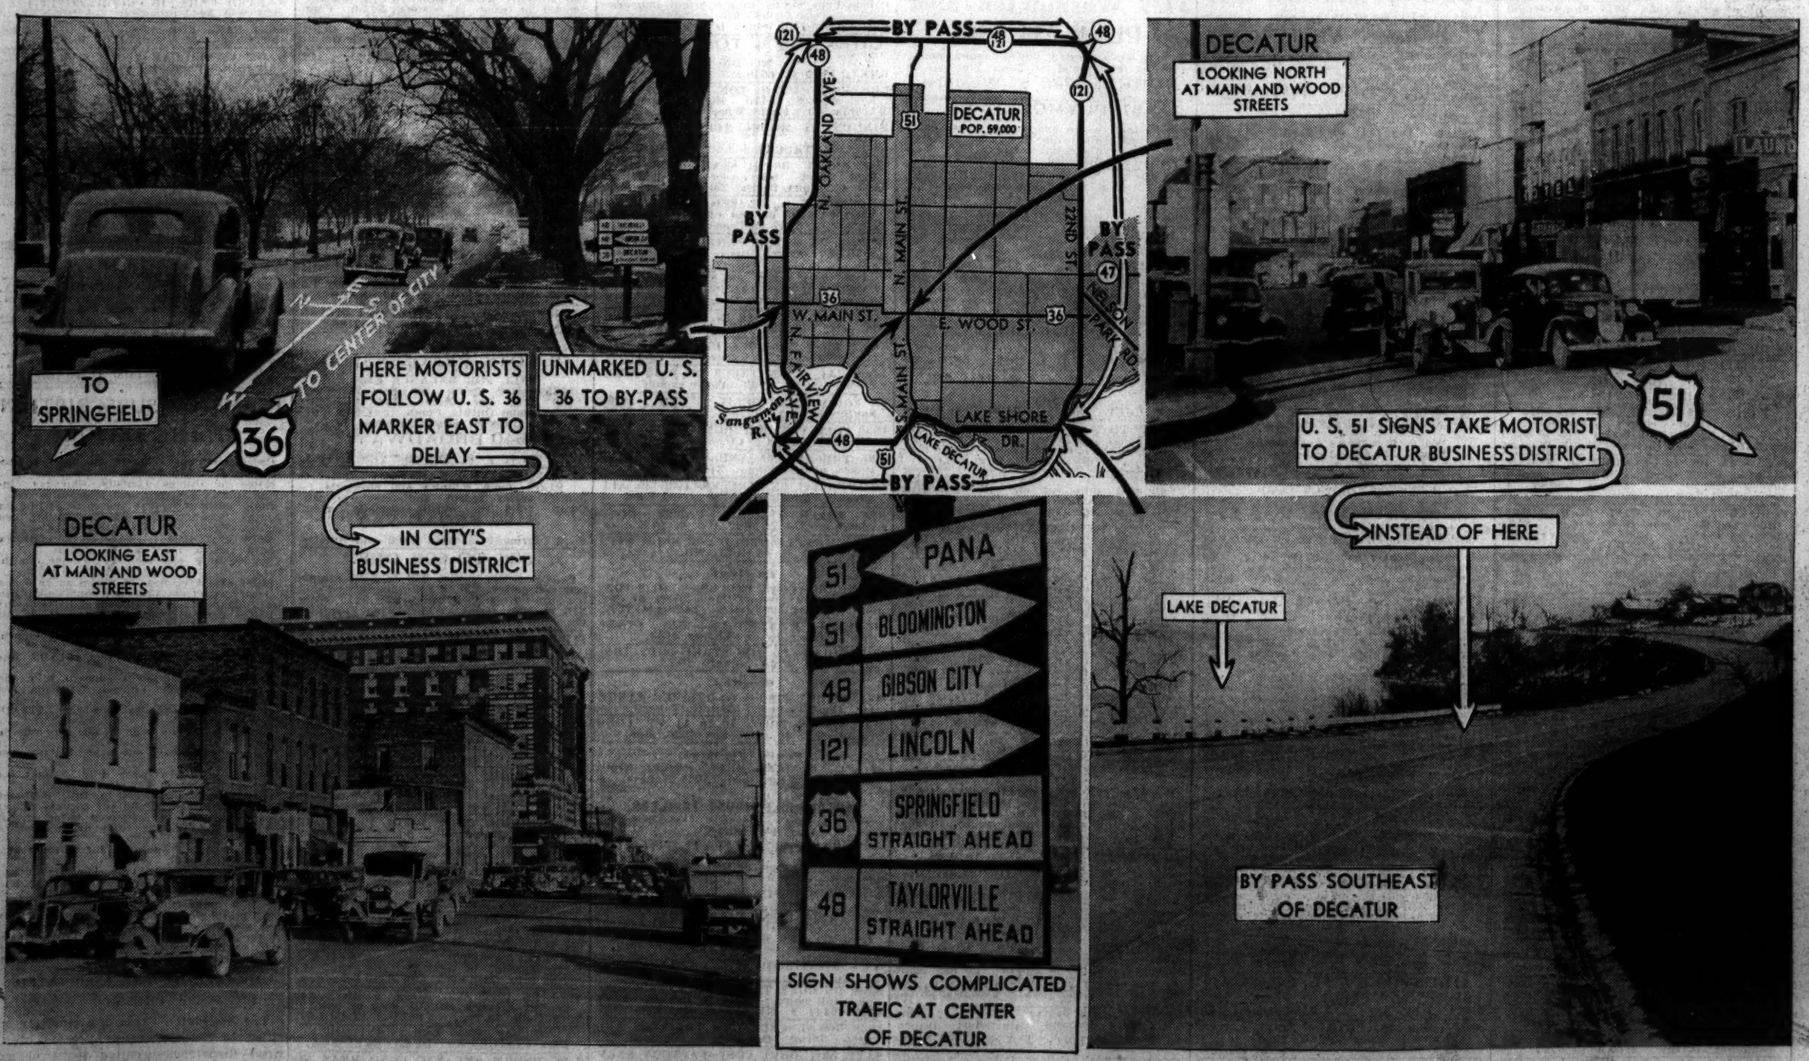
Inadequate Markers for Auto Trafic Impair Usefulness of By-pass Route Around Decatur



Although Decatur now has a complete belt route around the city, completed within the last few weeks, lack of proper trafic markers indicating the turnoffs for the bypass is causing many through motorists to continue on through the congested trafic in the downtown area instead of using the faster highway. Merchants of Decatur have indorsed the bypass as an aid to local trafic.
